Warning to Russia.
The Soul and Beethoven.
Buying Refinement.
A 24-Foot Eye.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

READ this and wonder. Yesterday the Russian government sent five tons of gold through the streets of London on a truck with no armed men escorting it, not even two or three detectives. The gold, worth more than two and a half million dollars, traveled through London like ordinary pig iron.

IT is only fair to tell Russia's government that it wouldn't be wise to try that in any big American city.

IN New York yesterday you could see an armored car carrying $100,000 and ahead of it two policemen on a motorcycle with a bullet-proof shield in front of them.

SIR ARTHUR KEITH, head of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, says what we call mind, spirit or soul is a product of the material brain and dies with it.

Sir Oliver Lodge, a greater scientist, but old, says: "The soul does not die with the body, the brain is an instrument used by the mind."

To say that the soul is a product of the mind is, according to Lodge, like calling Beethoven the product of a piano which interprets his music. Burn the piano and you will not destroy Beethoven.

DUVEEN has bought another picture at another price record. For the painting "The Madonna and Child," by Raphael, he gave Lady Desborough $875,000. If Britain wants it at cost it will stay in England. If not, some American will gladly pay $1,000,000 for it.

When you pay a million dollars for a picture you get a beautiful painting, and you feel you have purchased a good deal of respectability, refinement and importance. That's comforting.

GARRETT P. SERVISS, able astronomer, says dirigibles will help astronomers, lifting giant telescopes high above earth into clear atmosphere.

There might be some difficulty keeping the giant "eye" steady.

AT present, says Mr. Serviss, earth's biggest telescope is on Mt. Wilson, with a lens eight feet in diameter. Europe is working at a 24-foot lens.

Such a lens, raised seven or eight miles above the earth, would bring objects on the moon to within eight miles of the human eye.

THE Senate approved a bill that now goes to the President, cutting air mail charges 50 per cent. Postmaster-General New believes that lower price will mean more business, better profit.

THE Manhattan elevated railroad in NEW YORK CITY NEVER MADE any real money until the fare was reduced from 10 cents to five.

The bill also permits the postoffice to make 10-year mail carrying contracts, which is sensible. It doesn't pay to build airplanes and train men for a four-year contract.

CENTURIES ago, boats sailed cautiously from Mediterranean ports keeping in sight of land, having no compass.

Bold Phoenicians from the eastern end of the Inland Sea, traders that sold Solomon some of the wonderful things he put into his temple, sailed through the Straits of Gibraltar, into the wild Atlantic, using stars in place of a compass, pushing on to what we call the British islands. That was a wonder.

YESTERDAY the Italian flier, Umberto Nobile, in his dirigible, ITALIA, started through the air for the North Pole. He took with him a cross, 6 feet long, to be dropped as near to the pole as possible, and the flag of Pope Pius.

The earth is conquered, sea and air. Will men ever conquer outside space?

JAPANESE have driven Chinese out of Tsinan as a bull terrier would drive kittens out of a kitchen. The Japanese know how to fight and like it.

One look at the face of Capt. Nematsu, the leader of Japanese troops, compared with the face of the Chinese general, Feng Yu Hsiang, explains why the Japanese beat the Chinese so easily.

IN Germany, a Russian, convicted of killing his 4-year-old boy, was decapitated, according to law. Now it is proven that other men committed the crime. The man beheaded was innocent. A society opposed to capital punishment makes capital of this.

Killing an innocent man occasionally is not the worst thing about capital punishment. That form of punishment makes the law imitate the murderer, keeps alive the brutal "eye for an eye, tooth for a tooth."

Men should abolish capital punishment to civilize themselves.

M'CONNELL CLEARED BY M.E.'S

KANSAS CITY, May 12.—(AP.)—By unanimous vote, the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church today cleared Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of Pittsburgh, Pa., of charges of mal-administration and misuse of Episcopal power in the conduct of an annual conference.

The conference action was taken on a motion by Dr. Harold Paul Sloan, of Haddonfield, N. J., that charges against Bishop McConnell be dismissed "as totally without foundation."

Prior to adoption of the motion, Bishop McConnell took the floor on a point of personal privilege and protested against the statement in the charges mentioning "immorality" in regard to his views on evolution. He demanded action on the part of the conference at once.

The charges had been preferred by the Rev. George A. Cooke, who lives near Wilmington, Del.

North Pole Dirigible Damaged

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, May 12.—(AP.)—The dirigible Italia was in her hangar today with a damaged right motor caused when the airship was dragged along the ground on returning from an unsuccessful attempt to explore Polar regions. Thick fog and a blinding snowstorm caused Gen. Umberto Nobile to turn back. The engine will require repairs before another flight can be attempted.

Gen. Nobile said that he had reacher Franz Joseph Land, one of the few bits of land breaking the monotonous stretches of ice and water, when fog prevented observations. Attempts were made to find a way through at altitudes ranging from 100 to 1,000 meters, but all to no avail.

The trip to explore the little known Lenin Land, formerly Nicholas II Land, was therefore abandoned. This land is only vaguely represented on most maps of the Arctic regions and Gen. Nobile had hoped to learn what the Russians, who discovered it in 1913, had failed to find out. Instead of the anticipated flight of 40 hours, however, the Italia was in her hangar again eight hours after starting, and Lenin Land remained as vague as ever.

TWINS SEPARATED

Little Dorothy Frazier, 3 months old, doesn't know it, but her mother's gone off and left her. Now, Nurse Alice Rupert is tending her at Children's Hospital, where she was taken by police. Jennie Frazier, 22, 8 Creek street, the mother, left the child with Mrs. Helen Vaughn, 123 West Ohio street, "to go to Cleveland," says Mrs. Vaughn. She adds that the babe's one of twin girls born to Mrs. Frazier February 19 and that the other child's "in a home."

$40,500 ASKED OF BUC ACE

Glenn Wright, shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was sued for $40,500 damages in Common Pleas Court today over an auto accident.

It was October 9, the day after that disastrous world series of last year, that Wright's car, with Glenn at the wheel, it is alleged, crashed into a machine driven by Melvin Morgan, of 6649 Wilkins avenue, at Darlington road and Shady avenue. Morgan and W. W. Wright (no relation to Glenn), of 6641 Wilkins, who are suing the ballplayer, averred that their wives and young Harvey Morgan and Betty Wright were injured.

Judge Josiah Cohen refused the request of Attorney Jacob Shulgold, counsel for the plaintiff, that bond for Wright be set at $5,000, and asked $750. It was expected that papers would be served on Wright before today's game at Forbes Field.

Dry Agent Gunman Fired

Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington has received new strict orders that promiscuous shooting by dry agents must stop, it became known today.

To emphasize the order, from Washington, Commissioner James M. Doran, Pennington's superior, announced that Robert Taylor, an enforcement agent in this district, had been fired for shooting at an auto, near Huntington, W. Va., whose driver had failed to halt at the agent's command. Doran pointed out that Taylor had violated the instructions issued by Pennington.

"We will not shield officers who fire on vehicles, whether the autos stop when their drivers are commonded or not," Doran warned. "Agents should not resort to firearms except in self-defense or to prevent a felony. Transporting liquor, fleeing from an officer, or failing to stop when ordered are not felonies."

FORD SHIP CRASHES, 2 DIE

DETROIT, May 12.—(AP.)—Two pilots of the Ford Motor Company were killed today when a tri-motored transport plane crashed and caught fire soon after taking off from the Ford Airport at 8:45 a. m.

The men killed were William Munn and E. K. Parker, both of Detroit.

The pilots were on their first regular run to Buffalo, N. Y., on a freight route.

Edward G. Hamilton, chief of operations of the Ford Air Line Service, said the accident occurred when Munn, who was at the controls, forced the plane off the ground without sufficient flying speed. Soon after rising the big airship stalled, slid off on one wing and spun to the ground near the Michigan Central Railroad tracks close to the airport. The plane was wrecked and both men are believed to have died almost instantly.

The plane, an all-metal airship, carried a load of freight. When it crashed a broken wing punctured the gasoline tank and the fuel was ignited. It was more than an hour after the accident before the bodies of the victims, both burned, could be recovered from the wreckage.

The fatalities were the second involving a Ford airplane and it was the third serious airplane accident in the vicinity of the Ford airport. Two other men, Gordon A. Taylor, of Rochester, N. Y., and Aaron Rosenbleet, New York City, were killed, April 24, when their plane, a Taylor monoplane, crashed from an altitude of 1,000 feet at the airport during a demonstration following the aircraft show. Three persons were hurt in another crash at the airport, April 23.

Prepared for Men, U. S. Woman 'Jurist' Says

NEW YORK, May 12—(AP.)—Miss Amy Wren was appointed a United States commissioner in Brooklyn yesterday. It was believed there that she was the first woman in the country to hold such a post.

"Ninety-nine and nine-tenths who appear before me will be men," she said. "I will try them just as a man would. Dealing with men is not a sob sister job. It is a man's job and I will perform the duties just as a man would."

AGNES GADDIS

The Monongahela River has given up the body of Ceneth Gaddis, 22, school teacher, drowned with five others when a skiff-ferry upset at Alicia No. 2 mine. A reward of $150 was offered for the body. Agnes, 13, a sister, was saved. "I prayed all the time I was in the water," she says, "and Ceneth was praying, too." Mrs. Harry Gaddis, mother, keeping vigil at the shore, saw the body recovered and collapsed.

SEE NEW PROSPERITY IN COAL RATE CUT

Pittsburgh businessmen generally, as well as coal operators and shippers, foresee a season of increased prosperity for this district as a result of the voluntary reduction in lake cargo coal freight rates from the Pittsburgh territory to points west of Detroit River, as announced yesterday by executives of the northern railroads. At a meeting here on Monday of the Central Coal, Coke and Ore Committee the tariff schedules will be prepared and submitted at once to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The rates will go into effect about June 20.

What the action of the railroads mean in a business way to Pittsburgh is epitomized in the expressions below:

A. B. M'ELVANY, secretary Pittsburgh Coal Operators' Rate Committee—We are very much pleased that the railroads have restored the 45-cent differential as proposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, thus protecting the Pittsburgh coal district and providing what we believe to be an

2 ARMY PLANES SPEED TO RECOVER BREMEN

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., May 12.—Two Army amphibian-biplanes, sent by the War Department to aid in bringing the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen back from Greenley Island to civilization, took off at 9:18 o'clock this morning. Both planes had arrived at Miller Field, Staten Island, from Bolling Field, Washington, at 6:30 a. m. and had hopped to Mitchel Field. The next scheduled stop is Portland, Me.

One of the planes was piloted by Capt. Ira C. Eaker, and carried Fred Melchior, chief pilot of the Junkers Company in America, as a passenger. Melchior plans to land at Greenley Island, either by plane or, if that is impossible, by parachute, and fly the Bremen from the island. The Bremen had been stalled on Greenley Island where it was damaged somewhat, when the three musketeers of the air, Koehl, Fitzmaurice and Von Huenfeld, landed after their dramatic trans-Atlantic jump.

The other plane which left simultaneously from here this morning was piloted by Lieut. Muir W. Fairchild. Its passenger was Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the air corps, U. S. Army.

Following the granting of the divorce, Rupert was married again to his second wife.

JAPS RUSH 20,000 TROOPS

SHANGHAI, May 12.—(AP.)—The Japanese in Shantung continued to strengthen their position today and there were indications that order was gradually being restored.

The telegraphs and telephones between Tsingtao and Tsinan, cut when Chinese Nationalists and Japanese battled for possession of Tsinan, were in use again.

The Japanese aircraft tender Notoro arrived at Tsingtao, strengthening the Japanese warcraft gathered in Chinese waters.

The Japanese railroad authorities in Tokio were ordered to prepare for a large troop movement to Shantung between Sunday and the end of the month. Twenty thousand men were in the force to be moved into the war-torn province, bringing the Japanese strength there to about 28,000. Also 5,260 horses will be shipped to Shantung.

The Japanese consul general at Tsinan wired Tsingtao that the Nationalists, in evacuating the walled city on Thursday night, were disguised. This was interpreted as meaning that in their flight they had abandoned their uniforms.

A Japanese news dispatch from Tientsin said there was great unrest among the Chinese there since it was rumored that the Nationalist soldiers were now advancing northward under Gen. Fenk Yuhsung. The Northern forces were stated to have avoided a fight by evacuating Tehchow, near the Shantung-Chihli border.

PROSPERITY IS SEEN

equitable rate for all concerned. This should mean better business for Pittsburgh.

D. O. MOORE, traffic manager, Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce—The action of the railroads, while it is provisional in necessarily limiting the rate to points west of Detroit, gives Pittsburgh better than "half a loaf." All but about 20 per cent of the lake coal shipments go beyond Detroit, so we have three-quarters of a loaf, or better, if we make our comparisons according to the old proverb. It means much for Pittsburgh.

JAMES F. MALONE, president of Pittsburgh City Council—We believe that the Northern railroad presidents in voluntarily reducing the lake coal rate have done more for Pittsburgh than anything that has been done in a long time looking toward our prosperity. I have just sent telegrams to the presidents of the New York Central, Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads expressing our gratitude and congratulating them on their public spirit.

R. TEMPLETON SMITH secretary-treasurer and general manager of the Poland Coal Company—We appreciate this step to correct partially the discrimination against Pittsburgh in this one market. We hope it indicates the Northern railroads' intention to remove also the discrimination against Pittsburgh in the larger markets of Michigan and in the East.

C. E. LESHER, executive vice president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company—I'm very, very glad to hear it.

T. A. DUNN, chairman general traffic committee, Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce—It is a very splendid thing for the railroads to do this. It is a wonderful thing for Pittsburgh.

Nervous Witness Must Testify, Judge Rules

Witnesses who endeavor to be excused on the ground that the nervous strain would be detrimental to their health, must present a better excuse.

Judge Josiah Cohen so decided yesterday, when he tossed aside a paper presented by a lawyer and obtained from a physician, setting forth such a reason.

"It's a nervous strain on most persons not used to court trials to come in here," said the jurist as he turned down the request to relieve the witness of service.

"What I want to know is, what is the physical ailment of this person? Nervousness does not mean anything to this court."

Sea Fliers Feted in Chicago

CHICAGO, May 12.—(INS.)—The climax of Chicago's "mightiest reception" was to be reached today in a colorful two-mile pageant down flag-draped Michigan avenue in honor of the Bremen fliers,

Von Huenefeld, Fitzmaurice and Koehl!

These world heroes, upon whom Chicago is lavishing the greatest reception in its history, will move at the head of the parade through miles of banked humanity to Soldier Field Stadium, where an elaborate program of entertainment will unfold.

A feature of the ceremonies will be a chorus of 100,000 voices singing German, Irish and American patriotic songs. The fliers and a score of dignitaries will deliver brief addresses.

More than a hundred floats, representing various civic and patriotic societies, have reserved places in the monster parade. A vivid cross-section of the colorful pageant may be visualized in the mention of soldiers, sailors, Red Cross nurses, Boy Scouts, Legionaires, German and Celtic societies in brilliant costume, interspersed with flower-covered and flag-streaming floats.

The ceremonies at Soldier Field will be followed by the biggest banquet ever arranged in the city. Place cards will be set for 4,700 men and women. The new Stevens Hotel, largest in the world, will be the setting for this gorgeous scene.

Since their arrival here Thursday night, the famous German-Irish trio have been kept on a dizzy pace of sight-seeing and entertainment. Wherever they went yesterday they were the center of admiring throngs. Special guards had to be mounted at the entrance to their hotel to keep the lanes of traffic open.

At noon tomorrow the fliers are scheduled to hop off for Milwaukee on a continuation of their tour of American and Canadian cities.

No New Ribbon, No Judging, Court Says

Judge Josiah Cohen boosted the typewriter business yesterday in Common Pleas Court. He told one lawyer he would not consider his petition for the reason that he could not read the document.

"If you need a new typewriter or typewriter ribbon go and buy it," said the court as he tossed the document away.

"If the court is to be permitted to act on papers in court cases, they must be typed so I can read them."

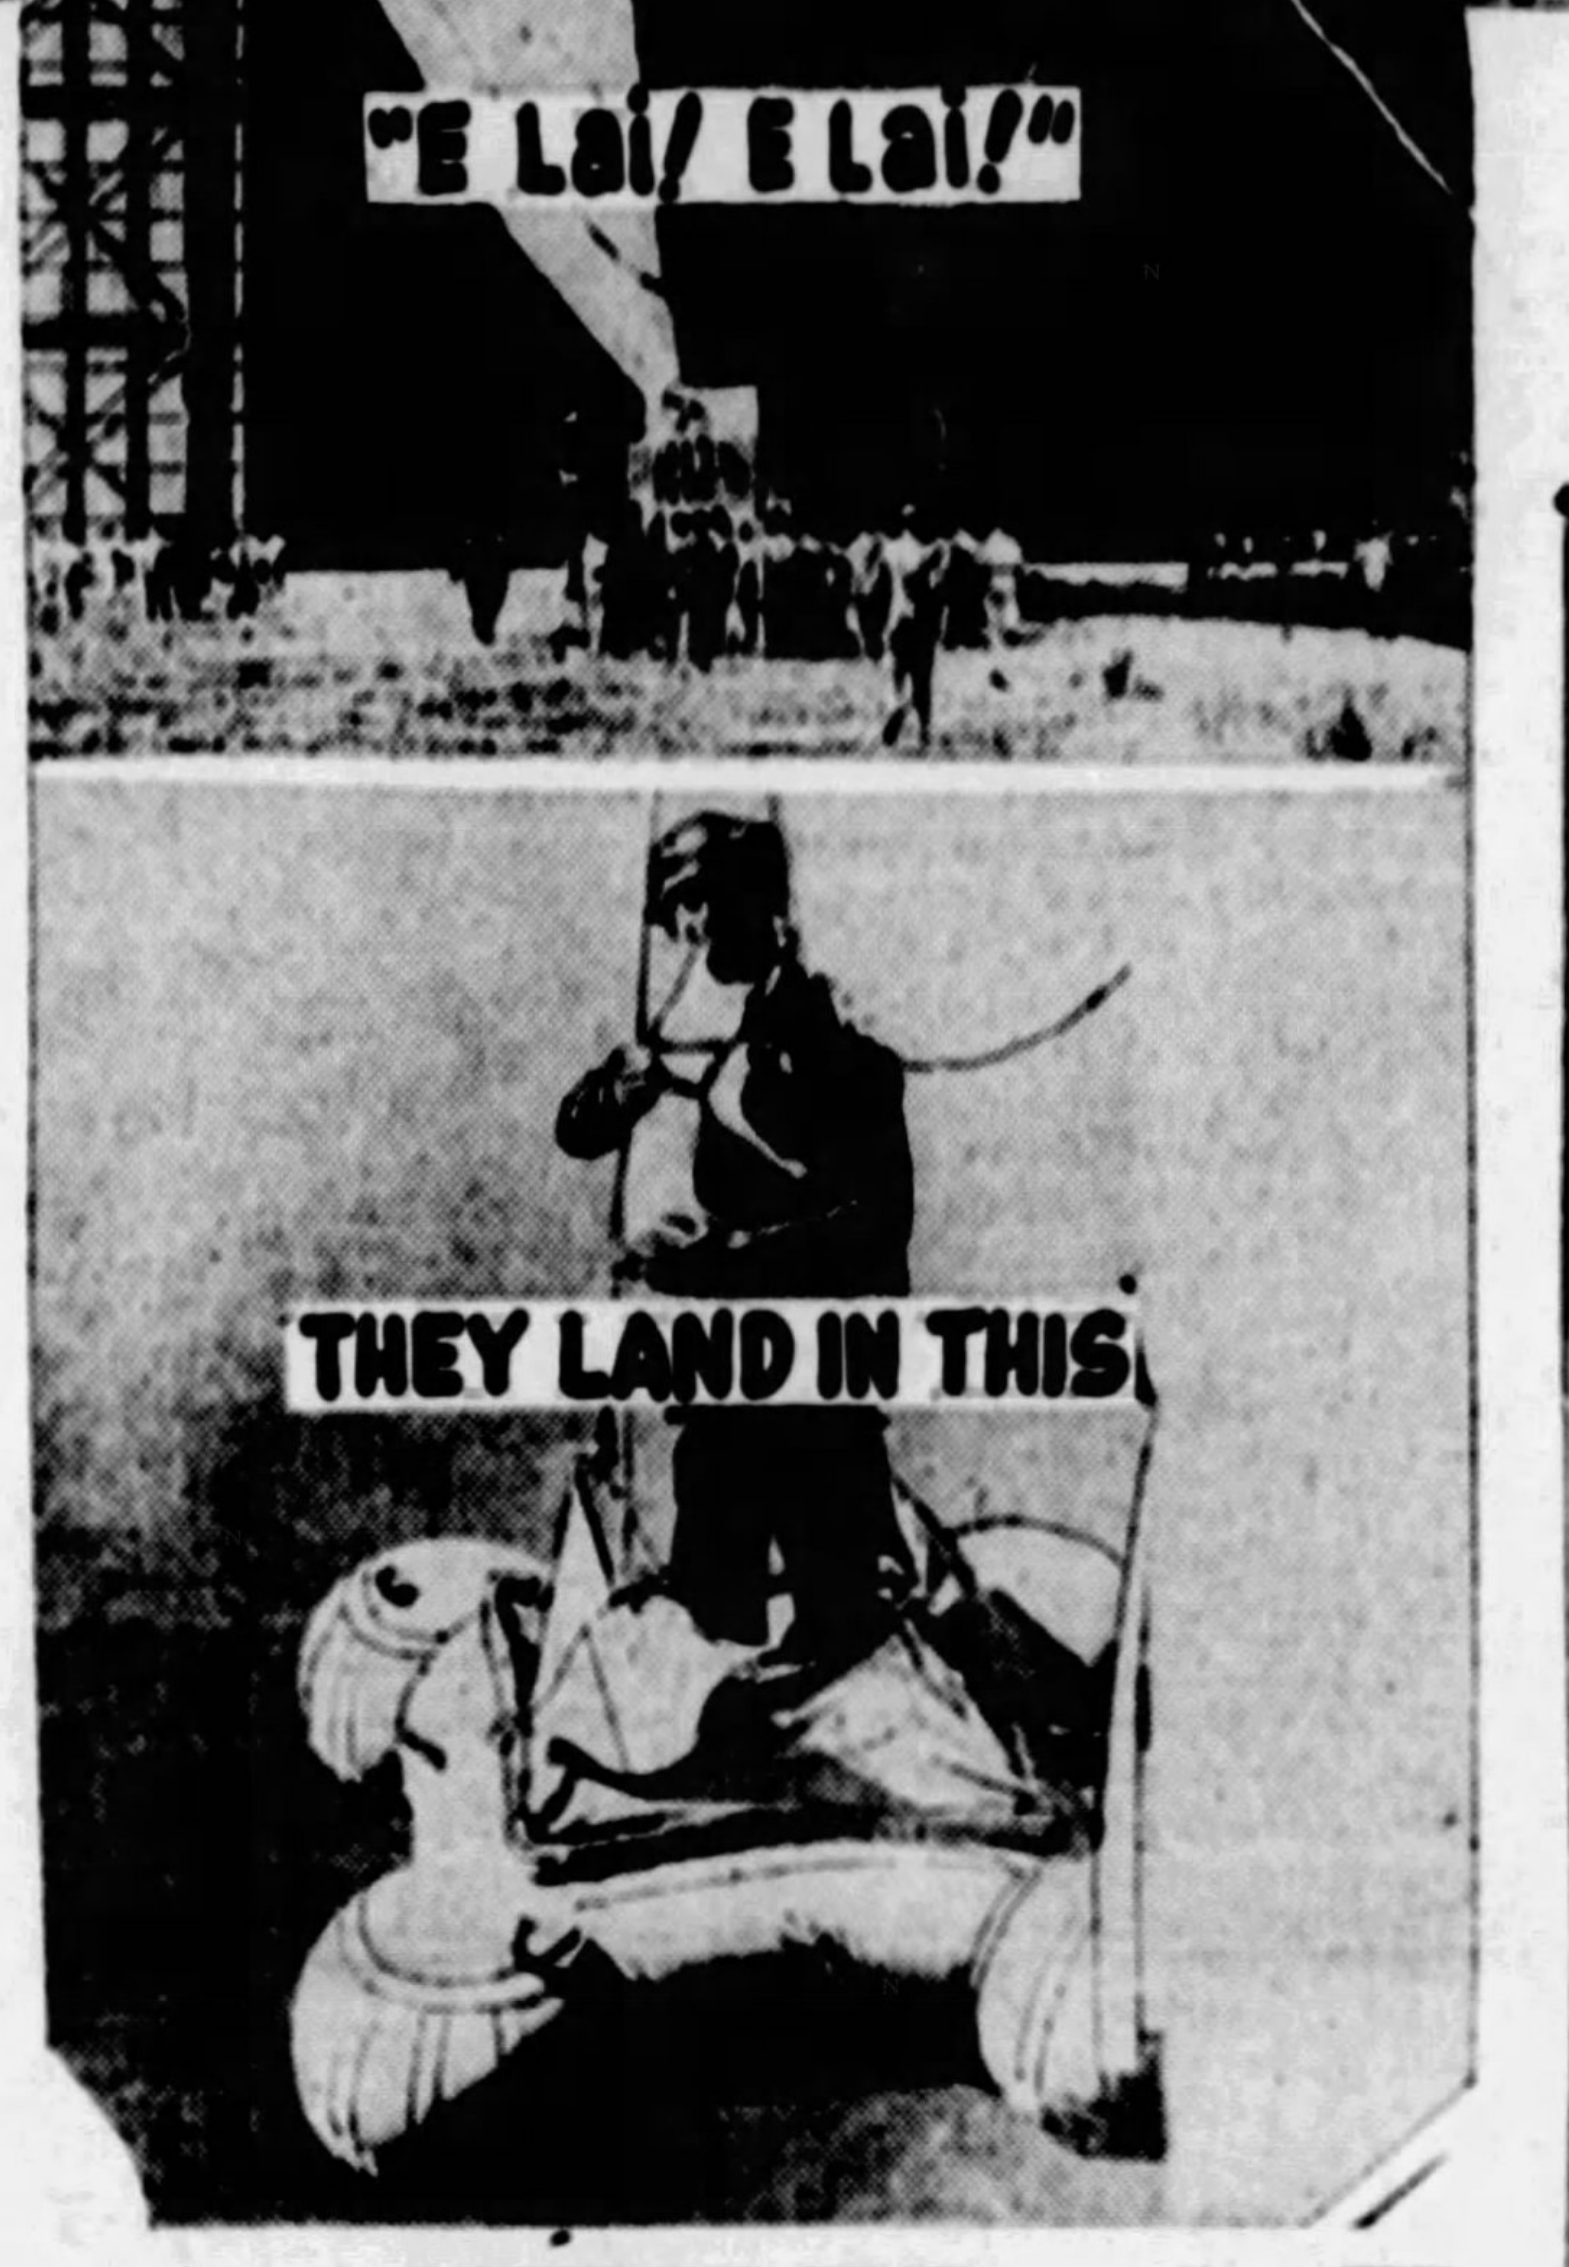
Herron Gets Second Degree Verdict

Weather Balks Nobile Flight

THE DAILY PICTORIAL THE SUN-TELEGRAPH GENERAL NEWS SECTION
SATURDAY, MAY 12, 1928

IS THIS MUTINY?



FORCED BACK

Gen. Umberto Nobile's first attempt to fly into the "blind spot" of the North polar regions went for naught when bad weather forced him to return in the Italia to his King's Bay base, Spitzbergen. Heavy snowstorms balked his plans for a 40-hour flight. He flew only seven hours, 300 miles. Above are Nobile and five of his lieutenants: Allossandrini, Arduino, Cecioni, Garabbi and Pomella. Gen. Nobile's own story of the attempts will appear in The Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

DISSESSION

Dissension cropped up in Nobile's party when Italian chausseurs aboard the "Citta da Milan," the boat carrying supplies for the blimp, flatly refused to be carried to the North Pole and left there for several days while Nobile flew off elsewhere to explore further. "It wasn't agreed in Italy that they were to do that," they saq. Nobile wants them to conduct meterological work at the pole. The boat's crew's above.

LANDING GEAR

Included in the Italia's equipment are a number of "derricks" such as this one. It is fastened to any part of the dirigible and sustains the weight of two men and provisions, enabling landing from the ship on land or sea. The inventor, shown in the apparatus, holds "Eitina," mascot of the expedition and a veteran of Nobile's last pole flight.

300 MORE CALLED IN PROBE

Subpenas have been served or are in course of preparation for calling many new witnesses in the liquor probe being conducted by the Federal grand jury. These will number between 275 and 300, according to well-founded reports.

The probe, originally pointed towards an alleged "booze" ring in the North Side, has gathered momentum each day and the summoning of the large number of new witnesses strongly indicates extension of the investigation to other parts of the city.

By giving testimony before the grand jury many of the witnesses received an immunity "bath" from prosecution by the government on any admission they make that would have rendered them liable to prosecution under the national prohibition law.

Instead of the probe's ending Monday as anticipated a few days ago, there is slight probability of it closing before the end of next week. Some persons who have been following the probe closely do not look for a return by the inquisitors before the following week.

About 60 witnesses appeared yesterday before the grand jury and about the same number who were called, but not heard, were instructed to return Monday morning. Among those who testified were some who had appeared before the grand jury Tuesday and Wednesday and had been recalled. There will be no session of the grand jury today.

Martin Succeeds Mellon

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—The ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel was crowded when the biennial organization meeting of the Republican State Committee was called to order today.

The meeting is the one time of the year that party leaders from all over the state get together since state conventions were abolished.

Chairman W. L. Mellon called the meeting to order. On the platform were Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon, Senator Reed, Senator-elect William S. Vare and Mrs. Worthington Scranton, vice chairman of the State Committee.

Auditor General Edward Martin, of Washington county, was elected chairman of the State Committee, succeeding W. L. Mellon, who was not a candidate for re-election.

After a long conference before the meeting of the Republican State Committee it was announced that Thomas W. Cunningham, sheriff of Philadelphia, indicted for refusal to answer queries concerning contributions made to Senator William S. Vare's campaign had been slated for re-election as treasurer of the body.

For hours here last night the problem of a national committeeman to succeed former Senator George Wharton Pepper was discussed. Gen W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, finally was decided upon, a victory for Vare over Grundy and Gov. John S. Fisher.

In selecting Atterbury, the leaders abandoned the precedent which has ruled for years to the effect that the senior Senator should have the national committee post. This precedent, if followed, would have given the position to Senator David A. Reed of Pittsburgh, who, his arm in bandages because of a slight infection, was here last night.

Late this afternoon the 79 members of Pennsylvania's delegation to the Republican National Convention will meet. Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon, who participated in the conferences here yesterday, is to be elected chairman. No action will be taken on the delegation's attitude at Kansas City, although three of the 79 are pledged to support Herbert Hoover and one to Calvin Coolidge. The others, unpledged, will follow the Mellon leadership.

The reported indorsement of Hoover by Mellon failed to materialize here, althouh his friends in conversing with the Secretary, inferred that he is certain that Hoover, if nominated—not when nominated, which may be significant—could beat Gov. Smith of New York.

29th Ward Leader Fined

Harry J. Close, assistant superintendent of county bridges who voiced his opinion of the political situation in the Twenty-ninth Ward yesterday in the presence of policemen at the Carrick station, was arraigned on two charges of disorderly conduct in the South Side Police Court. He was arrested twice within 20 minutes when he is alleged to have continued his speech-making in front of the police station.

Close, a former justice of the peace of Carrick, is a political leader in the new Twenty-ninth Ward and he favored Eugene L. Crowe in Wednesday's election of ward chairman. Crowe was running against Fred Sacher, whose tentative victory has been contested by Crowe. Neither of the men has been recognized as ward leader and the fight may be taken to City Republican Chairman James J. Coyne.

He was fined $5 on one charge and discharged on the other.

Braddock Bandits Foiled

Two holdup men fled in a gun duel with Daniel Berthold, service station proprietor at Corey avenue and Overland street, Braddock, early today.

FROST TONIGHT PREDICTED

"Cover budding flowers, plants and early vegetables," warned Forecaster W. S. Brotzman today, predicting frost that likely will be heavy in exposed places tonight. The temperature will fall to between 35 and 40.

This morning the mercury dropped to 38, within one degree of the record low for this date, established in 1913, but cloudy skies prevented frost. "Warmer Sunday," is forecast.

2ND DEGREE FOR OHIO SLAYER

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., May 12.—A verdict of second degree murder was returned against William D. Herron for the death of Viola May, his sister-in-law, when court was called for a night session last night. The jury deliberated less than six hours. Judge Eli Lindsay remained in the courthouse all evening waiting for the verdict. The verdict carries a life sentence with parole possible after 10 years.

The case was given to the jury shortly after 4 o'clock. Three women were on the jury and the foreman was Frank Price of Dundee. Herron probably will be sentenced Monday.

Henry Bowers, attorney for the defense, claimed that Prosecutor James E. Patrick imposed upon the defendant's intelligence by having Herron sign a draft of his verbal confession alleged to have been written in words that Herron could not understand. This was the main part of Bower's plea to the jury. Patrick denied the charge and said that if the jury believed him guilty of such a charge, they should state so and have him disbarred.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Numerous Parties Dispel Gloom in Social Circles Occasioned by Unseasonable Spring Temperature

WHAT is so cold as a day in May? Perhaps it doesn't feel much like spring today—more like a Saturday in November—but just to brighten up the day there are several parties scheduled. Two of them are down in Sewickley, one of them a tea and the other a luncheon. The tea is being given by Mrs. John T. Findley in her home in Centennial avenue, and she has two guests of honor, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Paul F. Findley, of New York, and Rebekah Brown. You remember, don't you, that Rebekah's engagement to William Woodbridge Upham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Janeway Upham, of Duluth and St. Petersburg, was announced last month by her father and mother, the William Kennedy Browns, of Pittsburgh and Sewickley?

Mrs. Findley is being assisted by a few of her friends, including Mrs. Preston Schoyer, Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker, Mrs. James Leonard, Mrs. Clarke Painter, Mrs. Richard G. Jennings and Miss Isabelle Adams.

The other party is the luncheon which Mrs. William Pomeroy, of Beaver street, is giving in the Edgeworth Club. She has 20 guests and the decorations are pink roses and delphinium.

A buffet luncheon was given yesterday in the Community Kitchen in Sewickley by Mrs. Charles C. Taliaferro, of Grove street. Mrs. Taliaferro invited about 30 guests to meet her sister, Mrs. Josephine Zinn, of Philadelphia and Wilmington, who is her guest until the end of next week. After the luncheon they played bridge.

I understand that Mrs. Nelson R. Van Kleeck, who lives, you know, in Sewickley, is going to leave on Monday to motor to Bay Head, N. J. She will spend about a week there now, but later the Van Kleecks will go on to remain at Bay Head all summer.

Among other Sewickley travelers are Mrs. Walter Taber Grange and her children, Helen and Robert, who are leaving today for California to visit Mrs. Grange's father and mother, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Rook. The Rooks used to live in Pittsburgh, as you remember, of course, but have been making their home in Los Angeles for some time.

I hear, too, that the R. T. M. McCreadys and their daughters, Margaret and Rachel, are expected home this week-end from Florida. They are motoring home, I believe.

Mrs. Morton Burdon, Mrs. Frank Wilcox, Mrs. Bond Sommerville and Mrs. Sommerville's daughter, Mrs. Laurence Davis, of Carnegie, have been in Indianapolis all week as guests of Mrs. W. C. Downing, who formerly lived in Sewickley. They went by motor and are expected home the first of the week.

A Pittsburgher in the East is Mrs. Ralph E. Clemson, who is spending a short time at the Berkshire, in New York.

SOUTHERN CLUB HAS UNUSUAL PROGRAM

Given readings by Mrs. Walter E. Close; violin solos by Miss Mary Redmond; baritone solos by Cass Ward Whitney, and accompaniments by Mrs. Adalaine Merrill Biddle, and you have a program par excellence —such a program as was presented yesterday at the Southern Club's annual luncheon in the Hotel Schenley. Mrs. A. M. Lynn, elected for a second term, gave the president's message to her constituents, and the invocation was by the Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, who later spoke briefly, in tribute to the altruistic work of the club and commendation of its purpose.

Miss Redmond, who is constantly improving in her work, opened the program, playing with a new fire and understanding that was especially noticeable in the Mendelssohn "On Wings of Song." Mr. Whitney's singing is always a joy, for his numbers are so aptly chosen and given with an artistry that is not only musical but histrionic as well. Mrs. Close chose Oscar Wilde's "The Selfish Giant," with its lovely piano setting by Lisa Lehman, as her first number and did it beautifully. Her other selections were equally interesting and well done. Mrs. Biddle's accompaniments are even worthy of a special word of praise.

The luncheon was one of especially attractive appointments. The purple of Japanese iris and the gold of gay jonquils made a striking color combination at the officers' table, while rose buds covered the smaller tables.

With their usual show of originality, members of the Woman's Fortnightly Review of Mt. Lebanon gave over part of the program for their annual dinner to their husbands, who were guests. In response to toasts, the Rev. Dr. E. C. McCown, John McKelvie, M. S. Kimmel, Hugh Patton, R. L. Kelly and Dr. R. T. Hood spoke, and in place of the president, her husband, J. C. Downs, presided, while the invocation was by the Rev. R. H. Hood. Mrs. Lucille Miller Werner, soprano, sang the new club song written and dedicated to Mrs. Downs by Ruth Stephens Porter, James W. McKelvie gave baritone solos and readings were contributed by J. E. Chambers. The dinner was held in the St. Clair Country Club.

One hundred and seventy high school students from all parts of the state took part in the contest, which began yesterday. J. Buell Snyder, one of the sponsors of the league, announced the winners last night. Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of the city schools, presided. Members of the winning team were given medals and silver cups, the cups to be kept permanently if they win debates three years successively.

Grove City High School's orchestra of 45 pieces won over the smaller musical group representing Uniontown. There were many other contests, including readings, vocal selections, instrumental solos and oratory. The contest was financed by the University of Pittsburgh.

SHUBERT EYE ON 'CAP AND GOWN'

"Mary-Grow-Round," twenty-first annual production of the University of Pittsburgh Cap and Gown Club, has attracted the attention of Messrs. J. J. and Lee Shubert, Broadway producers of musical comedy successes. Joseph A. Nolson, personal representative of the famous producers, attended last night's performance at the Alvin Theater, where capacity audiences have acclaimed this year's offering the biggest success in Cap and Gown history.

Douglas Hough, whose characterization of Herr Lezz, a German comedy role, has created much comment, was the center of attraction for Mr. Nolson, who declared he had never before seen an amateur perform with the young dental student's ease and dexterity. Hough scored a big success last year in black face and swung successfully into an entirely different part this season.

The producers' agent also complimented other members of this year's cast, as well as the dance numbers and music. "Mary-Grow-Round" is the best college musical offering I have ever seen," he declared.

Next year's offering of the Cap and Gown Club likely will play Broadway and Atlantic City, tentative arrangements having already been made for booking the show in the East. A number of this year's men will be lost to the club by reason of graduation, but the nucleus of talented players will be retained. Walter B. Edmundson, author of "Mary-Grow-Round," already has an idea for next year's show, and Gus Schnabel, composer, is at work on the musical theme.

"Mary-Grow-Round" will close tonight after a matinee today, winding up the most successful season the university players have ever experienced.

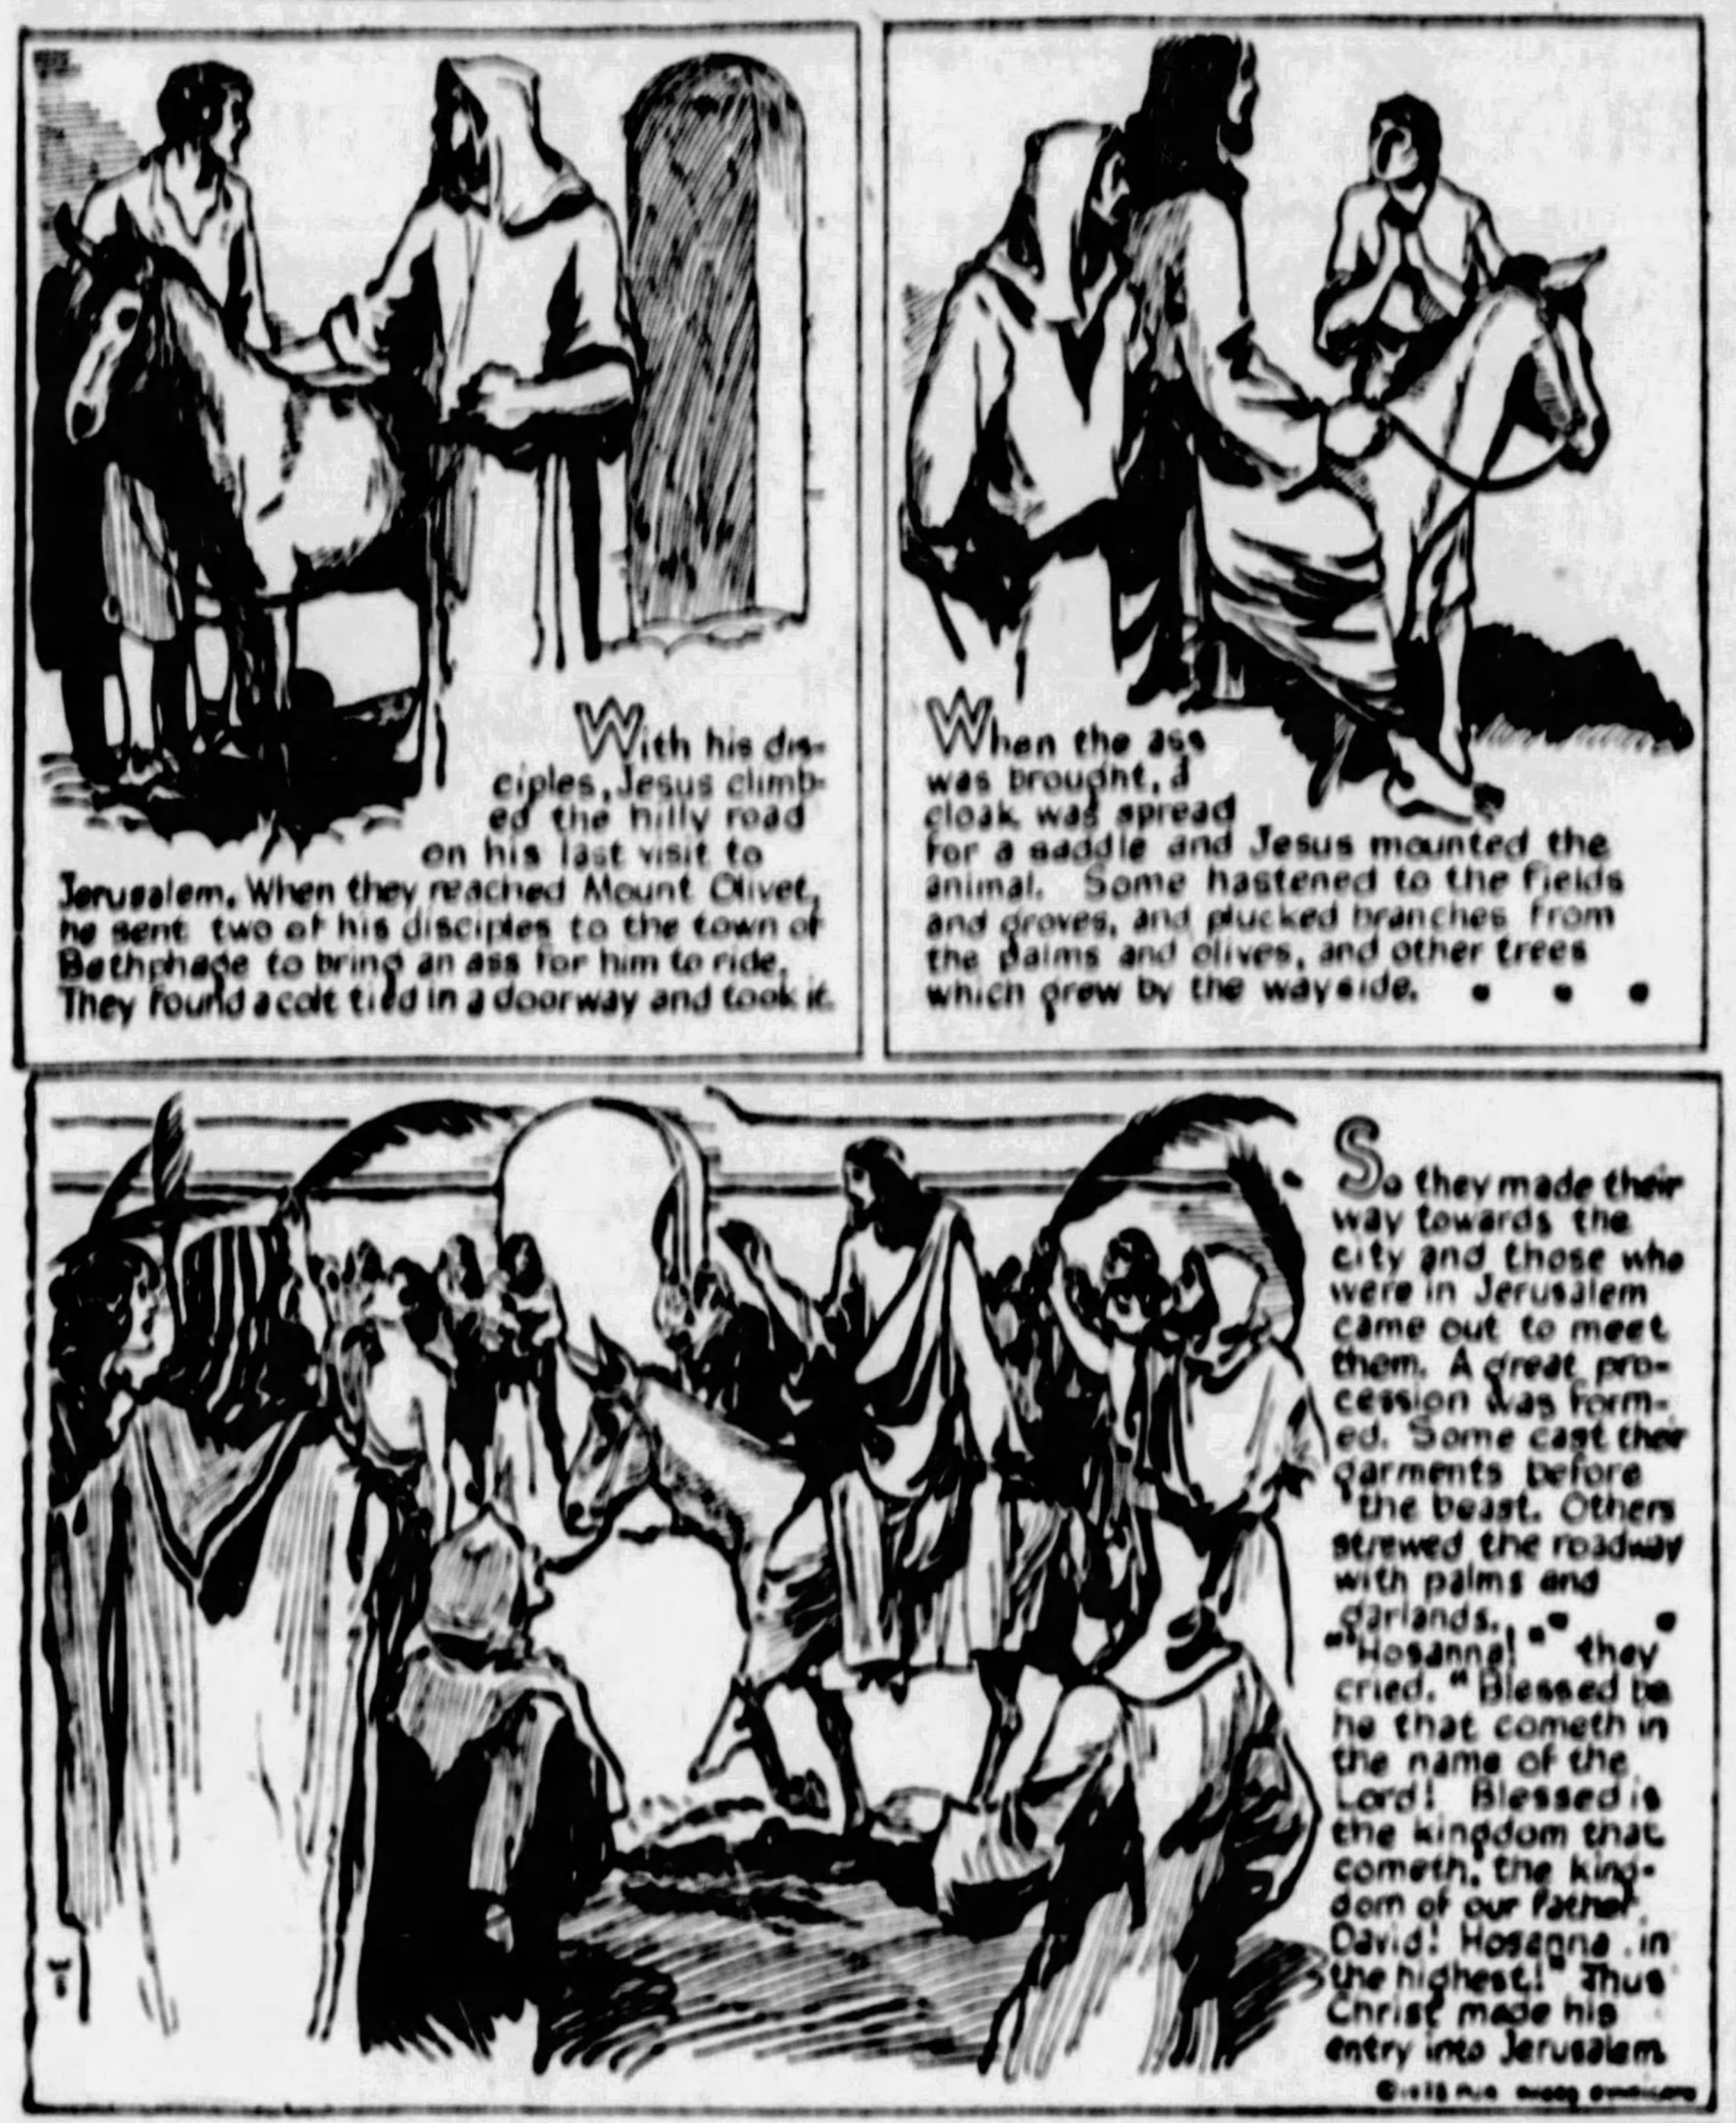
THE ENTRY INTO JERUSALEM

By { Harlowe R. Hoyt
Walter Scott

Sunday School Lesson
Mark 11:1-33



With his disciples, Jesus climbed the hilly road on his last visit to Jerusalem. When they reached Mount Olivet, he sent two of his disciples to the town of Bethphage to bring an ass for him to ride. They found a colt tied in a doorway and took it.
When the ass was brought, a cloak was spread for a saddle and Jesus mounted the animal. Some hastened to the fields and groves, and plucked branches from the palms and olives, and other trees which grew by the wayside. • • •
So they made their way towards the city and those who were in Jerusalem came out to meet them. A great procession was formed. Some cast their garments before the beast. Others strewed the roadway with palms and garlands. • • • "Hosanna!" they cried. "Blessed be he that cometh in the name of the Lord! Blessed is the kingdom that cometh, the kingdom of our father David! Hosanna in the highest!" Thus Christ made his entry into Jerusalem.

LODGES ADOPT MOTHERS' DAY PROGRAMS

Tomorrow, the twenty-second annual observance of Mothers' Day and the fifteenth anniversary of its celebration as a state holiday in Pennsylvania, will be observed here in home and lodge as well as in churches more widely than in any former year.

In nearly all the churches special services have been arranged, with appropriate musical programs and sermons extolling the spiritual import of motherhood.

Among many of the fraternal orders the celebration of Mothers' Day is now a fixed event on their calendars. In the Elks' lodges everywhere the day will be set apart for special honor, and in the local lodges fitting services of oratory and song will be held.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles and the Loyal Order of Moose also observe the day similarly.

In the Allegheny Aerie, Michael O. Burns, past grand worthy president, will be the Mothers' Day orator. In the Moose Temple, Penn avenue, an elaborate program has been arranged.

Community Mothers' Day exercises will be held on the South Side under the auspices of Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, and Division No. 2, Ladies' Auxiliary. County President James Kelly will speak.

The first Mothers' Day was observed May 9, 1907, when Miss Anna Jarvis, at her home in Philadelphia, invited a friend to remember with her the death of her mother just a year ago before. Before the next the country as Mothers' Day.

THREE CHOSEN AS ORATORS

Roy G. Getty, Regis J. Freund and Adolph F. Hokamp were selected as the winners of the second public speaking contest held for students of the Catholic High school of Pittsburgh, the contest being staged at Duquesne University last night.

Twelve students took part, the speakers being divided into three classes, first year, second year and third year, students. The judges were Brother Phillip, principal of the Catholic High school, Attorney J. Frank McKenna and Prof. Michel J. Connolly of the English department.

MAN ROBBED AT OWN DOOR

Beaten by three young men who attacked him at the entrance to his home early this morning, Lawrence Tobin, 56, of 13 Scott way, was robbed and left lying unconscious in the doorway.

Two hours later South Side police arrested three men in an automobile alleged to have been stolen in the downtown district. Those held as suspicious persons are Edward Nicholas, 23, of 2506 Larkins way; Samuel Milkovich, 22, of 109 South Twenty-sixth street, and Charles Sanicks, 24, of 716 Sarah street.

FATHER SEEKING SON GETS ORDER IN COURT

Newton H. Jenkins, Kingstown, Pa., seeking the custody of his 14-year-old son, Dal Gilbert Jenkins, has started habeas corpus proceedings. His counsel, A. M. Oliver, yesterday obtained a writ on George W. Gilbert, Stanhope street, Sheraden, uncle of the youth, to show cause why he should not deliver the lad to the father. Judge Josiah Cohen has fixed May 14 as the date for the hearing.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Announcements of Theater Activities Combined With News of Stars From Studios of Hollywood

Free-Lancing Claire Windsor Joins "Independent" Company For Role in "The Grain of Dust"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright 1928, King Features Syndicate.)

LOS ANGELES, May 12.

WITH so many excellent players free-lancing, the socalled "independent" companies have a selection of stars to choose from that must often make the "big" companies gnash their teeth. For instance, Tiffany-Stahl has been able to sign up Claire Windsor for the leading role in "The Grain of Dust." The picture will be an adaptation of the David Graham Phillips story, which was among the best sellers a few years back. It will be directed by George Archambaud. Claire has been busy as the proverbial bee since she and Bert Lytell agreed to disagree. Between screen and stage engagemnts she has very little time even for "Buddy" Rogers, who generally escorts her to whatever social functions she attends.

It will be many a week before Anna Q. Nilsson again will be able to play in pictures. The injury sustained in a fall from her horse has proven more serious than was at first suspected. The fact is that Anna Q. fractured her hip in the tumble and it will be some time before the hurt is healed—even though she gets "good breaks" with her bad break. Anna was cast in "Ned McCobb's Daughter" by Pathe, and was also scheduled to appear in another film. But now, very probably, substitutes will have to be found for both pictures.

Universal and Patsy Ruth Miller seem to have struck up quite an affinity. Patsy Ruth, fresh home from a vacation in Europe, has been loaned by Tiffany to "Uncle Carl" Laemmle's company for the feminine lead in "Leave It to Me." The picture is a comedy, as you will guess when you know that Glenn Tryon is the boy. Universal considers Tryon the greatest bet among the male comedians. When—and if—Universal produces "Broadway" in celluloid, Glenn is the chap scheduled for the part of the dancing cabaret kid.

If Camilla Horn's hubby permits her return to Hollwood, Camilla doesn't have to worry about work. The attractive little German girl, who is credited with a triumph in "The Tempest," can play in the film version of "Nightstick," if she hurries back within the next month. But still rumors persist that Camilla won't come back at least, not until they build a bridge across the Atlantic. And that will be too late.

Marion Davies is having all the fun she generally gets from a picture in making "Her Cardboard Lover." Her keen comedy sense aids her in putting laughs into the film, and also enables her to enjoy doing so. Incidentally, Marion will be seen in masculine apparel for the first time since "Beverly of Graustark," and if you thi[illegible] she doesn't look "cute" in a bell-hop's outfit, you've another guess coming.

Unless I am rather badly mistaken, James Cruze will postpone his independent film venture long enough to direct Thomas Meighan's next Caddo production. Jim is torn between his "art" and the terrifically attractive offer made by young Howard Hughes, Hollywood's "millionaire kid." Hughes is going at the film business in a big way, and while he doesn't know much about it so far, the boy will learn. That is, if the bankroll lasts. And they say that his income is some such ridiculous sum as 15—or is it 50—thousand each and every day, including Sundays. It is hard to get rid of that much even in pictures. Anyway, Hughes has made a good picture in "The Racket." It is the best Tom Meighan has had for ages.

Give Universal the palm! Why beat about the bush with "Marriage of Tomorrow," "Companionate Marriage" or similar half-way titles, when you can make a film and call it "Sex Appeal?" That's what Universal plans to do, under the direction of Ernst Laemmle, the president's son. But the production will have to wait until Ernst recovers from the amputation of three fingers, necessitated by injuries received in a recent motor accident.

FIRST KENNYWOOD PICNIC THURSDAY

With the opening of the picnic season less than a week away, Kennywood Park is ready to entertain a long list of outings, the number of which far exceeds any previous year, it is said. While the first of the season's outings will be held Thursday, Kennywood will be open Wednesday afternoon and evening, when pleasure seekers will be afforded a "pre view" of the playground before picnic crowds invade its spacious groves. Wednesday evening will be souvenir night at the dancing pavilion. Will Hill's dog and pony circus with Abe Goldstein, clown, are scheduled to open an extended engagement Thursday.

WIFE GOES TO SCOTLAND; HUSBAND ASKS DIVORCE

Claiming that his wife has deserted him and gone to Scotland to live, Thomas Gilmour, 105 East Fourteenth street, Homestead, filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court yesterday against Lidia Sarah Gilmour. Dorothy E. Gerditz, of the Fifth avenue apartments, sued Louis F. Gerditz, 5549 Mays

Marion Davies will be seen on the Penn screen next week in her new comedy, "The Patsy."

Ruth Taylor's smile is caused by the new hat having an accordeon pleat effect.

Richard Barthlemess again plays a mountain boy in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," in Stanley next week.

PLAY AND FILM FEATURES

"Wings," which begins its sixth and last week Monday in the Nixon, where it has been making new records for attendance, is a picture dealing with war in the air and many noted aviators of war fame are visualized in the course of the action. Merely to watch the evolutions of these daring birdmen proves a great thrill.

"The Family Upstairs" will be in the Pitt Theater next week. Anne Forrest, Gordon Anderson, Mabel Kroman, Gus Forbes, Ralph Morgan and others of the company take part in the comedy.

Monday evening the Alvin will open its doors to the picture drama, "The King of Kings," which comes to this playhouse for a brief engagement, with two performances daily. A feature will be the orchestra of 25 pieces.

Sally Phipps plays the leading feminine role in "Why Sailors Go Wrong," the screen attraction announced for the Davis next week. On the stage will be Brennan and Rogers as headliners.

Marion Davies, whose protean qualities as a dramatic actress and comedienne are well known to screen fans, has always ached to show her ability also as mimic. In her newest picture, "The Patsy," which comes to the Penn next week, she does impersonations of Pola Negri, Lillian Gish and Mae Murray.

Two leading women play with Richard Barthelmess in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," announced for the Stanley next week. They are Milly O'Day and Doris Dawson.

Bobby Henshaw, ukulele performer, will be a feature of the vaudeville bill next week in the Aldine. On the screen will be Laura LaPlante in "Finders Keepers."

In the Harris next week Roscoe Ails and his company will be the featured attraction in the vaudeville. The screen presentation will be "Midnight Rose," featuring Lila DePutti and Kenneth Harlan.

Viola Elliot, who will be seen in the Academy next week in "French Models," is featuring the dance of the seven veils.

Adolph Menjou's new starring production, "A Night of Mystery," is booked for the Grand next week.

William Boyd's new picture, "Skyscraper," is announced for presentation in the Olympic next week.

Broadus Erle, a boy violinist, will be the feature of the Sheridan Square stage bill the first half of next week. The picture will be "Why Sailors Go Wrong."

Bancroft Claims Beard-Growing Record

Whatever inconvenience George Bancroft, Paramount dramatic star, has experienced from his rapidly growing beard has been more than compensated for in his current starring picture, "The Drag Net." In the opening sequences of the picture Bancroft is the trim, clean shaven detective lieutenant. He later becomes a broken derelict, unkempt and unshaven.

Thirty-six hours after Bancroft finished a sequence in which he was perfectly clean shaven he had to appear before the camera as the down and out individual. He reported on the set with a scraggly growth of whiskers that it take some men a full week to cultivate. Now he is considering issuing a beard growing challenge to the other male players on the Paramount lot.

Vilma Banky Film Gets Change In Title

Vilma Banky's first starring picture following "Two Lovers," her farewell duet with Ronald Colemān, will be entitled "The Awakening" instead of "The Innocent" as previously announced by Samuel Goldwyn. It is an original story by Frances Marion.

In addition to Miss Banky, who is starred, the cast of "The Awakening" will include Walter Byron, young English screen player, who makes his first American appearance in the picture as Miss Banky's leading man; Louis Wolheim, fresh from "The Racket," and George Davis, the English comedian.

Victor Fleming is to direct the production.

BURSTING MAIN CAUSES FLOOD

Sixth and Wylie avenues offered an unusual sight to persons on their way to work at 7 o'clock this morning when a large main beneath the street paving broke and water gushed up between the paving blocks like a Yellowstone geyser.

Nearby thoroughfares were flooded, sewers being inadequate to care for the flood which swept in all directions from the apex at Sixth and Wylie. Rushing down Sixth avenue to Grant street, the swirling waters inconvenienced pedestrians and vehicular traffic.

Wylie down to Fifth at the Court House and out the other way as far as Tunnel street was flooded.

CALLS MODERNS PALE REBELS

The present day American may break the law because he does not see fit to respect it, but he is not an insurgent, such as was his ancestor, Dr. Thomas S. Baker said yesterday in addressing members of the College Club. He talked upon "American Public Opinion."

"This lawlessness does not come from sensitive regard for personal liberty. The modern American will not deny the government's right to regulate his affairs, although he may seek to avoid such regulations as may seem inconvenient. His ancestor, feeling himself the proprietor rather than the subject of the government, would have rebelled, he said.

Dr. Baker said that the American is becoming less and less disposed to vote, and for doing this may be too severely criticized. "The immense complexity of modern life and the economic pressure under which he lives, makes it impossible for the American to take a deep interest in the affairs of his country. He has too many more pressing matters to engage his mind," the speaker said.

Mother's Pal, Girl's Best Role

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WHERE'S Mama?"

How this call resounds the moment the children rush in from school, when Son and Daughter return from work, when Father reaches the house!

Father has his all-important place in the household, but after all, Mother makes home a real home.

Mother is just about the sweetest name, the most loved memory in the heart of every child, man and woman. The chances are, as the years pass, there will mingle with your grateful, loving memories of your mother acute remorse because you were not even kinder, more considerate and loving to her while you still had the chance.

When temptation has seemed most alluring many a girl has been saved from a fatal mis-step just by the steadying thought which finds expression in that eager call: "Where's Mama?"

MOTHERS are not always right. It would be foolish to pretend they are. There are mistaken, cruel and heartless parents. Just the same, the vast majority of them love their children dearly, and are making every effort, every sacrifice, to do everything they can for them.

Mothers really are endowed by Mother Nature with wondrous capacity for self-effacing love. This fact is proved even among the lower animals, where mother love is oftentimes heroic. And it reaches sublime heights in the self-sacrificing affection of normal human mothers.

The one thing you can pretty well count on is that your mother is your friend—your loyal, unfailing friend—and will be always, whether you bring her sorrow or joy. If you fail she will make every allowance, believe in your ultimate success, and will probably take the blame herself for any mistakes you make.

"MOTHER is a dear, but dreadfully old-fashioned," sighs 15-year-old Margot. For Margot's mother is firm against smoking, drinking and all-night parties as well as some other "modern innovations" for her daughter.

There are, however, several facts to be taken into consideration. Experience really does teach human beings some wisdom and judgment, else we would still be savages roaming the jungles.

Margot's mother may not know everything that her sophisticated young daughter has learned. But one thing she knows well, from experience and observation. She knows that the resources of the human body must be conserved and built up in youth if one is to be even moderately able to enjoy the later years. She does not wish her daughter to burn out her young life in tumultuous recreations before she has lived long enough to judge and enjoy life's real values.

When a mother keeps in touch, sincerely and sympathetically, with her daughter's ideas, ideals and opinions, and the daughter listens patiently to the more experienced, far-seeing counsel of her mother, those two form a wonderful combination of radical and conservative ideas, the outgrowth of which will be affectionate adjustment and compromise leading to the golden mean of practical wisdom, helping and satisfying both.

THAT is why it is wise and beneficial, as well as altogether delightful to be your mother's pal. What if she is not 100 per cent perfect! Are you? Is she not entitled to your proud love full measure running over for what she has done and is doing for your comfort, happiness and good?

The friendship of Lindbergh and his mother is typical. Each gives full consideration and credit to the other. You may be sure those two talk things over together and enjoy each other's confidence with understanding happiness.

SUNDAY, Mother's Day, affords you an opportunity to make your mother happy with flowers, a suitable gift, a telegram or letter—with the renewed expression of your tender regard. Sweeping aside syrupy sentimentality, let us make every day Mother's Day, a day in which to cherish and express in practical ways, gratitude for her unfailing tenderness and affection, which cared for us in babyhood, protected us throughout childhood and is amply rewarded if we grow into clean, straight, healthy, happy, dependable men and women.

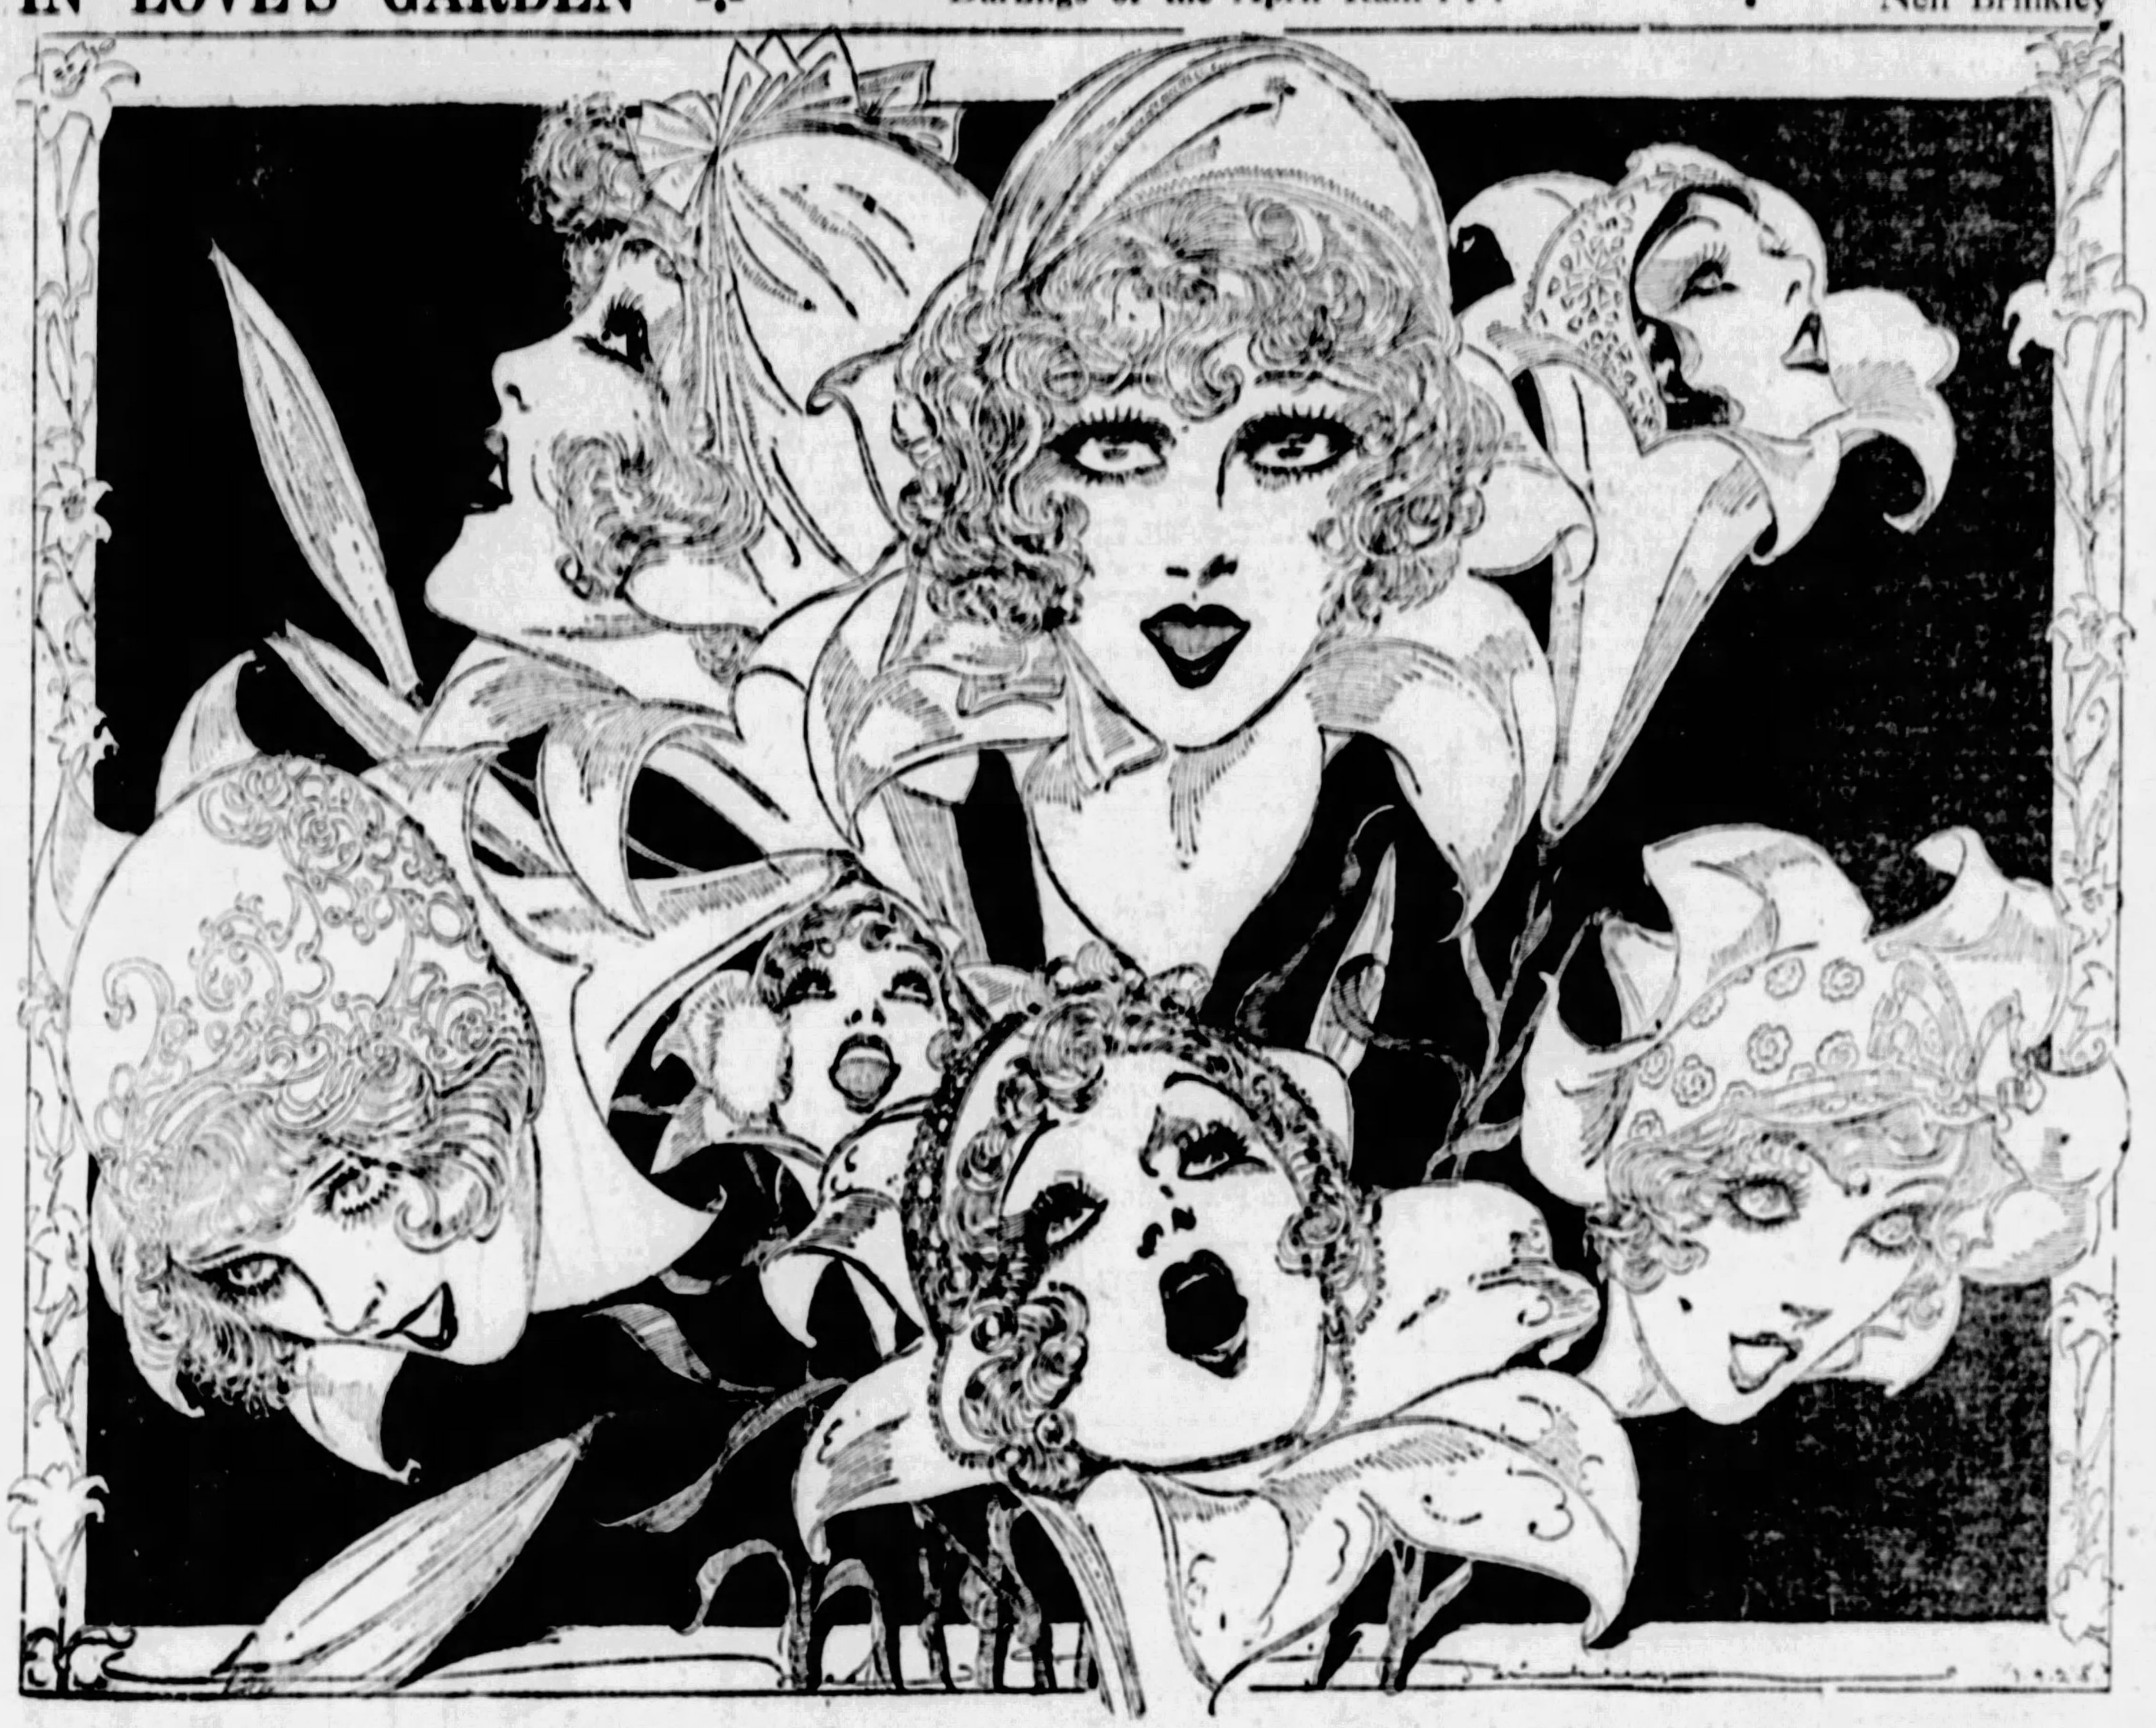
IN LOVE'S GARDEN

"Darlings of the April Rain . . ."

Drawn by
Nell Brinkley



SPRING is singing in Love's garden too. On the city streets she lifts her voice now, singing color songs from ravishing florist windows, resting, refreshing and soothing the tired Winter heart. In the country she is coaxing the wild crocus to thrust his purple and white cups through the grass, and leading the lively orchestras of birds. On the mountains she is painting the skies, and on the sea-side she is painting boats! All over the country she is mothering soft little breezes, tying their sun-bonnet strings, letting them go bare-foot and sending them out to play. She is linking arms with old gentlemen, singing mad songs in their ears and making them feel like kicking up their heels and taking back some of their years. Her "Come Out" song is putting the dream of vacations in young heads. And in old ones, too. In the magic of her singing Romance lifts a white arm and wild eye over the rim of a purple sea that is no particular sea at all, and beckons you to have a crack at adventure and leave subways to thunder and serpentine on in their dragon-way, without you.

Ah! but in Love's garden, where flowers are girls: in flowery, showery Cupid's garden where the flowers have voices and sing Spring's own songs! There she sings her sweetest, her painfullest. I mean in a manner most fatal to the heart.

Would you like to stroll in there, young man, if you can find it? Where Dan is host, and Spring is welcomed guest. Where every flower is a girl and every girl is a very flower. If you do you will hear a Spring song there that will send you out upon the world quite mad and with a heart melted in your chest. Sometimes Cupid wounds with an arrow—but in the Spring he does it with song.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

U.S. Senator From New York

How to Avoid Undernourishment, Cause of Much Ill-Health

A BREAKDOWN in the nourishment of the body is the most serious affliction that can come to any person, but, what is far worse, it means the destruction of the first line of defense.

DR. COPELAND

You are not likely to have tuberculosis, Bright's disease, heart disease, a dangerous form of anemia, or any chronic illness, if the nutrition is good. But when it falls below normal, danger is ahead.

Even though the quality and quantity of the food are among the factors having most to do with nutrition, it is not among the poor, with little money to buy food, that we get all our examples of undernourishment. The rich and the educated are just as likely to be victims.

Chesterton spoke of the "ignorance of the educated." In knowledge of foods there is poverty among the rich. A man may know everything except how to live. He may be rich in houses and lands, but poor in knowing what to eat and what not to eat.

In the selection of foods, it is necessary not only to have enough to eat, but also to have foods that supply the essential elements for growth, repair any proper nourishment. In this matter, quality is even more important than quantity.

What are the required elements for proper nourishment?

There must be a sufficient supply of protein food of high quality. Most of this comes from animal sources, but not all of it by any means. The vegetables and cereals contribute a high percentage. Of course milk does, too, but I am including it in the animal foods.

There cannot be a properly nourished body without fat, the mineral salts and the important vitamins. Really, it should not be difficult to choose the absolutely necessary foods, but in thousands of homes they are not provided. Coffee, bread and sweets, good as they are in the right place, can never be complete substitutes for milk, cereals, fresh fruit and green vegetables.

There are certain food habits that make for undernourishment. The first of these is irregularity in eating. Another is eating between meals, particularly of things that do the body no good, but which interfere with the enjoyment of the real foods served at the regular meals. Eating too fast, without chewing the food thoroughly, is another and a common fault.

Worry, overwork, loss of sleep, hours in poorly ventilated rooms—all these are factors in breaking down resistance and producing undernourishment. Overactivity of body and mind has its effects upon the general welfare.

Neglect of the skin, failure of kidney and bowel elimination, avoidance of water drinking, and overlooking anything having to do with personal hygiene are other matters which bear upon the nourishment of the body. Neglect of the teeth, tonsils and other physical defects is a mistake. You cannot afford to disregard these matters.

I wish I could impress upon you the necessity for keeping your body nourished, firm, elastic, and fit in every way. When you order your life in such a way as to avoid undernourishment you will be raising your resistance to disease and promoting your chance of long life.

Answers to Health Queries

E. P. D. Q.—What do you advise for pimples?

X. Y. Z. Q.—What causes a red nose?

A.—Poor circulation, indigestion and constipation are usually at fault for this trouble.

H. M. A. Q.—I am a girl of 15 troubled with bowlegs? What would help this condition? Would rubbing or exercise be of benefit?

A.—See an orthopedist for his advice. Of course bowlegs are more easily remedied in childhood than in later years.

Horoscopes

Sunday, May 13

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury of certain phases of progress, with activity in these directions, but there are also omens of sinister conditions and treachery, which should be guarded against. Shun new projects and sign writings cautiously. There are benefits for the church and clergy.

Those whose birthday it is may look for some successes during the year, but these are threatened by sinister aspects of fraud. Postpone new ventures that are uncertain and sign papers with caution.

A child born on this day may have certain fine talents and principles, but will need early training to correct peculiar tendencies of mind or moral vision.

A man by his own acts goes down and down, or moves upward, like the digger of a well or the builder of a wall. —SANSKRIT PROVERB.

Monday, May 14

Monday's astrological forecast shows the depressions and postponements due to an adverse figure of Saturn, but these may be somewhat nullified by a philosophical state of mind or through thoughts turned to scientific, occult or unconventional pursuit. Also domestic, social or romantic affairs may engage the attention or prove compensatory.

Those whose birthday it is may have some depressing or disappointing experiences during the year, but these may be offset by pleasant personal affairs or be alleviated by occult, metaphysical or higher thought or experimentation.

A child born on this day may have a leaning toward experiment or research into higher levels of thought or with nature's finer forces. It may have obstacles to confront and hard labor, but personal matters will be compensatory.

Food Value of Liver

A doctor who has been studying food values announces that liver is particularly rich in the most valuable of the vitamins (A), which is supposed by many to exist only in butter. For about 10 cents, he says, you can buy a piece of liver which is equal in nourishment to half a dollar's worth of butter.

ALWAYS DEAD TIRED?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? You are poisoned. The bowels are clogged and liver inactive. Take the famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients and olive oil. They act easily upon the bowels, free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Be beautiful. Have rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy that make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. Know them by their olive color, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Sensible Care of One's Face

By MARIA JERITZA

SO many powders, perfumes, lotions, astringents, cold creams, rouges! No wonder the modern woman in search of complexion loveliness finds it hard to choose from this embarrassment of riches!

The essential thing is to study your own skin, then use common sense in choosing the complexion aids you need. The average woman is inclined to believe that great beauties go through with a complicated regime each day, and use all kinds of expensive preparations to keep lovely. As a matter of fact, if you were to talk to any really beautiful woman of the screen, stage or in private life, the chances are you would learn that she gives very sensible, simple daily care to her complexion and figure, her hair, hands and eyes. But she gives them this needful care systematically, always bearing in mind that beauty is based on health.

MY own toilet shelf contains about half a dozen simple toilet aids, which I vary slightly from time to time with the changing seasons. As you know, I am a great believer in olive oil, sweet almond oil, lemons, the finest grade of massage alcohol and pure eau de cologne as aids to the complexion.

My skin is the average, neither very oily nor dry. I find that one cold cream, with an almond base, is quite sufficient to cleanse and nourish it. I like best a mild liquid tonic-astringent to freshen my face and firm and close pores. I use pure soap liberally in my daily hot bath, but never on my face. I find my morning tepid tub and my evening hot bath, not only cleansing, but delightfully refreshing and an invaluable aid in keeping my skin clear.

MY operatic work in winter, with daily swimming in summer, keeps me physically supple and fit. But were I leading a physically inactive life, I would practice daily setting-up exercises conscientiously, and enjoy them. My walk is always a part of the day's program.

I never use a hand lotion on my face, because the skin of the hands is less sensitive than that of the face and needs different treatment.

The more dry your skin, the more nourishing cold cream it can absorb to advantage. Whatever your type, you cannot hope for a good complexion unless your blood is pure, your bodily elimination perfect, your thinking serene.

As sure as two plus two are four, wise care of the skin will, in time, bring a lovely, clear complexion, provided the health is good.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

ELGAR'S march, "Pomp and Circumstance," of British structure, and Mecham's "American Patrol," representative of American tunes, will be played by the United States Navy Band, directed by Charles Benter, during the program to be broadcast through stations associated with the Blue Network, including KDKA, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Berlioz's "Roman Carnival" overture will be included in the program. It will be followed by Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. II;" "A Day Aboard a Man-o'-War," a descriptive number, "Garden of Roses," a waltz by Brooks, and "Th Star-Spangled Banner."

The National Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Cesare Sodero, is a new Saturday evening feature for Red Network listeners. Tonight its program will be heard over WCAE at 9 o'clock.

The program will open with Brahms' "Tragic Overture." It is one of that master's greatest works. Immediately following will be Haydn's "Symphony in E Flat," which is lighter in vein.

The second movement of Tschaikowsky's "Fifth Symphony," which is also included in the broadcast, is similar to much of this composer's work and of a somber and gloomy character. The mysterious opening theme as expressed by the clarinets suggest the leaden, deliberate tread of feet. The beauty of the Andante, the second movement, is twice broken in upon by this initial somber theme. Three short pieces by the Italian composer, Martucci, will conclude the program.

The Webster Hall Club will present its usual Saturday night novelty program over KQV at 11 o'clock. The club entertainers include Dewey , Bergman, Wes Vaughn, Lorin Parsons, Johnny Ingram and Charles Gosnell. All listeners to this club are eligible for membership cards, which are mailed weekly from Webster Hall.

HURLED UNDER HARROW, SHARON FARMER INJURED

SHARON, Pa., May 12.—Thrown from a horse and hurled beneath a disc harrow, Michael Ledney, 55, farmer of Five Points, was severely injured yesterday.

WOMEN GUILTY IN FAR FLUNG DRUG PLOT

Joseph Pandaglio, a grocer, 209 Mulbery street, Scottdale; his wife, Mrs. Agata Pandaglio; his son, Benny Pandaglio; his sister-in-law Mary Vigtianti, and four other men and women were convicted yesterday in the Federal district court for conspiring to violate the Harrison narcotic act.

It was a sweeping victory for the government forces, who produced testimony showing trafficing of drugs, in a "dope" plot that had ramifications extending from the water front in New York to Scottdale and other places in Western Pennsylvania. It was the most striking case of its kind ever heard in the court.

James Newasky, a constable of Everson, Fayette county, a defendant, was acquitted, and Judge F. P. Schoonmaker gave the jury binding instructions to return a verdict of acquittal for Pasquale Di Stephano and John Sicco, both of Scottdale.

The others convicted were Tobias Murff, Domonic Torch, Mary Hodge of Homestead, known as "Big Marie," and her sister Elsie Johnson.

Since the indictment in September three defendants entered pleas of guilty, among them Anthony Klavon, of Bloomfield, who six weeks ago was sentenced two years to the Federal penitentiary, Atlanta, Ga., Wednesday, he was brought into court as a government witness. When asked to go on the witness stand he refused and loudly announced that he would rot in jail" before giving any testimony. He was taken back to jail to await his removal to Atlanta.

Another defendant, Pasquale Napoli, New York, who has charge of stevedore gangs in New York Harbor, escaped trial at this time by contesting his remova to Pittsburgh. His brother, Ralph Napoli, also a defendant, is a fugitive.

The investigation that led to the indictment was directed by William T. Duffy, government narcotc agent in charge of the Pittsburgh district.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

McKechnie's Capture of Wilson Shows He Was Wide Awake When He Made O'Farrel-Harper Trade—Money Probably Figured in Deal, Adding One More to Long List of Stars Philadelphia Bosses Have Sold for Cash.

THOSE who did not know Bill McKechnie well enough to feel assured that he was too smart to be worsted in that O'Farrell-Harper deal with John McGraw of New York, and that he was not going to be left without a catcher of the kind he sorely needed, probably have altered their views about Bill's sagacity since reading the announcement of the second dicker put over by the Wilkinsburg citizen, whereby he has obtained Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies, a man who was understood not to be on the market.

Jimmy Wilson.

Wilson is the best catcher in the National League unless Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs may be given an even break with him, and in acquiring Wilson to fill O'Farrell's place, and also getting a left-hand hitting outfielder to slam home runs into the short stand in right field at St. Louis, McKechnie has made a marked gain in the pennant fight.

BILL got none the worse of the first deal, when he obtained so valuable a player as Harper for an ex-manager of his own club—and the presence of former managers under a new boss does not appear to be conducive to harmony on that team—but now he has stepped out and obtained a star catcher who is even better than O'Farrell as a catcher and who out-hit Bob last year by 11 points though on a tail-end team where there was no inducement to hustle.

The announcement that the Cards got Wilson for a couple of rookies and the promise to follow up with the Decatur-Kelley-Hurst thing is, of course, pure fiction. You can gamble your last chip that it took a wheelbarrow load of money to get Wilson, inasmuch as the Philadelphia owners turned down an offer of four players and cash made by the Pittsburgh club during the winter, and when asked to put their top price on the player said he was not for sale.

IT IS not the buyers or would-be buyers who make such deals a bad thing for baseball. More power to them if they can strengthen their teams and please their patrons by digging deep into their jeans for big sums with which to purchase worth-while talent. It is the sellers, who are wrong, and the owners of the Phillies have been pulling this stuff and ignoring the right of their patrons for so long by selling star players for money that it is a wonder even Quaker City fans continue to tolerate it. Since he became president of the Phillies, William F. Baker has sold for cash practically every star player that happened to land on his team. It has been a case of putting the dollar mark before sports and the rights of his patrons to get the money and never mind about trying to build up winning teams.

A GLANCE back over the list of players whom Baker has sold for money considerations, or largely so, instead of holding them until he could build up a winning club for his patrons, shows such names as Grover Alexander, Bill Killefer, Milton Stock, Dave Bancroft, Eppa Rixey, Butch Henline, Jimmy Ring, Honus Lobert, Casey Stengel, Johnny Rawlings, Lee Meadows, Irish Meusel, George Harper and now Jimmy Wilson.

Some of the above have passed out of the big leagues but they were at their best when the Phills bosses sold them.

BURLEIGH GRIMES, leading pitcher of the Pittsburgh club, who has won four of his six games and has captured his last three contest in a row, has been selected to do the hurling for the Bucs in Brooklyn tomorrow.

Bill Terry.

The Pirates and Dodgers have moved up the game booked for September 28 and will make a special trip to Brooklyn tonight to play it off.

GRIMES did not wait for the departure of the Pirate party to night, however. He was shipped ahead to New York by Manager Bush early this morning, so as to enable him to get a good night's rest in a New York hotel instead of a sleeping car and be in better form for tomorrow. Manager Bush will take 20 players on the trip.

THE following was received from N. Stolurang, St. Paul:

"While a visitor to your city, and reading your column containing an article about (T. N. T.) Bill Terry, as he was known in the American Association, some of the feats we in St. Paul were wont to witness, when T. N. Terry came with the Toledo gang, were recalled to my mind.

"In those days Toledo's ball club consisted of Terry. The fans going out to see how far he would crack the old pill.

"The right field fence in the St. Paul grounds is about the same distance from the plate as the right field wing is at Forbes Field, and T. N. Terry used to rattle that fence with regularity. But that St. Paul right fielder learned to play him, and the best Bill could get was a single, on what ordinarily is a three-base hit.

"IN those days Terry alternated between pitching and first basing, but he was always a better hitter than he was a pitcher or initial sacker. No one ever belived Bill would become a first baseman, at least as a regular. I recall on one occasion Toledo in coming to St. Paul for a series had an open date. The team stopped off at Fariibault, Minn., a town of 10,000, 30 miles south of St. Paul. Happening to be in the town, it was only natural that to the park I would go. T. N. Terry was first basing. Toledo had some recruit in the box who wasn't doing any too well and the coaching of Terry to his pitcher was irksome to the small town fans, who were taunting him about his own pitching.

"NOW when Terry was a pitcher he had great speed, possibly as great as George Pipgrass or Lefty Grove. The small town bugs had never seen him pitch, although they knew he alternated in the box. So in the sixth inning T. N. T. said casually to his taunters that he would now proceed to the box and show them that there wasn't a hitter on the Faribault team. Into the box he stepped and the way he whizzed the

THE Pirates did not compete with the Giants for the services of Catcher Bob O'Farrell, regardless of a report circulated yesterday in this connection. The Pittsburgh club did not know that O'Farrell was on the market, according to a statement made by an official of the Pittsburgh club.

Local directors still seek a right-hand hitting catcher of major-league ability, and they doubtless would have gone far in the matter of procuring Bob, but Bush and Dreyfuss say they were not consulted by the St. Louis people and therefore had no knowledge that an opportunity existed toward the annexation of the dependable receiver and dangerous righthand sticker.

O'Farrell, perhaps, would have been more valuable to the Pirates than to the Giants. Francis Hogan has been catching de luxe ball for McGraw, and even if O'Farrell is a fine batter it's a sure bet that he won't be any better at the plate than Young Hogan was in the series just completed. After they had seen the big kid knocking numerals off the scoreboard with his savage wallops, the Pirates are convinced that Francis is a real slugger.

BUCS NEED CATCHER

The Oaklanders have a crying need for a dependable backstop who swings from the right side. Now that McGraw has three right-hand

LONDON, May 12.—(AP.)—Walter Hagen, who has been criticized adversely in the past by the British press, was acclaimed today for his dramatic comeback in capturing the British open golf championship after his defeat by Archie Compston in a special match.

Having watched Hagen win the open for the third time the British experts were wondering whether another American, Glenna Collett, would have the British women's golf championship in her possession at the end of next week.

Hagen's capture of the British open made the seventh American victory in nine years and there were regrets and heart searchings over the British failure, but no excuses were offered and Hagen's superiority was universally acknowledged.

Commenting on Hagen's recovering after being beaten by Compston 18 down, the Times admiringly said: "Any other man would have been at least temporarily crushed by that fearful beating, but to Hagen it acted only as a spur. Of the big men he has incontestably proved himself the biggest."

"No finer display of sheer determination to overcome difficulties was ever witnessed," Sporting

WALT THE GREAT FLASHES REMARKABLE "COMEBACK" FROM SLUMP

Only two weeks ago, Walter Hagen, who in his time has held about every important title that it is possible for a golf professional to win, stepped off a boat in England, and, with little chance for practice, entered a 72-hole match with Archie Compston of England for the unofficial world professional championship and a side-bet of £750 and suffered a humiliating defeat, 18 up and 17 to play. Yesterday, Hagen came through a close fight in which several of the world's best players threatened to beat him out and won the British open championship at Sandwich, England, for the third time in seven years. His great reversal of form, with a little bit of practice, demonstrated his remarkable championship qualities as never before.

Tunney to Leave For Camp Today

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney, champion of the heavyweights, will leave today for Speculator, N. Y., to open training for his title defense against Tom Heeney, the plodding Anzac, in July.

Tunney will work lightly in the Adirondacks until three or four weeks before his engagement with Heeney. He plans little boxing until a month before the fight. For the time being, Gene will endeavor to pare down the 10 pounds of excess weight on his frame.

TWO ROOKIE CATCHERS RELEASED BY GIANTS

CHICAGO, May 12.—(INS.)—The New York Giants have disposed of two of their rookie catchers, following the acquisition of Bob O'Farrell from St. Louis. Bill Haeffner was sold outright to Buffalo and Al Sphrer, who was with Wilkes-Barre last year, will be sent to a minor league team to be announced later.

FIGHT RESULTS

At New York—Phil Scott defeated Roberto Roberti, 10 rounds; Big Boy Peterson defeated Rudi Wagner, 10 rounds; Pierre Charles and Arthur DeKuh drew, 10 rounds; George La Rocco defeated Johnny Grosso, 10 rounds.

At Toronto—Frenchy Belanger defeated Frisco Grande 10 rounds.

At Kingston, N. C.—Addison Warren knocked out Pedro Corri, 6 rounds.

At Omaha—Sammy Baker won by a technical knockout over Billy Drake, 9 rounds.

DARTMOUTH LOSES

HANOVER, N. H., May 12.—(AP.)—The pitching of Walker of Penn was too much for the big Green yesterday and Dartmouth lost its first game in the quadrangular league, [illegible] to 3.

Cards Get Wilson, Phillies' Catcher

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Cardinals obtained Jimmy Wilson, veteran Phillie catcher, in a trade for several minor league players. Wilson will replace Bob O'Farrell, who has been traded to the Giants.

The trade was anounced after the second inning of yesterday's game with the Phillies. Wilson, who was catching, immediately changed uniforms and went to the Cardinal bench.

In exchange for Wilson, the Cardinals give up Virgil Davis, catcher. They also transfered their option on Homer Peel of Houston, to the Phils, the transfer to be completed at the close of the season.

As another part of the deal, Donald Hurst, first sacker from the Rochester club, another Cardinal farm, will go to the Phils immediately, in exchange for Pitcher Decatur and First Basemen Kelley of the Philadelphia club.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

DONIE BUSH played smart baseball and lost in the concluding game with the Giants. It was no superior strategy on the part of the Giants, but that ever-present element—luck—that took the third clash away from the Pirates.

MELVIN OTT turned in a spectacular catch of Paul Waner's long smash with Brother Lloyd and Adams on second and first and none out in the third. The Buccos were trailing by one run at the time. Bush could have ordered a bunt with assurance that the score would at least be tied, but it was good baseball to play for a big inning at this early stage, so the league's premier hitter was told to sock one. And that's just what Paul did.

IF YOU are going to play percentage the advantage surely is there with P. Waner at the plate. And Paul's smash looked like the pay ball until Ott backed close to the fence to spear it with one hand. On many occasions the same ball would have scored two runners besides putting the hitter on second.

ALL things considered the Pirates did right well against the Giants. Much was printed about the weakened condition of the invaders, but there was a lot of trouble on the other side of the house, too. Kremer and Hill have both been on the rocks, while Earl Smith has not been right since he pulled a ligament in one of his legs at Cincinnati three weeks ago.

SMITH generally is at the top of his game against the Polo Grounders. Earl loves to play against the team with which he made his first bid to fame. He was eager to take an active part in the big series, but his injured leg was badly swollen.

THE Pirates and Cubs, by playing four interesting games in Los Angeles during the spring training season, gave baseball a tonic in California the like of which had never been felt by the Native Sons.

SKIPPER BILL M'KECHNIE seems to have put over a master stroke now that he has annexed Catcher Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies. Wilson is as good as the next catcher in the league, both as a receiver and a batsman. Bill wanted a good southpaw hitter in his outfield. He landed George Harper and then reached out for Wilson, without giving away any regular.

THE Hollywood Stars moved into first place in the Coast League race on last Sunday by winning both ends of a doubleheader with the San Francisco Seals. A new record for attendance in the league was established at this spectacle, more than 26,000 fans gathering at Wrigley Field. The Buccos and Bruins played to almost as many on their last day in Los Angeles, but something like 9,000 in the stands were women, who were admitted free.

DUTCH REUTHER has won five in a row for the Seals while Elmer Jacobs has won four for the same team without sustaining a defeat. Wilbur Cooper is pitching well for the Oakland club, champions of the circuit.

Martinsburg Not To Play Ball On Sunday

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., May 12.—The Martinsburg Blue Sox baseball club of the Blue Ridge League will play no Sunday games either abroad or at home this season, directors voted last night after a discussion of the question. It had been voted earlier not to stage any at-home Sunday games because of pronounced sentiment against the practice as evidenced in discussion last season when the management put on three games; but the question as to playing away from home on Sundays had not been raised.

The directors also voted to make every Monday game at home a "Ladies' Day" when ladies will be admitted free both to grounds and grandstand.

Boys under 12, potential baseball fans, will be accorded special privileges this year also in the form of a pass and membership in the "Knot Hole Gang." Upon recommendation of a reputable citizen, any boy under 12 will be given a season pass, providing he signs an agreement and lives up to it to be sportsmanlike, abstain from the use of tobacco and profane language, and be obedient to parents and employers.

Pitt, Tech Teams Busy

By JESS CARVER.

HALF a thousand or more athletes, some of whom will some day grace great college and university varsity teams will compete today in the annual Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League track and field championships in the Pitt Stadium. Washington High of Washington, Pa., will be on hand to defend its title, won by a decisive margin in 1927.

The outcome of today's carnival appears decidedly uncertain from this post of observation. Four and possible six schools are expected to make a strenuous fight for the honor held by Hank Day's team. In addition to Washington, South Brownsville, Beaver Falls, New Castle, Greensburg and Beaver may be considered as formidable contenders, some more so than others.

Certain it is that the margin that Washington held last spring over the runnerup Beaver team will be materially cut when today's program is complete. Many high school track critics agree that 25 points will win the meet, and that the scoring will be evenly divided.

36 TEAMS ENTERED

Some 36 schools are entered, a few less than last year. From the Ohio Valley will come Beaver, Beaver Falls, New Brighton and Rochester. New Castle will represent the more northerly section of the district. Monongahela, South Brownsville, Washington, Greensburg, Jeannette, Scottdale, Uniontown, Oakmont and New Kensington will be other out-of town contestants.

City schools are not expected to cut much of a figure in the scoring, though Schenley High may grab off one or two first places, in the century and hurdles.

The meet is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p. m., with 14 events, seven track and seven field and the mile relay championship, on the program.

U. P.'S-TARTANS MEET

Westminster and Carnegie Tech will clash in a dual meet in the Tartan Bowl, the meet having been shifted here from New Wilmington because of the soft condition of the United Presbyterian's track. The Tech Plebes will face Kiski at the same time.

Tech has lost both of the meets engaged in so far, having been defeated by both Geneva and by Pitt. Coach Halferty's athletes see a splendid opportunity to annex a victory today, even though the United Presbyterians are considered strong.

Both the Pitt varsity and freshman teams are at State College for a dual meet with Penn State's Lions this afternoon. The Panther tennis team engages the Navy at Annapolis in the final match of the Eastern invasion.

Tech's net team ends its Eastern jaunt with a duel with Penn State today.

Other track meets in the district include the Bethany-West Virginia meet at Morgantown; the sectional try-out for the West Virginia state championship and the Geneva-Grove City fracas at Grove City.

Gavuzzi Out of Race

FREMONT, O., May 12.—(AP.)—Andrew Payne of Claremore, Okla., is in first place again in C. C. Pyle's Los Angeles to New York marathon. The Oklahoman went into first place in elapsed time when Peter Gavuzzi of Southampton, Eng., was definitely forced out of the race yesterday from the effects of an ulcerated tooth.

The Britisher was picked up by the race patrol car 25 miles west of here yesterday afternoon and brought into Fremont. Gavuzzi stated that trouble with his teeth had kept him from eating anything but liquid foods for the last two weeks and that he had become so weak that there was nothing for him to do but drop out. Payne's elapsed time is 444:48:05.

John Salo of Passaic kept up the dizzy pace he has set for the past few days and led the pack into this place in 8:58:43 for the long hike of 64.7 miles from Wauseon. The Finn has an elapsed time of 468:52:05 for the 2,689.2 miles. Salo moved up to second place in the elapsed time by the withdrawal of Gavuzzi.

Louis Perella of Albany, N. Y., and Frank Von Fluc of Kerman, Cal., ran a dead heat for second place, traveling the distance in 9:41:43.

Hagen Praised By British

Life said. Referring to the Hagen-Compston match, the paper declared that Hagen's performance at Sandwich was "the most dramatic comeback in the history of the game."

Sentence after sentence in this vein was written by golf experts and editorial writers on Hagen's play.

Hagen was followed home by Gene Sarazen, another pro from the United States, who needed only 294 for his 72 holes, 73 in the morning and the same in the afternoon. Archie Compston, British leader, also finished with a pair of 73's for a score of 295 to take third place.

The other two Americans remaining in the competition to the bitter end also finished "in the money," Jim Barnes going into a tie for sixth and Bill Mehlhorn finishing ninth.

The Prince of Wales put the seal of royalty on Hagen's artistry as he handed him the famous trophy which was won by Bobby Jones last year and the year before and with Hagen's victory today has been in the hands of golfers from the United States in seven of the last eight years.

"I congratulate that fine sportsman, Walter Hagen," said the Prince in presenting the cup.

HAS GREAT RECORD

Hagen's victory gives him the sensational record of three victories, one second and one third in the British classics since 1922, when he won for the first time over this same Royal St. George course.

Three strokes behind Jose Jurado, the Argentine, Hagen went out steadily and confidently to play himself into the lead by a stroke at the end of the third round and a two-stroke lead when all the returns were in.

The bronzed, boyish, almost cherubic Sarazen, was the last threat. Jurado, a featherweight with a lot of nerve, slipped from his leading position of the morning to a tie with Barnes and Aubrey Boomer for sixth place.

JURADO FIGHTER

The wee Buenos Aires pro lost none of his popularity as he faded from the picture under the gruelling test. The marvel to those who watched him play was not that he slipped but that he stayed so long among the giants of the game.

To Jim Barnes, who has also won the title in years gone by, went the honor of having the best round of the closing day. His 71 was a great performance and landed him well among the first ten when he seemed doomed to finish far back after taking 76 in the morning and with the nightmare of an 81 brought over from Thursday.

ball past the boys was marvelous. He struck out eight of the 12 batters, then turned to the fans and asked them how they liked it.

WITH lawn tennis under way for what promises to be a remarkable season, the old question as to the proper method of training for the great champions and title contenders is being asked again.

But how are ordinary mortals to reach a satisfactory decision on the subject when the champions themselves are unable to agree?

Helen Wills.

FOR instance, Miss Helen Wills, who is expected to a great showing abroad this season, says that training for lawn tennis is not to be thought of under the same system governing training for track and field events or football contests. "It is unnecessary to train, follow certain rules and eat, think and live tennis," she says.

This opinion was expressed years ago by such then famous lights as Bob Wrenn and Beals Wright. Bill Tilden, on the other hand, says that a tennis player who desires to stand the strain of a long, hard tournament season must train or fail. He refuses to pay any attention to any young player who refuses to follow his system.

Pretty hard for the average outsider to make a decision in view of the fact that both Miss Wills and Tilden have been rather fairly successful in the net game, following different systems.

ROBERTI LOSES TO PHIL SCOTT

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—Phil Scott, Great Britain's heavyweight gift to Knute Hansen, hammered out a cleancut victory over Roberto Roberti, mammoth Italian in the main 10-round bout on the Bronx Hospital heavyweight charity show here last night. Scott, who was knocked down seven times and finally out by Hansen in his first fight here, fought a masterly battle outboxing the Italian in every round and clipping him neatly with solid counter punches every time the giant Roberti lumbered into him.

Roberti never was able to hit Scott solidly with his ponderous swings and heavy smashes aimed in the general direction of the body. Roberti's eye and mouth were cut and his nose was bleeding as Scott hammered him in the final round. The Italian was on the verge of a knockout when the final bell rang.

GRAYS BATTLE STARS TONIGHT

By TOM BIRKS.

With the prospect of seeing Martin Dehigo, the new Cuban star in action, together with Johnny Beckwith, followers of the Homestead Grays are eager for the battle with the Eastern League all-stars which is scheduled for Forbes Field at 6:15 this evening.

These two new stars demonstrate the offensive and defensive part of the Posey aggregation. Beckwith's terrific hitting is keeping the Grays in front while Dehigo is classed as one of the best fielders in the country.

George Lees and Frank Mills are expected to take care of the receiving end of the game for the stars, with Henie Boll playing third and Walter Waite covering the shortfield.

ANITA PEABODY SHOWS FINE FORM IN WIN

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 12.—(AP.)—While Payne Whitney's Victorian was showing the way to a fast field of derby eligibles in the rich Preakness at Pimlico yesterday, Anita Peabody, another promising candidate for the Kentucky classic, was living up to expectations at the Downs track.

A top-heavy favorite, the fleet filly by Luke McLuke, out of La Daphine, won the $1,600 Lebanon purse for 2-year-old fillies in easy style, while her owners, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Mertz, looked on. Piloted by Chick Lang, slated to have the leg on her stable mate, Reigh Count, in the derby, Anita Peabody covered the six furlongs in 1:13 2-5, leading Miss Lee and Perle D'Or to the wire.

The victory of the Hertz filly followed a gratifying workout over the Derby route in the morning by Reigh Count. Anita Peabody is being pointed for the Kentucky Oaks, but is nominated for the Derby, and it is considered more than possible that she will be in the parade May 19.

GRID STAR HURT

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 12.—(AP.)—Earl Snow, 19, captain of the 1928 William Penn High football eleven, and a member of the track team, suffered a probable fracture of a vertebra of his back while practicing the pole vault, it was disclosed after an examination in a local hospital. His pole broke while he was making the vault, throwing Snow to the ground.

Victorian Wins in Classic

PIMLICO, Md., May 12.—(AP.)—Victorian, Harry Payne Whitney's bay son of Whiskbroom, II, and Prudery won the rich Preakness stake yesterday in a whipping finish so close that the immense crowd witnessing the feature was left in doubt as to the result.

Toro, E. B. McLean's entry, lost only by a nose after coming up in the stretch and passing Victorian at one time, only to have the Whitney colt forge up again at the finish.

By the victory Mr. Whitney retained the famous Woodlawn vase, prized racing trophy since 1860 and at stake in the Preakness again through the courtesy of Mr. Whitney who held it by reason of Bostonian's Preakness victory last year. It was the third time a Whitney horse had won the classic, Broomspun having brought the prize to the Whitney stable in 1921.

The race this year had a gross value of $71,025 and was worth $60,000 net to the winner.

"Sonny" Workman, riding Victorian, was the winning factor in the close finish. Victorian, after quitting the pace came into the stretch well in the lead. Eddie Ambrose brought Toro up from behind and 50 yards from the finish he had the son of The Porter-Brocatelle past the Whitney horse. Then Workman apparently caught him napping, and Victorian, with a display of courage under the gruelling drive, regained the half length and in the final stride pushed ahead to win by a nose.

Two lengths and a half behind Toro came Seagram stable's Canadian colt Solace. Ridden by L. Pichon the son of Trojan-Bellsolar ran a smashing race and though outrun in the early stages he was gradually gaining on the leaders at the end.

Strolling Player, the imported son of Grand Parade and Commediene, entered by Salubria stable, finished four lengths furthre back.

Distraction, favored by some in the pre-race dope stayed second in the rununing until the turn into the stretch but there he tired badly. The New York contingent whose enthusiasm for the Rancocas stable colt, Nassak, was a factor in making the Sinclair horse the favoriate met disappointment. Nassak never was a serious factor, getting in close quarters on the back stretch and finishing eleventh.

MATINEE CLUB ELECTS

C. L. Saxton was named president of the Schenley Matinee Club last night at the annual meeting held in the Hotel Henry. Other officers elected were: Frank R. Evans and John A. Elliott, vice presidents; J. D. Callery, treasurer; D. G. McDonald, secretary and general manager; George Evens, F. C. Beinhauer, A. M. Leib, B. B. McGinniss, D. H. Shull, W. J. Moore, George F. Fisher, H. B. Rea, Raymond Drew, W. J. Thubron, Al J. McDonald and Charles Bolger, directors.

The officers voted to open the racing season at Schenley oval on June 6 and to close October 17.

Trophies were awarded to the various winners of last season.

HOPPE CUTS LAYTON'S LEAD IN CUE MATCH

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP.)—Taking both blocks played yesterday, Willie Hoppe shaved 20 points off the long lead Johnny Layton, three-cushion billiards champion, had rolled up in the early blocks of their special 600-point match here. Layton still leads the former balkline billiards champion, 500 to 449.

Hoppe won the afternoon block, 67 to 50. His best run was seven against five for the champion.

The night block went to Hoppe 53 to 50 in 52 innings.

hitting catchers in O'Farrell, Hogan and Johnny Cummings it does not follow that the Giants will jump out in front to stay there. Fortunately for the other teams, John J. can use only one catcher at a time.

Bill McKechnie, the Cardinals' pilot, probably demanded George Harper or some other known southpaw batter in return for O'Farrell. The short rightfield fence in St. Louis should be quite a mark for Harper; it was not much of an alley for Skipper Bill's outfielders, inasmuch as Douthit, Blades, Hafey and Roettger all are righthand batters.

Hence, McKechnie, had he dealt with Bush probably would have asked for a lefthand-hitting outfielder and such a demand would have closed negotiations at once, for Donie would not part with either of the Waner boys for the best catcher in the business, whoever he may be.

More than one club in the league, including the Dodgers, are surfeited with righthand batters in their catching division. These clubs would find the Pirate bosses i a receptive mood were they to open negotiations for a swap.

And speaking of the Dodgers, it is timely to note the arrival of Uncle Robbie and his revamped team. The Flatbush club reached Pittsburgh this morning for the purpose of engaging the Oaklanders in four batties at Forbes Field. Sandwiched between the game of today and Monday's performance is a Sunday attraction at the home of the Robins. This game was moved up from September.

The Dodgers were going along at a good pace until they encountered the Cubs, who won three in a row over Robbie's crew. Nevertheless the invaders are a dangerous gang, they having added some hard hitters in the past year.

Scoops Carey, former Pirate captain, is here with the Robins. Scoops has not been playing regularly, as Uncle Robbie has been experimenting with recruits.

Either Carmen Hill or John Miljus will face the Dodgers in the opener. Hill will get the slab ticket provided his back is O. K. The Buccos are likely to swing at the offerings dished up by Jim Elliott, the biggest lefthander in the game.

90-DAY SWIM MAY START HERE

CHICAGO, May 12.—Plans for a $50,000 long distance swimming race, to start about August 1, have been announced by Norman Ross, Olympic swimming champion.

The routes under consideration are from St. Paul to New Orleans, from Chicago to New Orleans and from Pittsburgh to New Orleans. The swim was expected to last 90 days.

There would be separate races for men and women swimmers.

Plans call for the water marathoners to swim eight hours each day with a two-hour stop for lunch.

The lowest hourly time would determine the winner each day and the lowest elapsed time for the entire distance would decide the winner of the grand prize.

WRIGLEY PLANS SWIMS

TORONTO, Ont., May 12.—(INS.) Two marathon swimming contests, one for women and one for men, with a $50,000 purse offered by William Wrigley, Jr., of Chicago, will be held during the Canadian national exhibition late this summer, it was announced today.

The women's contest, a 10-mile swim, is to be held August 29, while the men's marathon, 15 miles, is scheduled for September 5. The $50,000 purse will be divided. The Wrigley marathon last year was 21 miles.

P. ZIVIC, BERLENBACH IN BOUTS TONIGHT

Pete Zivic boxes Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., and Paul Berlenbach, former light-heavyweight champion, attempts a comeback against one Babe Farmer in the windup of two shows in New York tonight. This will be the third meeting between Graham and Zivic and Berlenbach's friends have been begging him to refrain from going back into the ring again in view of the fact that he obviously is through as a winning fighter.

THE GREATEST ADVENTURE STORY OF MODERN TIMES

Stealing Great Ruby From Josh House of Isogas

BREMEN FLIERS -:- Relatives Greet Koehl on Tour -:- IN CHICAGO

JUNKERS
AS BREMEN REACHED CHICAGO

"THEY'RE IN!"

As the F-13, carrying the Bremen crew about the United States, landed at Chicago, a mighty crowd closed around it. Here, on the top, Maj. James Fitzmaurice and Capt. Hermann Koehl appear on the ship in disembarking. Baron von Huenefeld has not yet made his appearance. The fliers will stop in Chicago for several days.

KOEHL'S AUNT

MRS. ELIZABETH BLUME

Mrs. Elizabeth Blume, Peoria (Ill.), is Capt. Koehl's "Aunt Lizzie." And she was in Chicago to meet her nephew. In fact, she flew to Chicago from Peoria.

THEY MET KOEHL

RELATIVES

Koehl found relatives to greet him in Chicago. Here are John J. Schlumbrecht, second cousin; Jackie Augspurger, third cousin; Mrs. Peter Schlumbrecht, first cousin, and Mrs. Josephine Augspurger, second cousin. They all live in Chicago. The wives of Koehl and Fitzmaurice planned to join them in Chicago, by train.

Friendliness of the Natives And a Bit of Sleight of Hand by Horn

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Trader Horn, a youth, half a century ago, goes to Africa in the service of a trading company. He becomes friendly with the cannibal tribes, is initiated into the Josh House of the Isogas, becomes a blood brother of the Fans. The White Goddess of the Isogas is Nina T——, daughter of an Englishman of aristocratic family. Horn determines to rescue her and to steal a great ruby in the josh house. He has given vivid accounts of his participation in big game hunts and wars. In one battle he slew a native with his knife while both were under water. Once he saved Cecil Rhodes from crocodiles.

Awaiting Attack by Pirates

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN

Edited by ETHELREDA LEWIS.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

MBALWAMI, my unkle Apaque as he was called, was about the most intelligent savage I ever came in touch with, and, as I was a lad who, ladlike, always needed someone to really love him, I found Apaque to be really it.

ALFRED A. HORN

He was a king in his own right, and that he was fond of me and would have given his life for me at any time goes without saying, and, being of a romantic nature, I would have done the same for him.

Nobody in the word ever feels this kind of love only two men surrounded continually by danger night and day really can understand what it means when you meet. You are absolutely free from all worldly care for a time and feel doubly secure in your mutual strength.

Apaque's delight was to watch me muster my little army of 29 rifles, these men I had togged up in old Seventeenth Lancer jackets and caps. We had a great sale on the west coast for old army clothes, which came packed in large puncheons and barrels, which were returned to England loaded with rubber.

Of course, I picket out the best, and, as I was well up in drill, which I learned at college, I took a great pride in making my little army efficient. Clean weapons I insisted on. The old chief would continually shout "Va bwe!" (well done) as I would give the orders in English, "Form fours!" "Sections right!" "Sections left!" "Shoulder arms!" "Extend file marching!" etc.

Brave U. S. Missionary

Apaque would be in his glory and would even have his spearmen line up and would try to imitate the sounds of the English words of command. I gave him a fine military overcoat and sword and these he would don and give the most comical orders which really meant nothing till he had his fun out and then would shout dismiss, which was always well understood.

We arrived all well at Adimango early one morning and felt at home once more. The overland mail had just arrived so that I had the great pleasure of reading home news and the doings of my friend little Peru. We were all busy reading when the news came that one of the missionary boys had been captured and was even now on his way to execution, as he had been preaching against the Isoga of a nearby village.

The doctor in charge of the American mission heard of this happening just in time to save the poor boy. Gathering his lads together the brave doctor rowed to the village where the boy had been imprisoned. He made one dash for the skull-house and revolver in hand he rescued the victim. The natives were so much taken aback by surprise that an old white man dare enter their temple that they did nothing but looked surprised. This gave the doctor time to pull his boat in midstream whilst the natives fired on him from the bank as he pulled away to the Mission Station but he got away without any damage.

This was a plucky deed and the Old Dr. of that Presbyterian Mission station was always considered a hero after this deed. He had saved the boy from a terrible death and had risked his life for his mission boy.

Greeted by Nina

Count de Brazza the explorer would be with us in the spring and likewise several other visitors. The river had not risen enough to allow a steamboat to make the trip and as the river was still low no business was done. I left for the sea that evening there to meet the first steamboat from Gaboon which I was to pilot up the river as far as our trading state at Adoningo.

The S. S. Pioneer was the first boat due to arrive at Angola and this I was to pilot up to Adoningo and then to Samba Falls on the Anjuni River. Quite a long trip and I was anxious to have the chance to prove my maps and charts all correct. I must say that our future prosperity in the Rivers all depended on those charts, etc., being correct, and Sinclair also was as anxious as I was to prove them. So by mutual consent I pulled down stream, quite confident that all would be well.

I had a great send off from both Herr Schiff and Sinclair, and although my left hand was still in a bad shape it was curing up nicely. My first stop was at my old friends Efaninangos where I had killed the Rogue Elephant. And he made us all feel quite at home, and leaving the old man I pulled out for Lake Azingo which I reached in nice time and found all well.

And after attending to what business was necessary and despatching the overland mail I made for Ninas town. Here of course I had business of importance. The witch doctors and Nina came to the beach to meet and greet us.

Horn Gets the Ruby

Of course I told them to get ready for me at the Josh House as I wanted to make a big wish and was ready to pay for any favors I received from their ceremony and they were all more than pleased. It was not long before they announced themselves all ready.

Now was an important time for me, as I intend to come away with the ruby at all hazards. I had the position of the masked fakes at a glance. The goddess looked charming she looked better than I had ever seen her before.

I called the headman and had him lay down the presents I had brought for Nina, himself and the other attendants, and then palmed the ruby bending low and making it appear that I was receiving a little pain from my wounded left hand which I carried high enough to hide the actions of my busy right.

The ruse acted splendidly. I had the ruby in my right pocket whilst I held the imitation in my hand it all looked quite natural. The wand now moved down and my wish was granted amidst the weird sounds that came from the spirits which the head man said were all pleased. And so was I.

The presents were removed and I walked away as usual to the music of the Ngombi. I felt relieved when I reached the village and was soon joined by the fakers from the Josh house. We all enjoyed ourselves and the head man and his folks chatted merrily.

Presents for Nina

Nina now joined us and I gave her the dresses, shoes, etc., that had been sent her by little Peru. This greatly pleased her and I chatted to her in both Mpangue and English and we were soon the best of friends all round. The old man was especially thankful and so were all the assistants.

I felt them after making them a few more presents and they all agreed I was the best church member they had and they would do all they could to ward off any evil spirits which might try and harm me. I promised to call again as I would be often passing and this I did.

I do not think they ever noticed the change I had made in the rubies, if they did they never showed it at any time and were always glad to see me when I called on them. I was always careful to hide the ruby in the locker till I had managed to ship it to little Peru. It arrived all safe and was worth more than I ever imagined.

It was sent to Tiffanys in New York for valuation and was also valued at Hatton Garden in London. The American valuation was by far the highest.

The trip to the sea was made without any trouble and as the water was continually rising I was quite sure of being able to run the steamer as far as Sgamba Falls anyway. All my triangulations and workings proved up to the mark and even eclipsed our expectations.

Horn as Pilot

The first boat to show by smoke stack was the paddle steamer Pioneeer, a large river boat which could navigate in eight feet of water. As she crossed the bar and came in sight of T——'s grave I boarded her.

The skipper was a new one and was a nervous man and as he insisted on throwing the lead I told him I was in charge being the company's pilot, and if he insisted on being bull headed I would put him in his cabin and take all responsibilities on myself for my actions.

At this he stood aghast and wanted to parley. I felt insulted and offered him his choice, either the boat was in my full charge or in his; if he wanted to take the boat up himself he could do so.

At this he cowed and told me I looked so young he hated to give in, as we had a valuable cargo. I only laughed at him and showed my papers. Pilot in full charge. So the old paddles smashed away, she was a splendid boat, I took him in record time to Angola.

He now got quite chummy and as I was always at home with the native chiefs and in fact everybody else, he commenced to get confidential, told me of his old woman at home and showed me his daughter's photo.

I found that the river was falling fast on account of the absence of rains in the interior and this I explained to the captain, we were in a land of chance, Chief Isoga on one side and Rangogu on the other, both notorious river pirates, and this I told him was a place where we could not afford to stick for long with a valuable cargo.

Ready for Pirates

If they saw us well stuck they would attack us in a minute.

We were soon tipping the sandbanks although we carried 80 pounds of steam. River still falling we grounded fairly in midstream. It was evening just after sundown, we worked her all ways, it was to no avail we were stuck.

I called all my boys with Iwolo my general and we were soon putting the boat in shape to resist an attack which would surely come. The old captain now got up all arms he carried for defense, about 20 old Snyders and netting the stern we did all we could.

Renchoro and Iwolo seemed to think we could lick any attackers and of course I thought so also. A clear case of never say Die. The ship's crew were all working boys and although they would fight their best we relied very little on them.

The engineer, a half breed called Davis now coupled up two hose which were to throw scalding water on anyone attempting to board, whilst Iwolo and myself with our rifles piled up Manchester goods in a ring and determined to hold our own from aft. The old captain armed with a sixshooter and cutlas seemed pensive, but I soon had him in a good humour by spinning yarns.

Where's Marines If There's War? Rogers Asks

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 12.—I hate to be the first to make notice of it, but I believe that it is a record: Japan and China have been fighting now for one solid week and we haven't entered our Marines. What's the matter? Are they barred? Maybe they are eliminated on account of being professionals.

Will Rogers.

I don't want to tell young John D. Rockefeller his business, for he is a friend of mine. But if he wants to get rid of anybody, why don't he stop their pay? That's more successful than writing them letters.

Yours,

WILL.

ROBERTSON LETTER IN PROBE

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Propaganda put out by public utilities bodies to influence opinions of school children were scored in the Senate late yesterday by Senator George W. Norris, (Rep.), of Nebraska. He read into the Congressional Record letters between A. W. Robertson, of Pittsburgh, president of the Philadelphia Company, and J. S. Richardson, chief public relations counsel of the utilities company, which had been used by the Federal Trade Commission in its power trust probe.

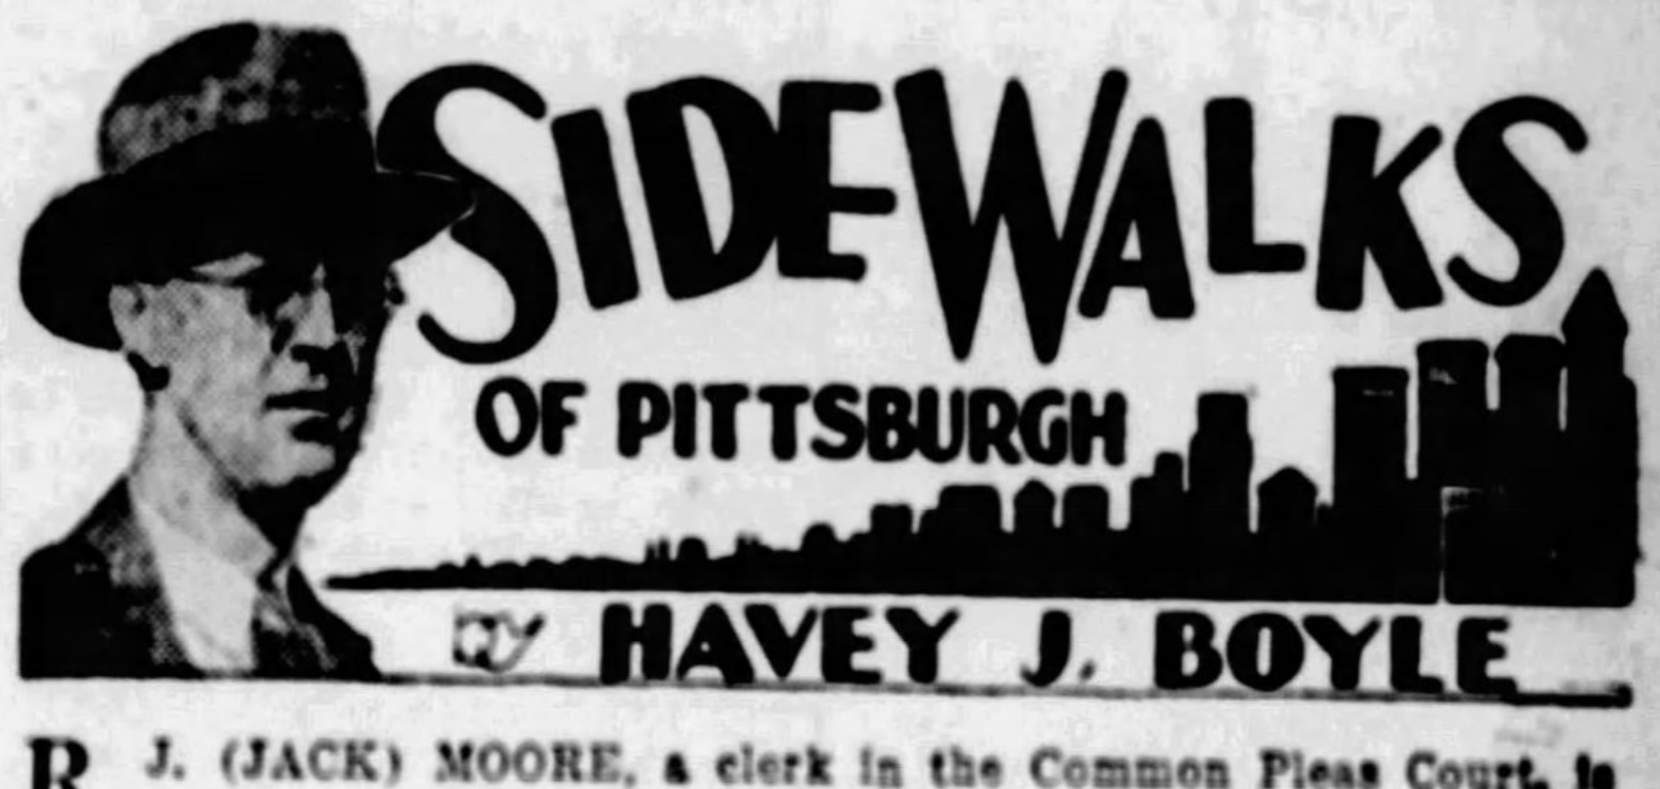
Under date of January 22, 1925, Robertson noted the hostile attitude of educators to big business and said it was probably due to the fact that they had not been successful in business. He then asked:

"Would it be possible for some of our men to approach the large publishers of text books and produce some quick results in clearing up the situation?"

Richardson in reply suggested "the utility companies, in a discreet way, foster a movement for adequate remuneration of teaching personnel in public schools."

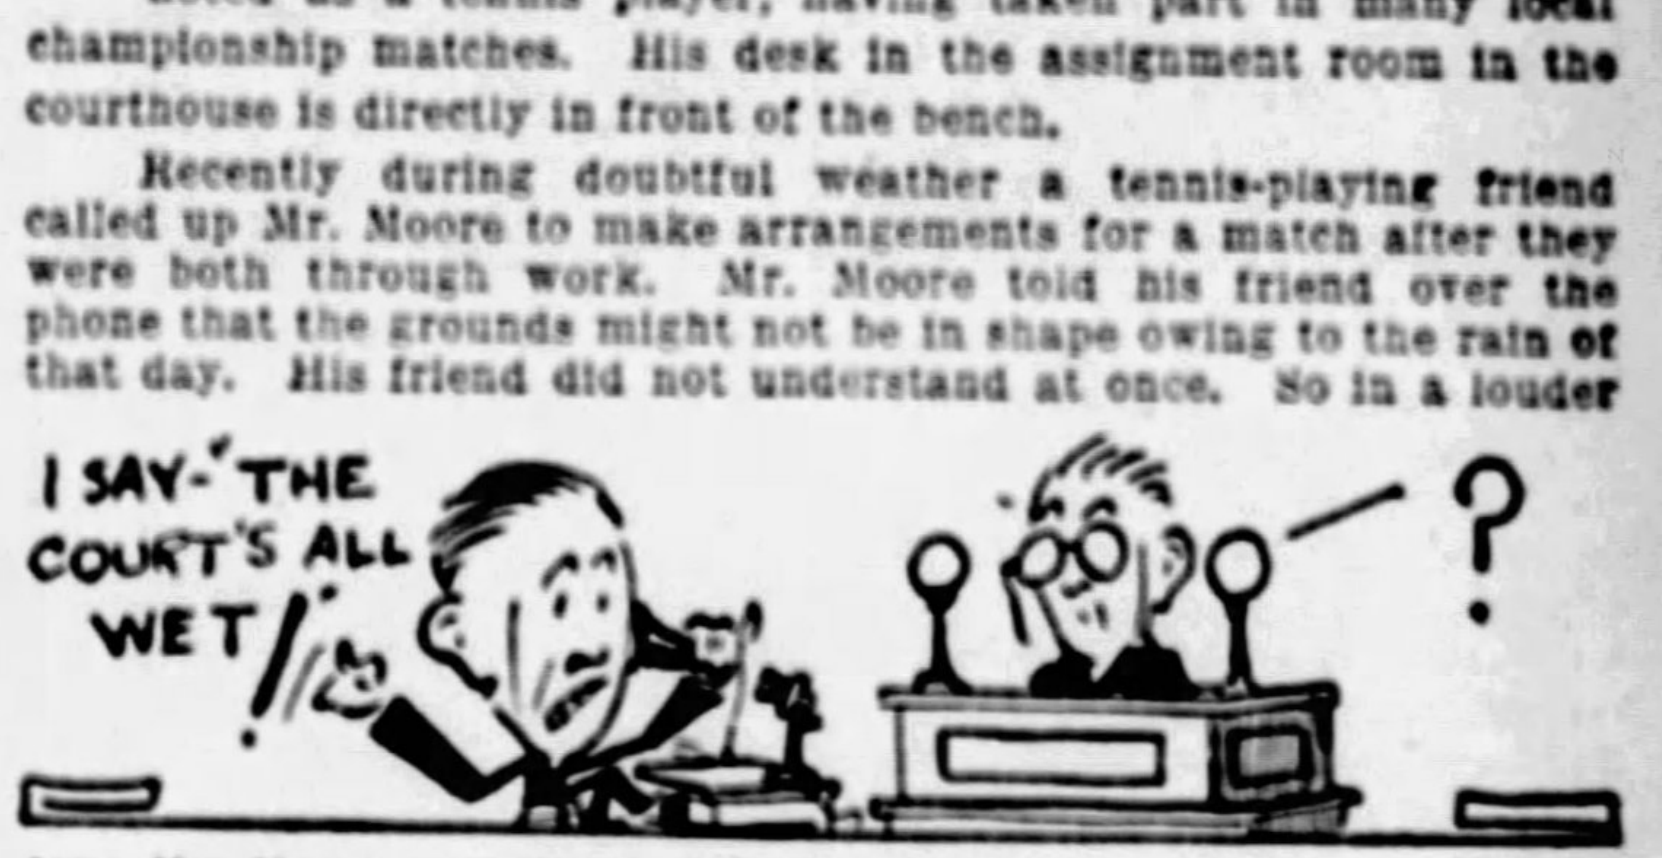
U. S. C. OF C. ELECTS ROBERTSON DIRECTOR

A. W. Robertson, president of the Philadelphia Company has been elected a director of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, according to information received at the Pittsburgh Chamber today. Robertson succeeds A. L. Humphrey, president of Westinghouse Airbrake Company, who resigned.



R. J. (JACK) MOORE, a clerk in the Common Pleas Court, is noted as a tennis player, having taken part in many local championship matches. His desk in the assignment room in the courthouse is directly in front of the bench.

Recently during doubtful weather a tennis-playing friend called up Mr. Moore to make arrangements for a match after they were both through work. Mr. Moore told his friend over the phone that the grounds might not be in shape owing to the rain of that day. His friend did not understand at once. So in a louder tone Mr. Moore called out: "I say the court's all wet."



I SAY-"THE COURT'S ALL WET"!

Just behind Mr. Moore sat that well-known and beloved jurist, Judge Josiah Cohen. "I say the court's all wet," insisted Mr. Moore, and Judge Cohen leaned over and said: "But is it necessary to be so emphatic?" And Mr. Moore spent the rest of the afternoon explaining to Judge Cohen, far-famed for his humor.

A recent issue of The New Republic, which worries a great deal about the state of the world and nation, declared in no uncertain terms that high-brows have deserted baseball. This is not true, as high-brows, whatever they are, never went to baseball games. And there are so few high-brows, it seems here, it is well that baseball never had to depend on them for support.

A HIGH-BROW is an applied term. It is never self-imposed. There is opprobrium attached to the term equaling almost the scorn held for the antonym, low-brow. Both terms are used freely by people who rate themselves somewhere in the middle of these two extremities.

Our own experience, whatever it is worth, is that people we suspect of owning greater intelligence, and thus envying or disliking, we dismiss with the scornful expression: "High-brow." While we have heard any number of persons, admitting yet not seeking agreement, they were low-brows, we have yet to meet anyone who seriously claimed to b a high-brow.

AND now with that great matter settled definitely we'll thank you for another helping of ham and cabbage.

A book which we are reading: "Going to Pieces," by Alexander Woollcott, who to our way of thinking could not write a dull line at the point of a gun, sets forth the idea that most of the boys seeking newspaper careers desire to start right out as dramatic critics. This, says Mr. Woollcott, is different from the days when he first started in, when the ambition of every neophyte reporter was not to be on hand at premiere in New York, but rather to be the first to flash to the city editor that No. 48 had crashed into the local accommodation, or to describe where the police found the body of the millionaire in, of course, his library.

MR. WOOLLCOOT is not altogether right, for it is our belief and contention that for every boy who desires to become a dramatic critic there are two who, under the proper inducements and persuasion, will take the desk of the sporting editor—when he is not looking.

In our brief and eventless experience it seemed here that at least half of the youngish male population was intent on bringing new word colors to the realm of sports.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait · by Elenore MEHERIN

Jerry Saves the Plans And Saxon and She Are Happy in Their Love

AND for an appalled moment Jerry's mind was a blank. She neither heard nor saw. She lay shivering with the madness of her own deed; not daring to repeat it; not daring to move.

Silence and an utter mysterious dark. Presently through the dimness went a chattering whimper: a muffled, piteous sob: "Lord have mercy! Lord have mercy!"

Within arm's reach, so close she could almost feel his terror; almost sense his eyes bulging from their sockets, the Negro was sunk on his knees, arms wrapped about his head. For moments he remained in this attitude of abject, nerveless fear.

Cautiously he began to creep. He called softly: "Cooky—you heard that? Oh, cooky, you ain't run away?"

A scrambling plunge—a clatter of heavy feet down the passage, up the steps frantically. The door opened—closed with a stealthy abruptness.

Jerry hid her face in the bulky coat: choked a wild, relieved laugh—shaken from head to foot with this God-given, incredible escape.

They would not come back! They would surely not return to this noisome, ghost-inhabited vault. She was safe, and the plans were wrapped in her arms.

For an interlude she thought of this—only this.

And she listened. It was raining now—the rain dashing in sheets against the house—rattling on the stone pavement.

He was out there waiting.

She wondered what time it was—reached in the pocket of her coat for a match. The matches were gone—had dropped out as she dragged the coat from the furnace.

She sat up with a sudden thought of the searchlight. Three inches from her head it had flashed as she gave that long, moaning: "Nooooo!"

And it dropped.

She felt about for it. The sandy, unpaved floor had a slimy, unpleasant touch. She reached near the lumber pile, tangled her hand in a mass of cobwebs.

She crept along the stack, feeling her way as the butler had . . . suddenly, with a cry of delight, came upon it.

Shielding it with her hand, she snapped the light. It flashed on her coat, on the musty walls festooned with cobwebs. And it flashed suddenly on the black, beady eyes of an immense wood rat, which sat on its haunches, front feet curled up. It sat imperturbable and motionless in the very spot where Jerry had lain.

She regarded it with a sickened apprehension, and, listening, heard a scurrying and busyness in the wood pile. The rotted lumber near which she had lain was infested with rats.

Get out of here quickly—go back cautiously and drag her coat with the precious plans.

She glanced at her wrist watch—10 minutes to 7. Dark outside. Safe to leave now. Safer than to abide here one unnecessary moment.

In the main basement, high up on the side wall and facing the driveway there were windows. She was thinking of these—make a ladder of boxes and climb out through these.

She considered this. And recalled with a shock that the windows were single fixed panes and didn't open. She would have to break the glass, then make a second trip back for the plans.

These were heavy. It would take careful moments as she climbed up, lifting these as she went.

And if a machine—the Pennings machine—should suddenly appear in the driveway? If it should come at the moment when she smashed the pane and before she had a chance to rush back for the plans?

She recalled also that these windows were directly under the dining room. And now or very soon the Pennings would be seated there at dinner. They would hear the shattering glass.

She leaned against the wall, now violently disturbed. The rain made a dismal sound and this dim passage trooped with melancholy, fearsome echoes.

It was blinding dark except for the fitful flashes of her searchlight. And she was afraid to use this. She would have to wait here hours—till the middle of the night. Dear God—take no chances now!

Were there windows on a level with the street from this front, unexcavated basement—back there behind the rat-infested lumber pile? She would go and see. This would be a chance.

And outside prowling in the shadows, snapping his wrist to his eyes and regarding with growing alarm the passage of time, Saxon waited.

The moment the winter dark shadowed the house he came near to it. Mary's car was parked in the driveway. He went up quickly, pulled up the hood, removed the brushes from the distributor. The work of a moment! But that car would not speed away! That car would not carry off his plans!

A taxi drove up to the house. He drew back behind shrubbery. Mrs. Pennings with sharp steps and her head flung upward in a kind of challenge went up the drive.

The rain swept against him. A heavy, storming rain.

Seven o'clock now—seven-thirty. What could have happened? Was she down there in that cold, noisome hole waiting for him—working for him?

He pictured Jerry kneeling in that dump heap. Suddenly his eyes were stinging. He had no right to allow this! And he became filled with a terror of what might befall her.

Eight o'clock. Lights in the dining room—a wavering thread of light across the driveway. He went up and tapped at the window—the low window giving on the basement. He struck his cigaret-lighter and held it to the pane.

Was she there—would she see? And know the signal?

Abruptly he heard a sound—a faint sound distinct from the rain but lost immediately in the rain.

He tried to follow it—he listened. And with a start was running to the front of the house.

No mistaking it! The shattering of a window pane. There—on a level with the grass.

He knelt in the wet. He called softly—

No answer.

CHAPTER LXXIX.

BUT the glass in the window was shattered. He pulled a long, jagged point loose and, kneeling there on the drenched lawn, peered into the cavernous dark.

Someone had broken that glass but a moment ago. Someone hiding in that shallow front basement and wanting to escape?

He thrust his head in and called with soft, imploring demand: "Jerry—oh, Jerry!" And heard a sound—a faint, scraping sound as of a heavy, inert body dragged along the floor.

The sound came nearer. Almost at the window. It ceased.

With abandoned alarm he reached in and called hotly: "Jerry!"

A song flung into his face; struck deep into his heart. A high trembling laugh: "Saxon—quick—squeeze them through!"

The huge, coat-wrapped bundle came plunging into his wet, astonished hands. And the next moment Jerry crept out. Giddy with relief, she seized his arm: "Lord Gorgeous, hold 'em tight. And run!"

They plunged through rain and wind. They reached his car, turned a wild triumphant backward glance to the Pennings' home. And for a moment sat speechless and shaken—staring into each other's lighted, blinking eyes.

Incredulous and almost collapsing with emotion: "Jerry—the plans?"

"Nearly all. I think so. I hope so! Drive somewhere quick and look. They're all out at Marza's. Drive there!"

They could scarcely wait to switch the light. They knelt on the living room floor, untying the sleeves of Jerry's ruined coat.

His hands shook and fumbled. "She burned some, Jerry?"

"Yes—flung them in. Oh, not many."

"If it should be the library—all of that . . ."

Jerry closed her eyes with a half-suffocated: "Hurry, please! If it's the library—all chance—is lost?"

"I've only a day—at the uttermost, a day—"

She was on her knees and now folding her arms, leaned over the plans as he went with hot, choking suspense, sorting them, checking them. . .

"I couldn't do that over—couldn't possibly."

"Hurry!" She hugged arms about her wet, mud-stained dress and shivered.

A soft, chuckling laugh. "She burned some? But what—what!"

The dirtiest face he had ever seen looked up grinning into his. Tears of frantic joy made tracks in the grime of her cheeks. "All there? Oh, Saxon, they can't ALL be there!"

"Except blue-prints and a color sketch or two."

"And you can make those up? You can do all that in one day? And send them all tomorrow?

"Then I'll go wash my face and lift the spiders, which are biting, from my shoes."

She began to laugh—a giddy, childlike laugh that she couldn't stop and that brought shiny tears to her eyes. She jumped to her feet: "My Lord, I'm starved! If you've got the strength, go out and scramble up some dinner—eggs or anything!"

She came running back as she washed her hands, trailing a flutter of suds across the floor. "It was luck, Saxon—sheer fool's luck and a baby-buggy! God bless the 'Bat' for putting the fear of hell into one Mary Pennings' darky butler!"

They sat at the table over a lofty omelet Saxon cooked. He was excited—almost unnerved. He clasped his hands to hide their shaking.

"You took a frightful chance—Jerry."

"It was the rat that nearly defeated me. Sitting up there with his cute pink toes curled up. And his brothers and sisters scampering through the woodpile. But I thought of Thoreau making friends of beast and worms. So I went gingerly crawling back.

"And I thought of you in the rain. And I thought of Glory!"

They sat there adoring each other—exulting in each other. Deep in their emotion and unconscious of it.

"Will you have to work the whole long night, Saxon?"

"Who cares?"

"Saxon, can you get the money and pay Mary Pennings back? Let her have no claim in this blessed dream of yours!"

"In a week that $4,000 will be returned."

"Can you get it?"

"Yes—from Paul. He's had a phenomenal year."

"You won't leave the plans from your sight again?"

"Heavens, no!"

She went down the three flights of steps to the front door with him. After he had said goodby and was stepping to his machine, he turned and came back. He took her hands: "Jerry—what can I say? What can I?" And suddenly flung his arms about her and sobbed like a boy.

She lay awake trembling and thinking of this; laughing and think of this. Listening to the rain and loving it.

If she wished—

But no—she wouldn't take him in the pitch of this emotion, this almost heart-breaking gratitude. Nor did she want him on the rebound of his disillusion with Mary.

She would have to be sure now—utterly sure. Wait till this fever of working was passed; wait till his life turned to normal. And other girls and other luring faces beckoned.

Then, if his eyes saw only her—kept all their thrilling light for her. Her heart grew warm with dreams.

She saw him often in those next weeks. Often in unwary moments found his eyes searching hers. All his manner apprehensive—tender—full of longing.

Paul was returned to the city and goading Saxon to the limit of his capacity. He grew thin and drawn, but she loved the passionate zeal of his look.

This was the Saxon of her happiest dream.

They had stolen sweet hours when he 'phoned and begged her to stay in town, snatch a brief dinner somewhere just that they might talk. These moments were very life to her.

Other times he came to the shop late in the afternoon when she was finishing her work. He tried to trick her into avowals.

As one day when she was finishing a sketch of an interior: "You've grown to love this work, Jerry? You'd hate to give it up even if it meant more time for your real stuff?"

"Oh, Saxon, we kid ourselves about not having time for our REAL STUFF. But we've always 24 hours in each day if we care to take them and save them. But mostly we let time pass us by. We'll seize the time to do the thing we really want to do!

"And why should anyone give up a job? Two hundred a month plus commissions is nice!"

"There might be reasons for giving up a job."

"Such as marriage, I suppose? But why, as I've asked before, does it add to a man's happiness to have his wife wash his dishes and cook his meals so long as the dirty deeds are did?

"And why does it disturb him to have a woman earn her own? Is it really necessary to crush the indivdual in a woman in order to develop her as a wife? And what have you when this subtle murder is accomplished?"

"But there might be times when it wouldn't be convenient—"

She interrupted with a mocking: "Because a woman is to have a child—"

"You mean I?, don't you?"

"More or less—CERTAINLY! Why need this interfere with other pursuits. We don't have to quit living in order to grow or to breathe, do we? And why, because a woman bears a child, must she be the one to fry the steak and scrub the floor, I ask. What is the relation between these occupations?

"A woman isn't a better mother for being a drudge; nor is she a happier wife for being a dependent. Love is sweet, but it leaves—while hubby's socks and the kitchen sink, like the poor, she has with her to the end of the cycle. Such being such, I keep my job."

"There are women who can marry and keep a job, too."

"So's your ole man, ole dear!"

She saw the eager flush die in his cheeks. And thought, burning: "Oh, its love—it's really love that he is feeling now!"

In the spring Stephanie and Heinie were married. Gallant, winsome elf—sift and free again and looking so radiant in the veil and lilies of the valley.

"Angel Jerry—you gave him to me!" she whipsered in Jerry's ear.

All the next day, Jerry felt her happy arms around her neck.

All the next day she saw Marza's proud, love-filled eyes.

Late that afternoon Saxon dropped in.

"She looked beautiful," said he without introduction.

"Oh, singing with it," said Jerry mistily. "Twenty and married and happy ever afterwards. That's the time to do it. A girl is so defenseless then. So under the power of a man and the mad sweet slavery first love is."

"Are you glad you escaped it?"

"In a way—since it doesn't last, but all first lovers believe it will."

"With Heinie it will last and with that gay little cousin of yours."

"Yes. But I wonder why we all insist so on the happy-ever-afterward money-back guarantee. Takes all the lark out of it! I don't want to be anything ever afterward.

"Everyone needs a good hebrawl now and then. You don't truly love a person unless you're moved to goad him with an occasional punch on the nose.

"There ought to be a robuster, finer type of companionship than the love and eternal bliss variety.

"Marriage isn't life sufficient for a woman, any more than mere wife is woman sufficient for any man. He needs someone to talk to as well as someone to love.

"And a woman needs something to think of as well as something to worship."

"But what of your double blooming, Jerry? Oh, how will marriage interfere with you? Why, that little picture you did of the ferry lanes at night—it's a gem."

"I want to do 10 of those!"

"Before you'll think of marriage?" He stood at her side, observing her hand with a passionate intensity. "Oh, Jerry—do you really think that it would hamper you? Might it not be arranged—the kind of marriage you want? Not a thwarting of the individual but an enrichening."

She turned her face laughing to his, all her heart rushing out with song and fire: "With you, Saxon? Do you want me now For ever and forever—to love—to cherish and to punch in the nose? Your first love—and your last?"

He said solemnly and with a boyish pleading: "The only love. Could you care for a man who hadn't sense enough to know when a great gift was his?"

He looked lean and beautiful to her and with the air of a sun-god in his light, thrilling eyes.

"It may be, Saxon, that all the man's perceptions were heightened by experiences he may regret but that were inevitable."

"Will you chance it, Jerry? Will you let yourself love me again?"

She reached up and touched his face. She said with her head flung back and her eyes all violet flame. "Love you again, Saxon? I've never stopped loving you. I never can!"

"Oh," said he, stooping quickly and pressing his lips to hers.

More thrilling than anything she had ever known were the tears she felt then in his eyes.

Two days later on a wistful April night, he called her to the 'phone: "Oh, come down—quick!"

He met her at the door of his office and without ado swept her into his arms.

"Why—what and hence?"

"Look—shall I—surely yes?"

A letter from Melhurst College. They wanted to know if he would consider supliting the prize. He and another architect named Ambrose had chosen somewhat similar schemes. They wanted to combine these and would throw first and second purize together, making an award of $25,000 to each.

"I'll wire 'yes'?"

She nodded and blinked. She said, dashing her hand against her eyes: "Oh, to be a fly on the wall of Mary Pennings' room when she learns of this!"

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" By Adele Garrison

I WAITED eagerly for Lillian's reply to Mrs. Townsend's excited question — to her verdict upon the copy of the European art gallery painting which so closely resembled Eleanor Lincoln and the dog, Fedor. I knew from the signal she had given me that she did not wish Mrs. Townsend to know our real reaction to the portrait.

"The eyes and mouth of the pictured girl bear a marvelous resemblance to those of Miss Lincoln," Lillian admitted, "but the face, taken as a whole is entirely different."

"I don't see that," Mrs. Townsend said stubbornly. "The face is hers except for the middle part of it, and the figure and hands and feet are hers to the life. While the dog! The girl may not be Eleanor Lincoln, but the dog is Fedor!"

"Or his litter brother," Lillian said sententiously. "Surely, Mrs. Townsend, you know how uncanny is the resemblance sometimes between dogs of the same breed. I do not doubt you are startled by this resemblance, but I do not see that we are justified in thinking this to be a portrait of our neighbor and her dog."

"But don't you remember how upset she seemed when I commented upon the resemblance of herself and Fedor to the picture I had seen?" Mrs. Townsend continued, turning to me.

I made the hurried mental comment that little Mrs. Townsend was a far more keen observer than she had seemed upon that visit to The Larches. I had noticed Eleanor Lincoln's terror at her visitor's comment, but I had been watching her closely every time I had seen her because of her behavior at the time the red-headed man accosted her. The undoubted mystery surrounding her had intrigued me and I had paid close attention to her every movement. But it was surprising that a casual caller such as Mrs. Townsend was upon that day, should have noticed the sedulously camouflaged perturbation of her hostess.

"I am afraid I was watching you," I evaded smilingly. "Personalities are odious, I know, but you do not know how pretty and animated a picture you made upon that day. I neved shall forget it."

"Oh, how perfectly sweet of you!" she cried, and I hoped that the banal compliment might have taken her mind from the problem of the portrait. But the next second I realized my hope was vain, for she returned to the subject with the pertinacity of a terrier in search of a buried stone.

"Of course the idea is perfectly preposterous!" she admitted, "especially as Miss Lincoln's features are not exactly the same as those of the girl in the photograph. But I can't help feeling a hunch that, if she is not the same girl she is a very near relative, although what she's doing over here is a mystery. But if you'll turn over the photograph and read what is written on the other side, you'll see why I'm so excited."

Again Lillian gave me a secret signal, this time one meaning, "Memorize everything." And when I turned over the photograph I was glad that my mother's early training had rendered my memory so mechanical a thing that I could memorize the characters of a foreign language even when I did not understand them. For the inscription on the back of the photograph was in French and included not only the name of the figure, but what I guessed was more important to the photographer who had made Lillian, the name and address of the copy.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

WOMAN, THE SHOCK-ABSORBER

MY DAUGHTER, consider the life of a man who possesseth a good wife, for all his days are smoother than the running of a new car upon the state highway and calmer than a May afternoon.

Behold, he ariseth in the morning and at his right hand is his razor and at his left are his slippers and his brushes and his bath towels.

He droppeth his pajamas upon the floor and flingeth his soiled garments to the winds. His shoes are as birds that fly to him from the uttermost corners of the house and his collar button as a homing pigeon which cometh at his whistle.

HELEN ROWLAND

Whensoever he descendeth his breakfast is waiting, his newspaper lieth at his elbow, his grapefruit hath been prepared and sugared, his eggs are salted and peppered, his coffee is poured and HOT.

His wife assembleth him for departure; she findeth his hat. And his gloves. And his umbrella. And his brief case. And his cigarets.

And when she hath sped him upon his way, with much hustling and hunting and panting, she goeth into the kitchen and consulteth with the cook, and directeth the gardener, and haggleth with the butcher, and dickereth with the carpenter, and persuadeth the plumber and cajoleth all the tradesmen.

She gathereth up his garments and his cigar stubs and his ashes. Yea, two hours doth she spend in restoring order out of the havoc which he hath wrought. The bureau drawers which he hath torn to pieces are put straight, and his hose rescued from the fireplace, and his cravats from the talcum.

Then doth he greet her with a kiss and a sigh of weariness, saying: "Lord, lord, but I am tired! For I have had a hard and raucuous day, with only an hour off for lunch and two hours upon the links! But, WHAT, my Beloved, dost thou DO with thy time all day? Yea, HOW dost thou put in all the hours, with naught to do but amuse thyself?"

But a wise wife holdeth her peace and permitteth him to DREAM ON.

For the way of a woman with a house is a mystery which no man can comprehend. SELAH!

Market Becomes Two-Sided; John D. Is Moral Watchdog

By B. C. FORBES

TWO-SIDED. That describes the latest phase of the stock market. The bulls, however, still appear able to mark up the prices more easily than the bears can force them down. But it is being noted that, when support is withdrawn from the favorite speculative issues, quotations sink quickly. This is not a reassuring sign.

THE yield on favorite stocks is now under the current money rate. Excellent bonds can be purchased to give a better income than the most conspicuous of the boomed stocks. Old-timers interpret this as a sure indication that the marking-up process has been carried too far.

But the fact remains that old-timers have been wrong for months and that the money-makers in Wall Street have been those who either didn't know or didn't care a hoot about past experiences. The wise ones have been laughed at by the newer generation of speculators.

And yet—well, the present is the only bull market in all of Wall Street's long history which hasn't had an end.

DON'T make the mistake of measuring current business conditions by the amount of unemployment. Were one to judge solely by the number of persons out of work, one would conclude that industry and business are unusually dull. The records show, however, that industry and business are doing reasonably well. The explanation is that ways and means have now been found for carrying on normal activities without employing the "normal" number of workers. How to find work for those not now needed is perhaps the most important economic problem confronting the United States.

I rather think that unemployment will prove a factor in the coming election.

SO long as Standard Oil companies behave themselves John D. Rockefeller, Jr., does not interfere. But let any Standard Oil company be charged with doing anything off color, and its chief executive is sure to find on his desk a note from Young John D. asking for a full explanation.

Mr. Rockefeller's attitude towards Col. Stewart, head of Standard Oil of Indiana, is typical of his whole course in relation to the management of so-called Rockefeller properties. As soon as damaging allegations were made, Young Rockefeller took vigilant notice. Having become convinced that the head of this particular company did not do exactly as h should have done, Rockefeller has turned against him and demanded his resignation.

Some capitalists are watchdogs of treasuries they are interested in. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., constitutes himself watchdog of the morals of companies he is interested in.

NORMAN B. BLACK, influential newspaper publisher of North Dakota, says that for the first time in his long experience soil conditions in that state are perfect. At least 85 per cent of the wheat was in the ground a month earlier than usual. They are looking forward to a wonderful crop.

"Agricultural relief," remarked Mr. Black during a visit to New York, "must come mainly from farmers' own organization rather than from the government."

North Dakota is now recovering from the afflictions so recklessly imposed by the Non-Partisan League.

ONE of the ablest oil leaders in America gives me this "lowdown" on the situation:

"The general oil situation throughout the country is somewhat improved, which, as you know, is largely the result of controlled over-production. Personally, I cannot see in the immediate future the time when the consumption will be equal to the potential production, but as against this, sanity in the industry is making itself distinctly felt and I look for greater co-operative and constructive effort within the industry during the coming year than we have ever had before."

A P. FANT, industrial director of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce, supplied this column with these interesting facts:

"Agriculture is in better condition than it has been in years. With the exception of the lumber industry, the industrial conditions of this section are excellent. There are numerous incidents of plants running twenty-four a day. Trade, money and the credit condition are excellent. Postal receipts show the largest per cent of gain of the entire country."

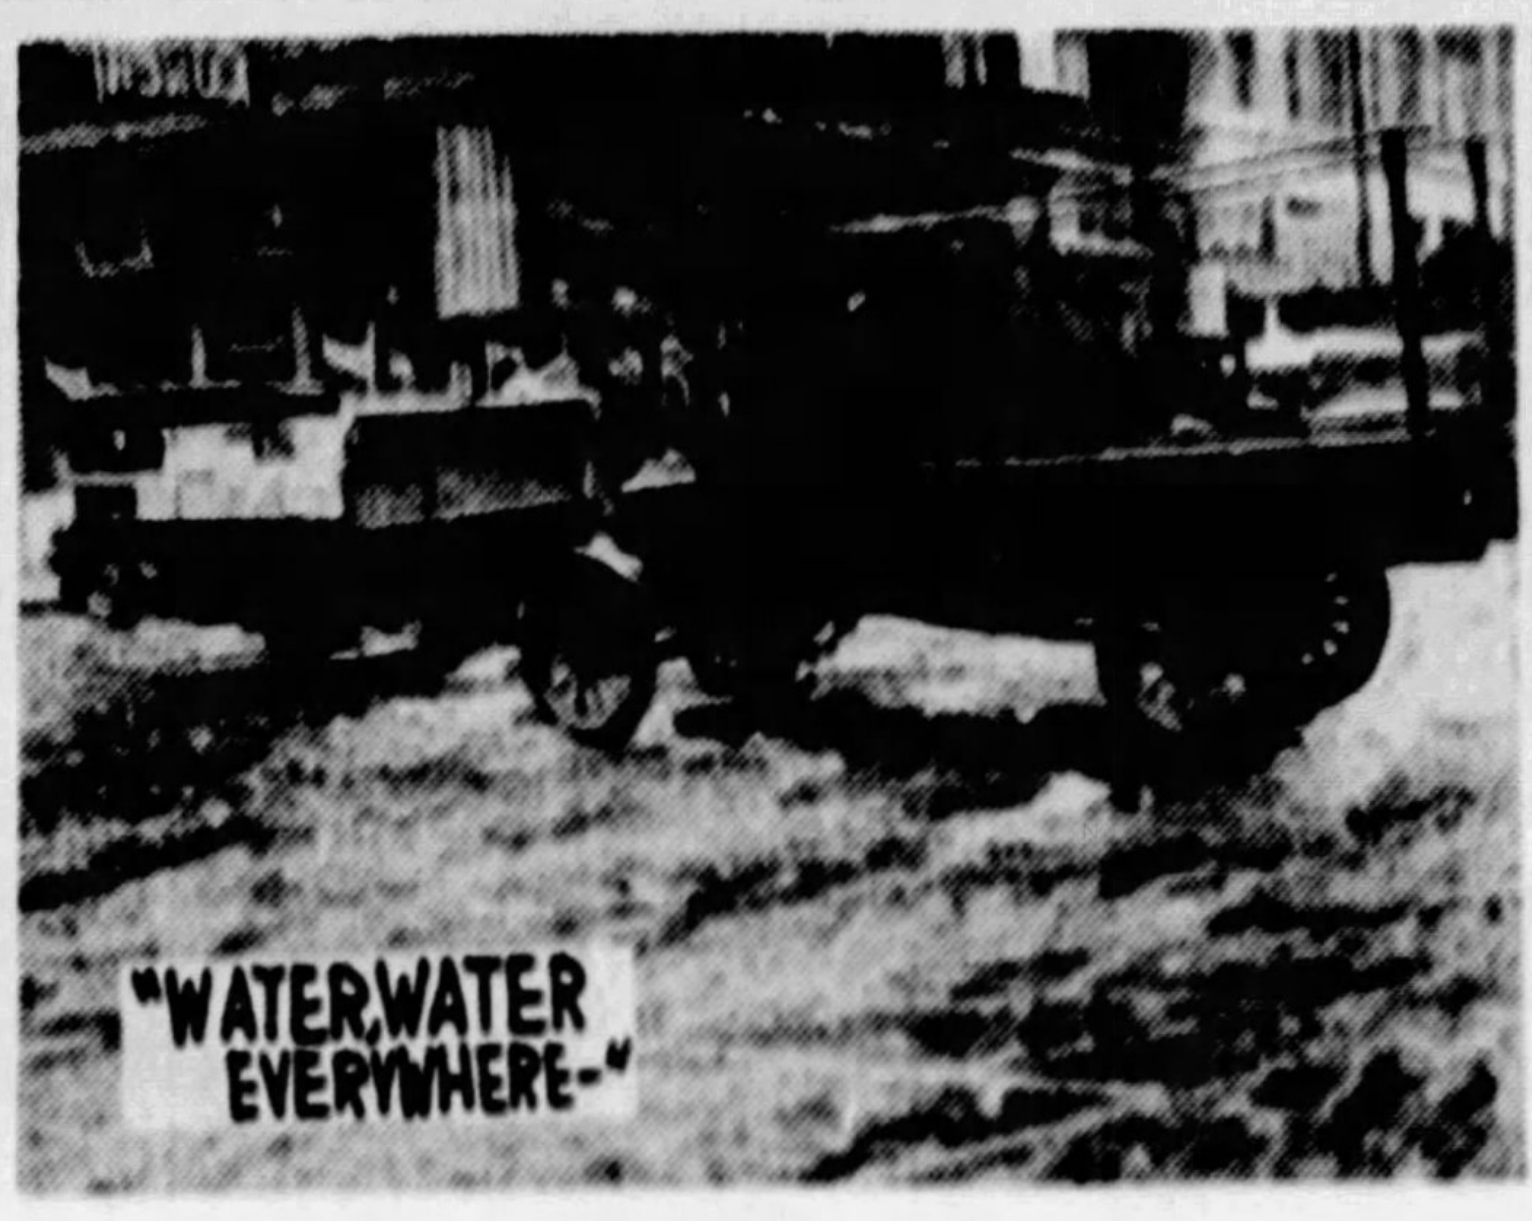
Hard Worker Wets Feet -:- DOWNTOWN 'FLOODED' -:- Water Main Bursts

IT ALL COMES FROM HERE!

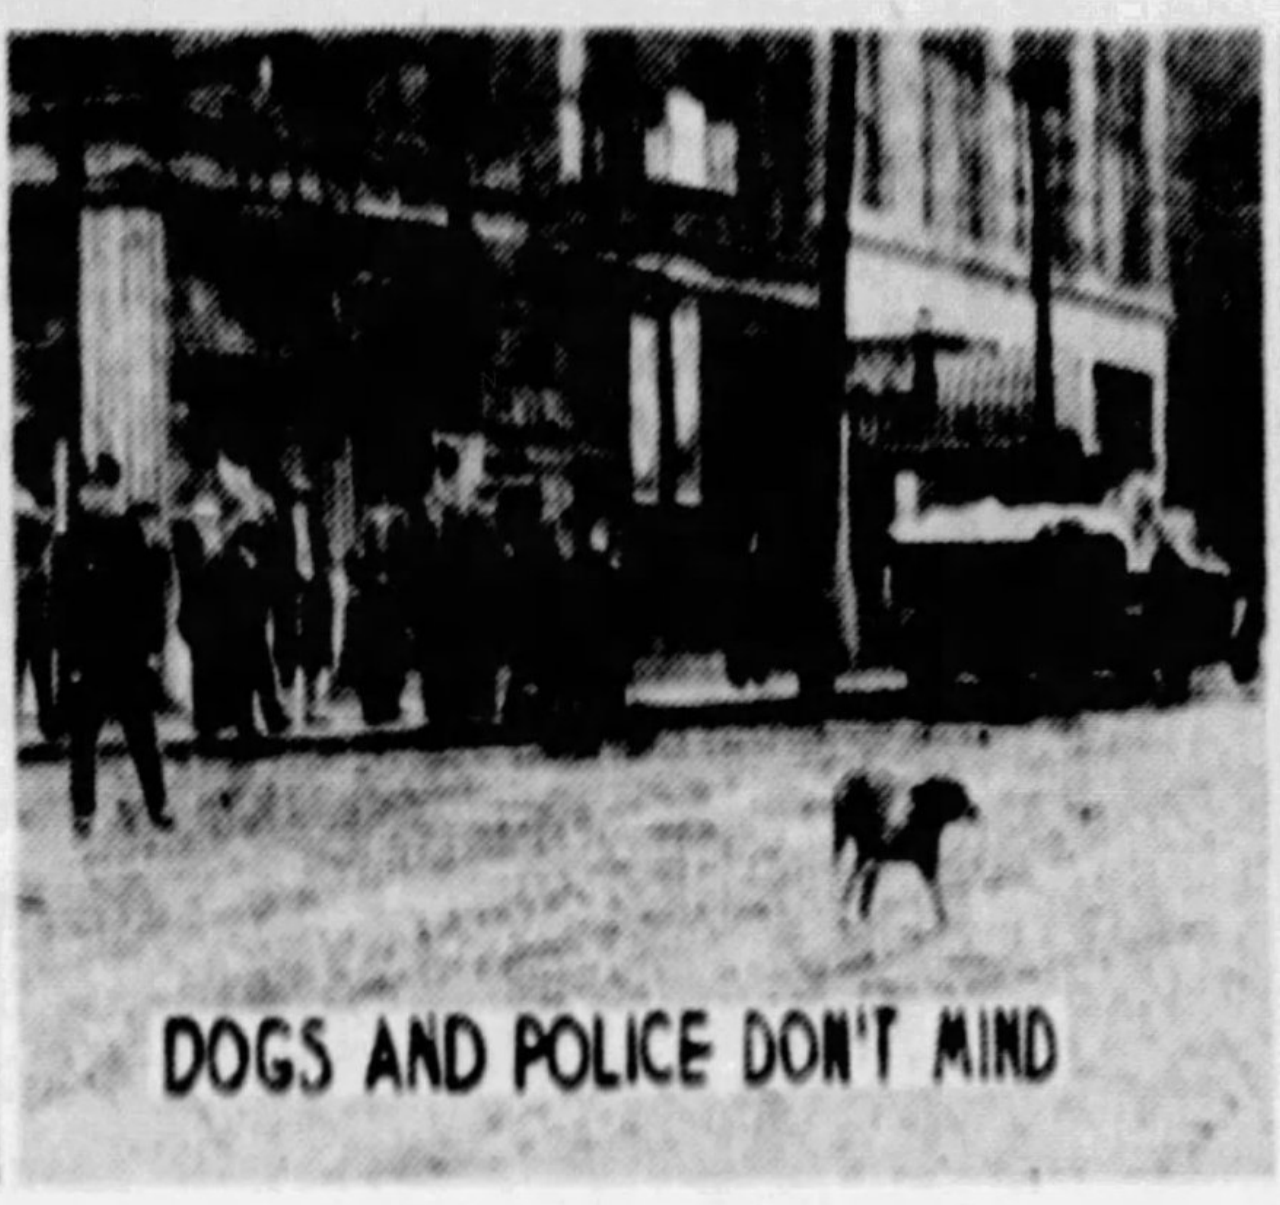
"GEYSER"

From this "geyser" this morning came forth the water that swirled through downtown streets as working Pittsburgh marshaled for the day. It's at Sixth and Wylie avenues, this main; and it broke from an unknown cause.



TRAFFIC

Those riding in automobiles didn't mind, particularly, and trucks weren't unduly inconvenienced, but pedestrians—well, a great many of us arrived in offices with wet feet. Few of us were allowed to go home.



"IT MUST MOVE"

Traffic must keep moving, police thought. Here, a cornerman keeps it doing just that. Only the dog at this corner at this moment dared to move—and he did. Nearby the water spouted up through the street paving.

PLAYIN' SAFE

This owner "played safe" during an enforced stop. The "flood" spread rapidly as the water rushed down Sixth avenue, backed up Sixth avenue and flowed down and up Grant street and Oliver avenue. Workmen repaired the main.

Stock Exchanges Close Again to Catch Up

Stock exchanges throughout the country are closed today, marking the fourth Saturday this year on which business has been suspended to relieve congestion in brokerage houses. Clerical forces and order departments have been swamped by the unprecedented volume of business since the first week in March. Commodity markets and banks are in operation as usual. Business will be resumed on the stock exchanges at the customary hours Monday.

Scan $100 Bills; Faker Errs in Punctuation

Watch your small change, especially your $100 bills.

A spurious $100 note, drawn on the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, is in circulation in the Pittsburgh district, and the Federal Reserve Bank has described its handiwork as "extremely dangerous." The bill is of the 1914 series and bears a portrait of Benjamin Franklin. The left eyeball is unusually large and after the word "Washington" appears a period instead of a comma.

CASEY ELECTED STATE LABOR PRESIDENT

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—(AP.)—John J. Casey, member of Congress from Luzerne county, was elected president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor here last night. He is a member of the Plumbers' and Steam Fitters' Union. He has served four terms in Congress and seeks re-election on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Casey succeeds James H. Maurer, Socialist councilman of Reading, who headed the federation for 16 years, and who is the Socialist candidate for vice president of the United States.

Among the vice presidents elected were: Vernon Fletcher, John Kmetz, A. T. Bower, William L. Cooney, Edward Barry, Thomas G. Robertson and Lawrence J. Katz. Other officers chosen were: James E. Kelley, secretary-treasurer, re-elected; Tobias Hall, delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention, and James McElroy, John Garrahan and Charles Lahr, auditors.

Casey received 546 votes against 331 for John A. Phillips of Philadelphia and 75 for John Otis of Pittsburgh.

Resolutions adopted urged that city and state provide substantial relief for unemployed; favored mass violation of strike injunctions; recommended state unemployment insurance and a 40-hour work week law.

Other resolutions demanded withdrawal of United States troops from Nicaragua, the Philippines and China, and asked delegates to request members of all local unions in the organization to give one day's pay each for the relief of striking miners in the bituminous fields of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

Another resolution adopted denounced the Save-the-Union movement and the Ohio-Pennsylvania Relief Society as detrimental to the cause of labor.

Discussion was marked by verbal clashes between the forces led by James H. Maurer, retiring president, and those headed by E. D. Cush of Pittsburgh.

The injunction was asked after recent disturbances at the company's Black Top mine. It struck at the gathering of union sympathizers along highways traversed by nonunion workers on their way to and from the mines.

John Walker, sub-district president of the United Mine Workers, was arrested at Caldwell yesterday, charged with rioting, secret indictments against him and others having been returned by the Noble county grand jury.

Sixteen men and two women, arrested in Noble county during the last few days in connection with disturbances at Coal Ridge, Belle Valley and Caldwell, were released on bond after being bound over to the grand jury.

PLANE LOWERS CHICAGO-PGH. RECORD

Alfred Lowenstein, Belgium financier, who is touring the United States in a hurry, arrived in Pittsburgh from Chicago by rail this morning and by 10:30 was on his way to Washington in the tri-motored Fokker he purchased in New York two weeks ago especially for the tour. Capt. Donald Drew, British war ace, is piloting the giant cabin ship. He flew here from Chicago yesterday, making the trip in 3 hours and 43 minutes, setting a record for the flight.

Accompanying Mr. Lowenstein on the trip are Count di Spaelberch of Brussels and M. John Vanderline of Antwerp and a secretary. Both the count and M. Vanderline are young fellows who are getting quite a "kick" out of the trip. The financier is also accompanied by a prize police dog, Yoko, sired by the champion of Europe.

"Yes, it's a business trip," Mr. Lowenstein, said to be Belgium's richest man, declared. "I've been in several cities in the East and then we flew to Canada where I had some things to attend to after which we visited Chicago."

"A wonderful ship and a wonderful pilot!" the financier enthused. "Capt. Drew came over with me and we wanted the best ship money could buy—that's why we bought a Fokker. What difference does it make that it is a German ship.

"Good joke—German designed ship and English pilot with Belgium and Alsatian passengers," he laughed. "'Ce la guerre!' or better yet, 'ce la paix.'"

BRYAN COLLEGE BUILDING BEGUN

DAYTON, Tenn., May 12.—(AP.)—Construction of the first unit of Bryan Memorial University, a Fundamentalist institution in memory of William Jennings Bryan, was begun here yesterday with a simple ceremony attended by many residents of this little mountain communit where "the Commoner" fought his last fight in the celebrated Scopes case and died.

Throwing the lever that released the first batch of concrete for the 440-foot stone building, former Congressman William D. Upshaw, Georgia, characterized Bryan as the "Gladstone of America, whose name will have a premier place among the immortals of our Christian civilization."

F. E. Robinson, president of the Bryan Memorial Association and owner of the drug store in which the Scopes case had its inception, presided.

BANDITS SHOOT POLICE CHIEF

READING, Pa., May 12.—Chief of Police W. E. Lewars, of Hamburg, 20 miles north of here, was wounded probably fatally, and Patrolman Daniel E. Bailey shot during a running pistol battle early today with five bandits who attempted to rob the Goodhart-Katterman silk mill at Hamburg.

The bandits escaped after exchanging shots with Chief Lewars and Patrolman Bailey and John Freeman, watchman of the mill. The quintet fled in an automobile towards this city, abandoning a truck belonging to the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, which they had stolen. Police believe the bandit group were from Philadelphia.

East Is West

IGNACIO JIMINEZ

Capt. Ignacio Jiminez and Capt. Francisco Iglesias, Spanish flight endurance record-holders, have been delayed on their 4,250-mile non-stop flight from Seville, Spain, to Havana, Cuba, by a "crack-up" in taking off. They seek to make a new record. West to them is East, for officially Spain refuses to aid in a "certain death" ocean flight and is doing so only with the understanding (with a wink, of course) that the boys'll fly to Bombay.

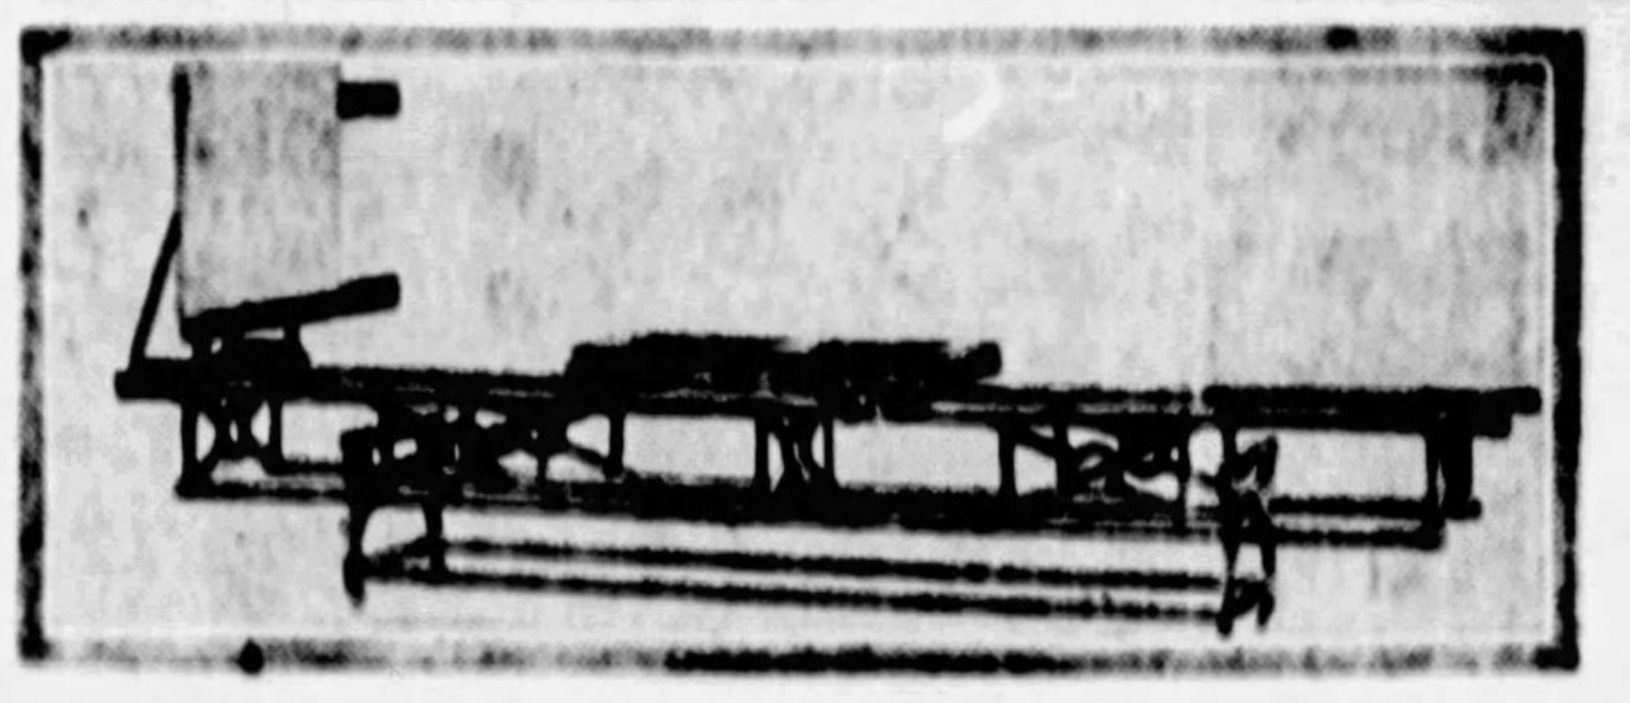
We Want to Put One of These in Every Home



Here is a good, straightforward proposition, We want to put one of these in every home, There are no strings attached to this offer, If this is not just as we represent it, all you have to do is to mail it back at our expense,

Sign of Spring—

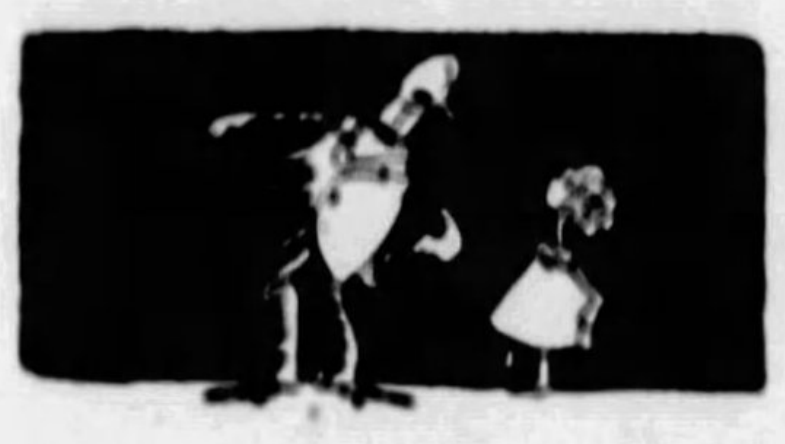
THE BATTLE



Oh, father, dear, I'm so afraid,
I hear the cannons' roar
And sounds as of an airplane raid.
Alas! Alas! 'Tis war!

Oh, father, dear, that dreadful sound
Must be machine guns' rattle
The world once more in blood is drowned
As maddened hosts do battle.

Oh, father, bursting bombs I hear;
Soon vultures will be gloating.
My child, be calm and have no fear,
'Tis but Chicago voting!

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Sir—

My one big pleasure in life has been to read aloud motion picture sub-titles to my wife and kiddies. Although those surrounding us evidently greatly admired the dramatic inflections with which I interpreted the printed words flashed upon the screen, I didn't begrudge them this extra entertainment, even though I only intended to benefit my dear family.

Upon being comfortably seated by the usher, we settled expectantly for a pleasant evening in a theater; the picture came upon the screen. Imagine my embarrassment when I discovered it was a Vitaphone talking picture.

BUGS BAER Says

WHILE looking over the list of American contestants in the British open golf tournament we must hand the Chinese credit for refusing to dilute war with peace conferences.

While Lindbergh, Fitzmaurice and the Baron are flying over three thousand miles of sea-food the Chinese continue to scratch each other with finger-nails that have been handed down for countless generations.

Good will flights may tie continents in new bonds of gestures and debts, but the Mongolians refuse all modern improvements in a war that they hope will break the record of Abie's Irish Rose.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

A cave-man with one club requires no caddy to assist him on his rounds. The Chinks are following the same policy of quick sales and small profits.

China has had ten centuries of peace and has decided that war is better publicity. They have even requested the United States to lend 'em some marines for the close-ups and fade-outs.

While C. C. Pyle's ankle excursionists parade from Los Angeles to New York, the modest Celestials march from Tingpoo to Tsinan carrying the vacuum cleaner of destruction. Their emblem is a dragon breathing flame, which is the equivalent of a chameleon that has been drinking college gin.

Geneva, Lausanne and The Hague may claim the world is at peace, but they must be using last year's telephone book.

The Chinese are fighting the Mongolians and if you aren't a Manchurian you cannot dance in this Pekin block party.

This is a family war without allies. And, therefore, without bickerings, jealousies and arguing, which have spoiled so many of our wars.

We love to teach the school kiddies that the Chinese march to war equipped with fans. When a Chink fans you now, he does it with a blackjack.

This war will last about four hundred years, for the Chinese are industrious and patient. It will end suddenly without the explanations and apologies which finish one Occidental war and lay the foundations for the next.

Feeling That Counts

A man who was "broke" was pitching a hard luck tale to a friend. It appeared that he had underestimated the speed of several horses.

"My friend," said the other, with distant sympathy, "I feel very much in my heart for you."

"What about feeling in your pocket for me?" asked the unfortunate one.

Reminiscent of Lizzie

A woman owner of a tiny car held up the traffic while she questioned a policeman. When she tried to start something went wrong, and the drivers of a long line of cars and buses behind got impatient. Eventually the policeman took a piece of string out of his pocket and said:

"Here, miss, tie it up and drag it home."

Mother's Day Tomorrow

Any Tribute to Her Will Recall Caress of Baby Hands

Sunday will be celebrated as Mothers' Day. It is a fine and appropriate expression of sentiment. Its only lack is the implication of a limited "day" for mother when she has no day. Mother is as eternal as dawn, and the light of her noble, sacrificing, uplifting, tender love shines through the ages, extending from the mists of creation to now and the unfathomable forever. Mother's day is always—never begun, never done.

Any tribute we pay to mother, however slight or however magnificent, we realize is immeasurably minute compared to what may be deserved, but in the eyes of mother it will be magnified millions and millions of times—because she is mother.

Mother! What a soul has she! Her every child is a king or queen—no less. The world may laud or the world may censure and condemn, but mother levels all the rough, uneven roads—calling, calling—a signal in the dark to the child astray, a message of hope like a beacon to the mariner enshrouded in fog.

Your Mothers' Day gift to mother perhaps may be small. If you are far from your own mother, the receipt of some slight remembrance from the one over whom she crooned in the cradle, with the light in her eyes that has moved the world, will be a golden gift. We are still babies to mother, still need to be comforted and tucked into bed, and to her our little tokens will be the greatest thing in the world—the soft caress of baby arms.

Remember your mother—on Mothers' Day—always.

Contests of Pupils Show Our Youth in True Light

The holding here of the final contests of high school students from all parts of the state under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Inter-High School Literary, Debate and Music League was a wonderful demonstration of the fact that our youth takes up worth-while matters in a serious way. With 170 representatives in competition for scholarships, cups and medals, we saw our youngsters giving a set-back to any pessimistic ideas that the coming generation is not coming, but going—to the dogs.

Not all of the competitors received awards, but all were winners. The honor of being selected to take part in the contests in reading, debate, essay composition and vocal and instrumental music is a great one. In the race the wreath goes only to one, but all are heroic who reach the foot of Olympus. So, while we honor and congratulate the winners, we felicitate all for their worthy efforts.

It all goes to prove that our boys and girls are made of the right kind of stuff and that they make good use of their talents.

Have a Heart, Senators

Uncle Sam is not yet a model employer, though he is improving.

The House of Representatives at Washington has just passed a bill which shoves him a step (but only a little step) forward.

This is the Welch bill. As introduced, it proposed to make the minimum pay of every adult, full-time Federal worker $1,500 a year—little enough, in all conscience, considering how prices run.

You might not think that there are regular workers for Uncle Sam receiving less than this. But there are. Janitors, for instance. They get but $85 a month, with 3½ per cent deducted for the retirement fund. In most cities janitors get twice as much.

Even lower is the Federal pay for charwomen. They get only $55 a month, with the same deduction. Imagine a Federal charwoman saving $11,000 out of $55 a month, as a charwoman in New York in private employment was recently found to have saved!

The city of San Francisco pays its charwomen $125 a month—and even that doesn't leave much margin for luxuries.

The House did not pass the original Welch bill. It trimmed it down. It voted to distribute $18,000,000 among 135,000 of the more than 550,000 civil servants of the government—averaging $5 more a month for the poorest paid, and grading up.

It also instructed a board of experts to study the subject and report to the next session on what else should be done.

No experts are needed to decide that a raise of $5 a month for the lowest paid of these faithful workers is not enough.

The bill now goes to the Senate. The Senate should have a heart.

They Both Jumped

Poor Girls, They Loved Unwisely

Russians are inclined to overdo. Their novelists make their characters too horrible. Their government makes punishment too severe. Even their real life romances go to extremes.

At Moscow, two beautiful chorus girls, Agnesa Koreleva and Natalie Aksenova, each 20 years old, danced in the ballet "Red Poppy." Then they tied their hands together and jumped to death on the stage, from the uppermost flies, in full view of the audience, as the curtain went down.

Both were in love with Mr. Kurilko, scene painter, and agreed to die together so that neither might have him. We don't do that here.

2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate, no state to have less than two Senators. Legislation to enforce prompt constitutional reapportionment in the House of Representatives.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal powers to abolish illiteracy in the United States under a Secretary of Education.
5. Election of Congress in November. Installation on the 1st of January following. Inauguration of the President 1st of January next after November election.
6. Federal regulation of the oil industry to conserve a vital natural resource.

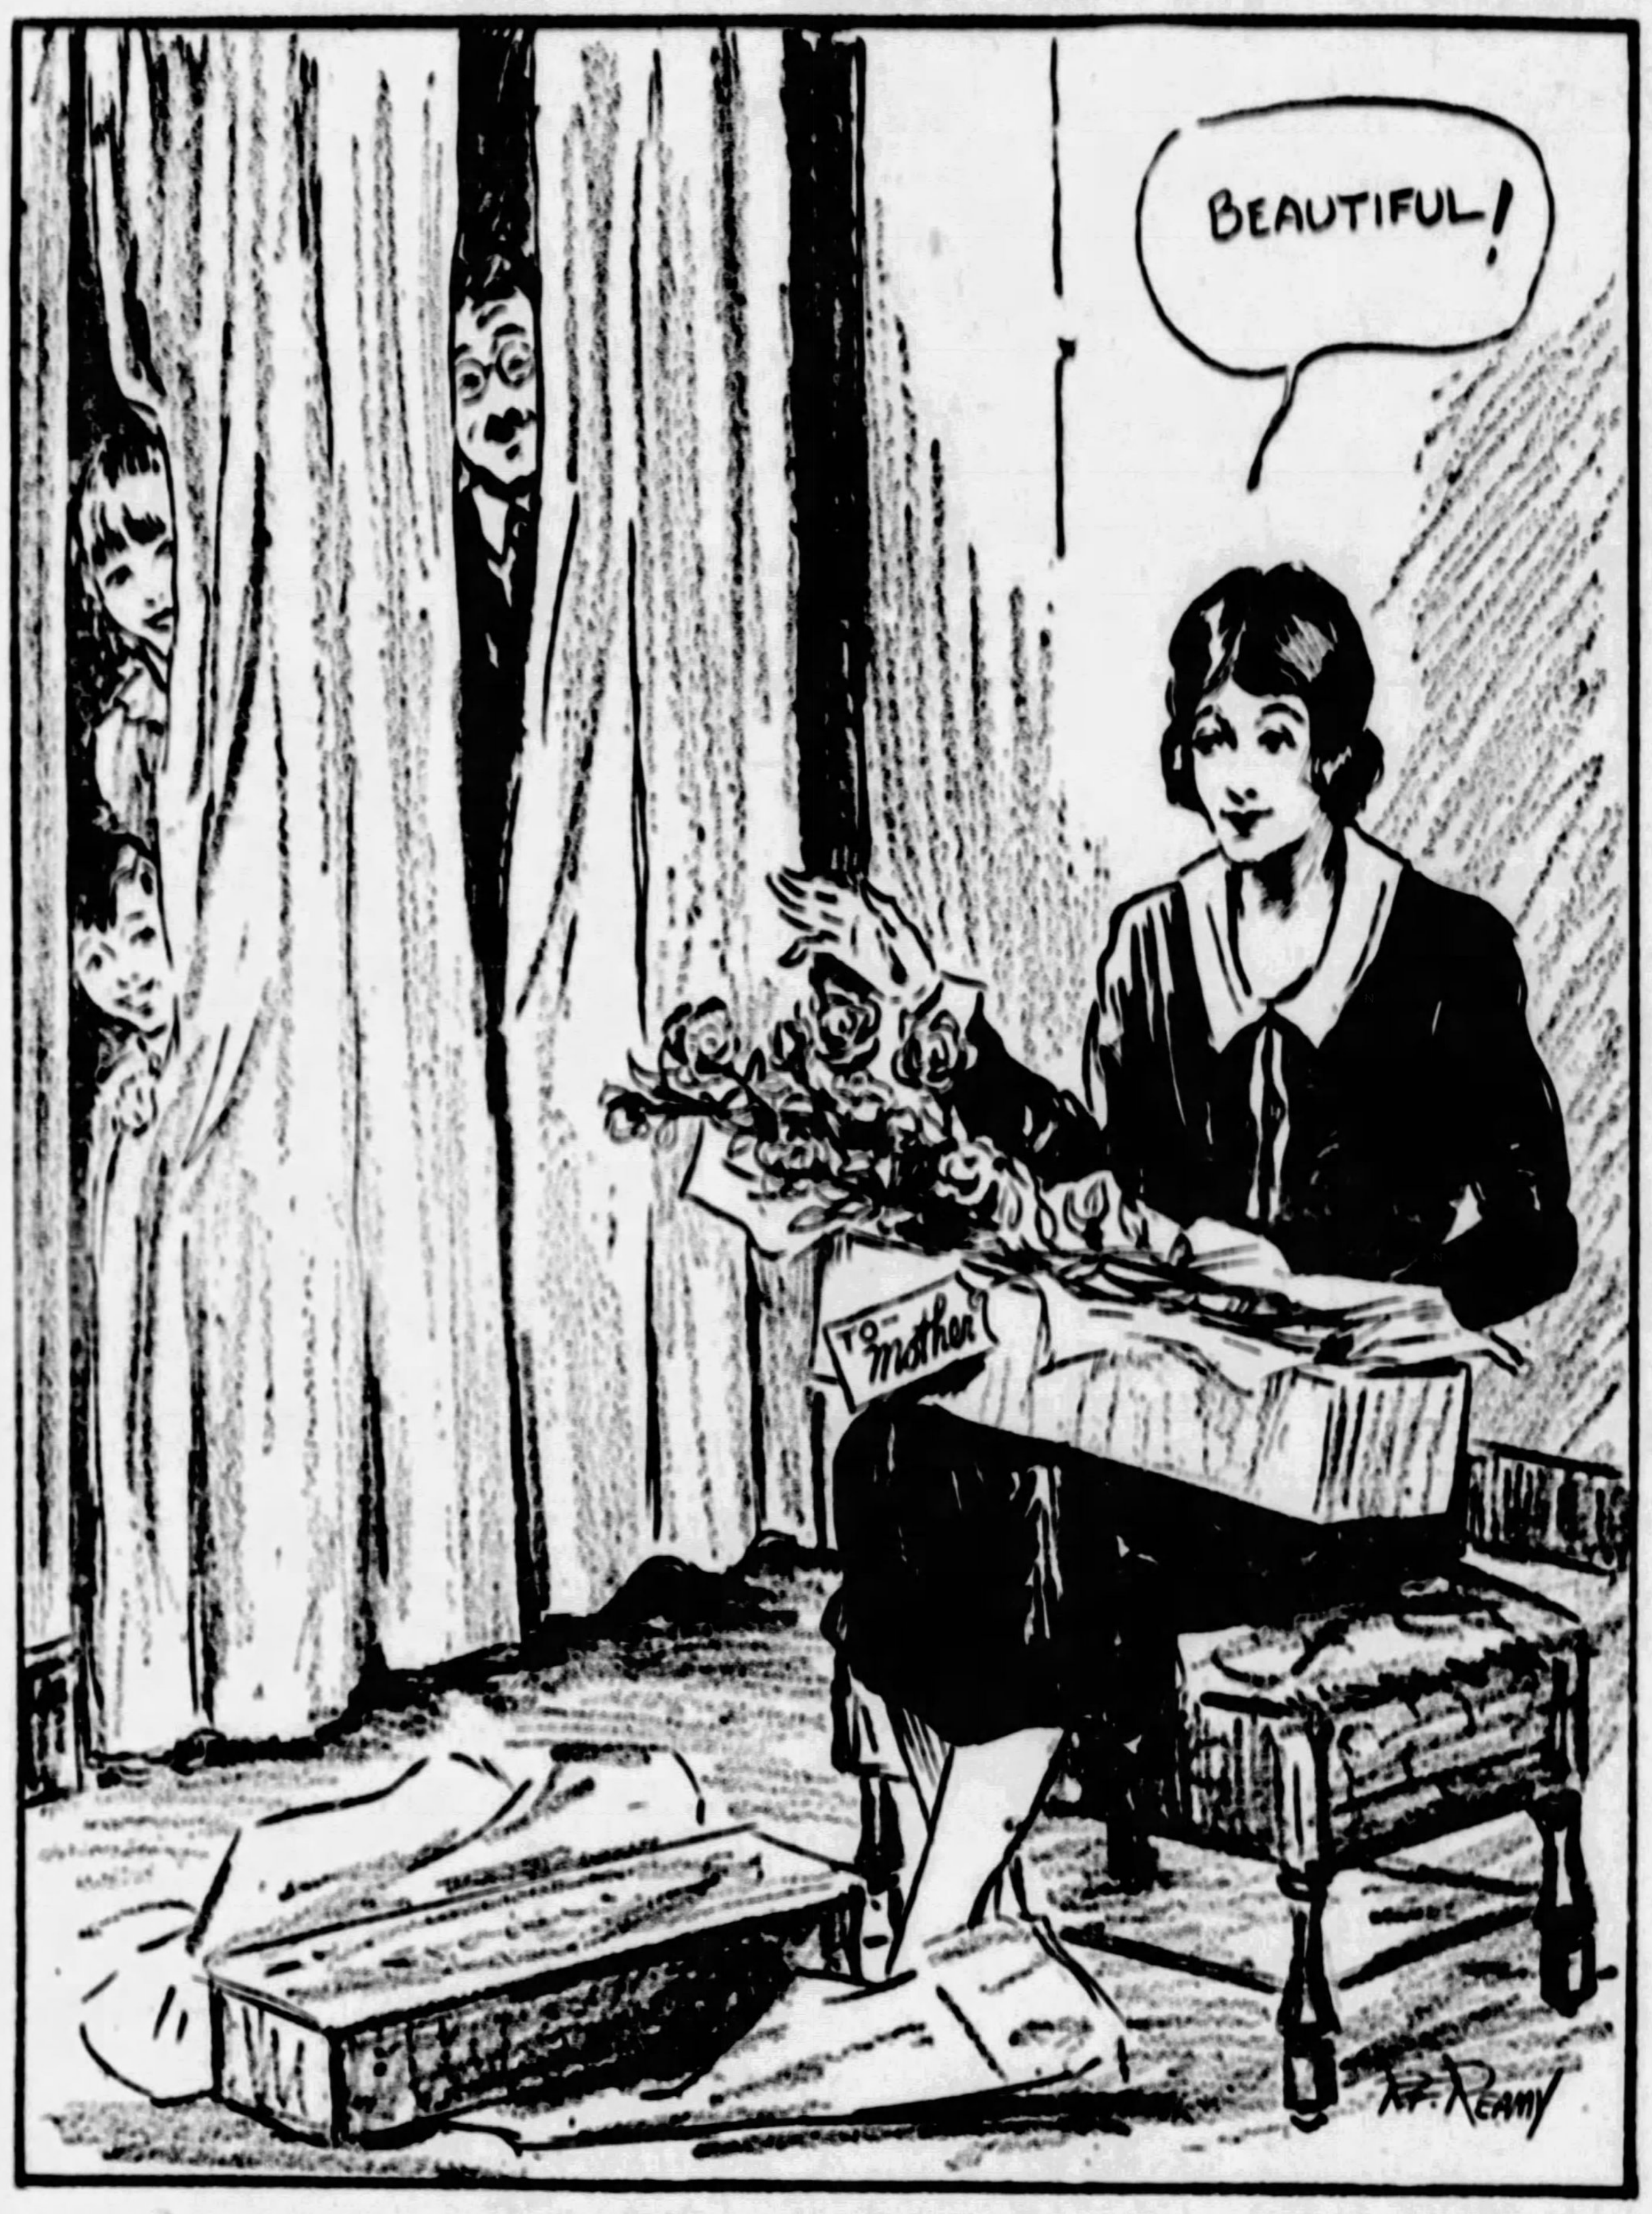
HER DAY TOMORROW



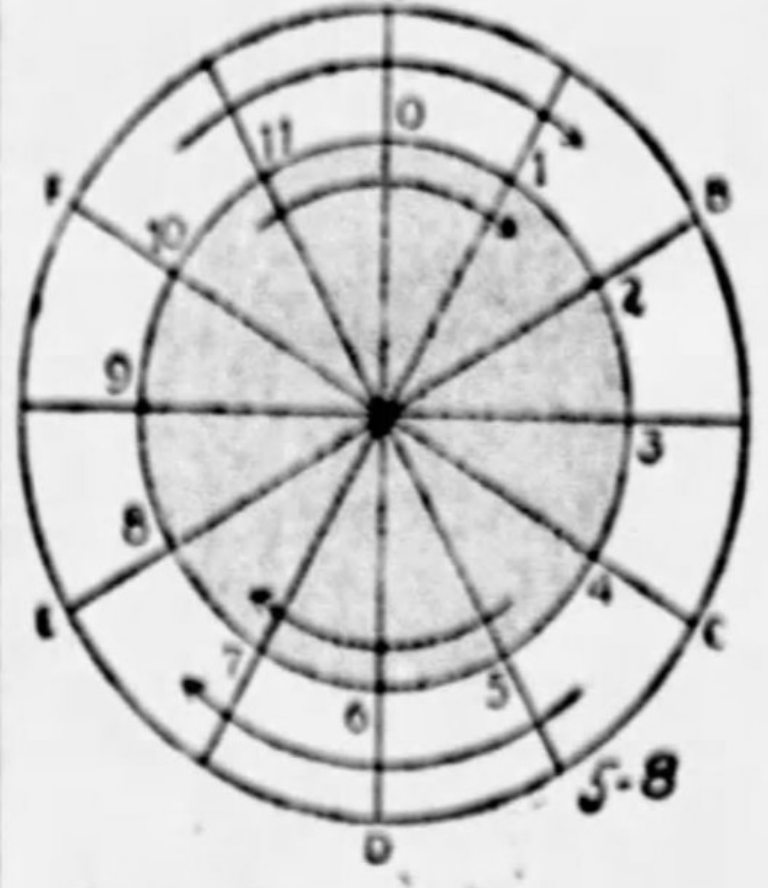
Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Aeroplane and Earth

"Kindly clean up the following problems: (1) Would an aeroplane flying in the same sense as the earth's rotation have the advantage over one flying in the opposite direction—the distance being the same for both and all other things equal. (2) Would a body falling from a great height (without the influence of wind), fall on a point exactly below it, or would the rotation of the earth draw it over?—R. KLOCKGLESSER."

ANS. No. 1—Disregarding all aerial currents, and assuming that the atmosphere as a whole rotates from west to east with the same angular velocity as that of the solid globe on which it rests—which is true as a mean—the plane would encounter no more resistance going contrary to the direction of the earth's rotation than going with it. The direction of gravity being at right angles to the motion of the plane, the attraction of the earth would not affect that motion, while the air resistance would be the same in both directions, because before starting the plane would share the eastward rotation of the atmosphere, i. e., would be at rest in the air.

But with regard to the surface of the earth beneath, the motion of the plane would be very different in the two cases. To see this best, suppose the speed of the plane to be equal to that of the earth's (and atmosphere's) rotation. Let us here have a little picture.



Aeroplane Kinetics.

The arrows show the rotation. Suppose the aeroplane is at "a" directly over "o" on the earth's surface. First let it go contrary to the earth's (and atmosphere's) rotation. Then, since the speed is equal to theirs, the effect will be the same as if it remained fixed at "a" while the atmosphere blows past it, and the earth turns under it in the opposite direction. In twenty-four hours the point "o" on the earth will have come back under it.

Next, suppose the aeroplane to move through the air in the same direction in which the earth and atmosphere turn, i. e., from left to right. Then while "o" is turning to "1," "a" whose own speed in the air is added to that of the atmosphere as a whole, will arrive at "b." Again, when "o" reaches "2," "a" will have arrived at "c," and when "o" is at "3," "a" will be at "d." Continue to follow the motion around, and you will perceive that "a" will make the whole circuit while "o" is going half-way round, or the aeroplane will go around twice, while the globe and the atmosphere are turning once. But, whichever way it goes, the plane will move through the air with the same speed, encountering always the same atmospheric resistance.

Ans. No. 2—A body falling from a great height deviates perceptibly toward the east, i. e., toward the direction in which the earth revolves. The reason of this is that when it is at the top of its course the body, being farther from the center of the earth moves eastward with the general rotation at a greater tangential velocity than when it reaches the earth's surface. This tangential motion is not destroyed by its fall, so that when it gets to the bottom it is east of the point where it would have been if the fall had been vertical. This has been proved by dropping balls from lofty towers. The deviation would be zero at the poles and a maximum at the equator. It varies as the cosine of the latitude. At latitude 40 degrees it amounts to about one-and-one-fifth inches in a fall of 500 feet.

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

Those who give bad advice to the prudent both lose their pains and are laughed to scorn. —Phaedrus.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Wives and Husbands

MANY wives are responsible for the so-called laziness of their husbands about the house.

The majority of husbands are willing to assist their wives with the housework if there is a good reason for the wife to be unable to do it.

But frequently husbands lose their desire and ambition in this direction because they find that the more they do the more they may.

Naturally there is rebellion at such treatment.

Result, the men don't do what should naturally be expected of them.

When a woman is in poor health, has a large family to attend to, especially when they are small, a good husband will help out all he can.

Most men put so much time and energy into the job that earns the daily bread that they need a rest when they get home.

A man must keep himself fit to go out and earn his money.

It is unfair for a woman to nag and harp on the laziness of her husband about the home when she is perfectly able to keep up the housekeeping end of the home, herself.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Day by Day

DAY by day the task grows lighter,
Day by day the way grows brighter.
  There are added notes of laughter
    every day.
With each hour our sight is clearer
And the prize we seek looms nearer,
  Fewer losses now our shining hopes betray.

For our soaring spirits capture
More of beauty, more of rapture,
  More of vision as the seasons slip away;
Bearing burdens always better,
Loosing every foolish fetter,
  We are learning more of living
    day by day.

Words of the Wise

Property has its duties as well as its rights.—Phipps.

Friendship is composed of a single soul inhabiting two bodies.—Aristotle.

In character, in manners, in style, in all things, the supreme excellence is simplicity.—Longfellow.

Set all things in their own peculiar place,
And know that order is the greatest grace. —Dryden.

Do the duty which lies nearest thee, which thou knowest to be a duty! The second duty will already become clearer.—Carlyle.

That which is good to be done, cannot be done too soon; and if it is neglected to be done early, it will frequently happen that it will not be done at all.—Bishop Mant.

Tales that are Told

Not So Promising

MRS. CLYMER, a very wealthy woman, has complained to the vicar of her parish that her servants showed a strange indifference to their ultimate fate in the next world.

"I don't think they care whether they go to heaven or not," she remarked.

"H'm," said the vicar, "I suppose you have assured them that you will be there?"

"Certainly," came the confident answer.

The vicar smiled in a bored kind of way.

"Do you not think that is perhaps the precise reason for their indifference?" he ventured suavely.—London Answers.

Guileless

A CERTAIN crack regiment had received as a recruit a well-set-up young man who had been very well educated, but who had failed to make good in other vocations.

On his first day on the parade ground he was utterly exhausted by several hours of drill.

"Stand at ease!" ordered the officer at last.

"'How wonderful is death!'" murmured the new recruit.

"Who said that?" snapped the officer angrily.

The culprit smiled his laziest smile as he replied: "Shelley, I believe, sir."

A Medico's Advice

"WHY did you become a tramp?" asked the sympathetic old lady of the unkempt individual who leaned negligently against the doorpost.

"Doctor's orders, mum," replied the wanderer, with an engaging smile.

"Doctor's orders?" echoed the old lady in astonishment. "What ever do you mean?"

"Years ago, mum," began the other, "our family doctor advised me to take walks after every meal—and"—he paused dramatically "and I've been walkin' after 'em ever since."

Sold Again!

A SMALL boy entered a grocer's shop.

"Please have you any dry biscuits?" he asked the pleasant-faced man behind the counter.

"Yes," returned the other, "as many as you want, I dare say." He reached down a large tin.

"Is that the only kind you have?"

"No; here's another," said the kindly grocer.

"Are you sure they are very dry?"

"Quite sure," smiled the other.

"Very well, then"—the boy backed towards the open door—"why not give 'em a drink?"

His Pound of Flesh

IT WAS Thursday and Wilkins was "broke." He was also hungry. Halting outside a butcher's shop, he gazed wistfully at the display of chops and sirloins in the window. At last the sight was too much for him. Plucking up his courage, Wilkins entered the shop.

"If I leave a security equal to what I take away, will you trust me till tomorrow?" he asked.

"Certainly," replied the butchers.

"Well," said Wilkins, "give me a couple of those joints and keep one of them till I come back."

Spring Fashions

"THE evening wore on," continued the man who was telling the story.

"Excuse me," interrupted the would-be wit, "but can you tell me what the evening wore on that occasion?"

"I don't know that it is important," replied the storyteller, quite unperturbed. "If you must know, however, I believe it was the close of a spring day."

Not So Rough, Sandino!

MR. SANDINO, of Nicaragua, reported to have captured and killed one American recently, threatens now to kill "all Americans," which of course means all Americans in Nicaragua that he is able to CATCH.

It is to be hoped our government will do what is best to convince Mr. Sandino that killing Americans is at best a dangerous amusement. Meanwhile it is a friendly act to warn the Nicaraguan fire-eater that he is playing a dangerous game.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 12.—After 1 a. m. midtown Manhattan streets are dotted with the shuffling figures. They are harmless and hide from the daylight. The police are familiar with most of them and they are rarely bothered. They are merely drab threads in the vivid pattern of a metropolitan night.

Some are queer creatures with twisted bodies and cracked brains who scavenge gutters and poke about refuse cans, seemingly in hunt of hidden treasures. They mumble and shrink from human contact.

Then there are those pasty-faced men with several days' growth, collars turned up and hats pulled down. They are the gray army of drug addicts who go to all-night restaurants for frequent cups of coffee and to pick up their day's supply from the peddlers.

There is a class of beggars, too, who skulk about the streets at dawn in search of roaming drunks who are easily moved to benevolence by a hardluck tale. Still others have a venomous quiet in their voices which is effective with the sober wayfarer in a dark street.

Columbus Circle and Herald Square are pivotal points for night birds who vanish with dawn. They clot in little groups like so many dumb sheep. Rarely do they seem to talk, but it is obvious some intangible communication passes among them.

In the west Forties when weather is seasonable there are many doorway sleepers. These are mostly ragged urchins who jump up before daylight, shake themselves and rush off for their supply of morning papers. They are hard youngsters whose wits are sharpened on the city's pavements.

Fifth avenue has a well-dressed, silver-haired woman who strolls leisurely from Plaza fountain to 42d street several times in the early morning hours and vanishes up a side street. Private patrolmen have seen her for years. Railroad terminals, too, attract those who move so furtively about in the night.

The most expensive engagement ring of the season is the product of a Fifth avenue jeweler. It is a platinum design flecked with small diamonds and rubies. The prongs hold a huge solitaire diamond; therein is imprisoned a marvelous miniature of the groom-to-be. The price as said to be more than $50,000, and in insetting the miniature a valuable diamond was ruined for practical purposes.

The hatless fad seems in evidence only at night this summer among men, and then with those in dinner clothes riding in automobiles. The vogue had much popularity until those who always seek eccentricity in every possible manner adopted it. The nuts K. O. a lot of dandy ideas.

The Bar Building on West Forty-fourth street is occupied chiefly by lawyers and was designed for their occupancy. There are a dozen or more buildings given over solely to dentists and doctors, and one large building on Forty-second street has several floors tenanted chiefly by Christian Science practitioners. The Putnam Building, where the Paramount Theater, clock and all, now stand, was once occupied solely by theatrical producers and agents. The latest in building segregation is a structure planned for Fifty-sixth street which will house only manicure and hair-dressing parlors.

Incidentally, it is said scandal snoopers for gossip weeklies pick up their choicest bits in manicure and hair-dressing salons. Just like the barber shop back home.

It used to be a trick of unscrupulous gossip journals to run off a proof of a scurrilous article and present it to an intended victim for him to make corrections, thereby making his past life flash before him and inspiring a hush advertisement. It worked for years and reaped a fortune to scoundrels. But not any more. The public has learned a tip-off to the police is effective.

Mothers' Day

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The instinct of mother love is one which is perhaps the most deeply rooted in our humanity. It goes back to the beasts, as bears defend their cubs and wolves their whelps.

It is one of the strong, unarguing, most tenacious of the feelings in the human breast.

Much has been said and written in commendation of it. It has been lauded as a good thing, likest to God of any passion human kind possesses.

I would not like to detract from this praise or add a discordant note to the hymn which all humanity raises in praise of mothers.

It is true she stands by us when all others fail. When we are weak she will support us. If we are hanged in disgrace even there she cherishes our discarded body. If we were to make our bed in hell perhaps she would be willing to go there with us.

Her feeling is ineradicable and unshakeable.

But like all great, instinctive emotions, it sometimes goes wrong. It would be interesting to know the number of lives that have been blasted or deformed by mother love.

There is the young man who has been carefully brought up by a doting mother and dutifully waited upon until his egotism has become simply over-weening. He has become a failure in business and his matrimonial venture goes upon the rocks simply because of his intolerable ego. Instead of doing anything to curb this ego the mother love has steadily fanned it until it is beyond all bounds. No one can find fault with her devotion, but at the same time no one can deny its injurious results.

Then there is the youth who always runs to his mother when confronted with the penalty of his own deeds. He has got so in the habit of looking to her to save him that he has lost all sense of responsibility for his actions. He is a weak, spineless and unmoral creature, utterly unable to make his way in the world because mother love has always stood between him and the consequences of his deeds.

This is no effort to belittle the love of a mother, but to suggest that it should be great enough to induce the mother to make a child stand upon his own feet, to teach him to take the consequences of his deed and altogether to develop in him such sterling character as will give him some assurance of success in the world.

Mother love is undoubtedly a good thing, almost divine, but it needs to be regulated by good judgment, like every other great and proper emotion. Let not mother love become smother love.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

A. B. SEE, rich elevator manufacturer, says that education is going to the dogs, and that if the nation is to be saved "the children should be saved from their mothers, women must be rescued from themselves and men must rule the homes again."

Well, well, well! There is a nice little day's work for somebody.

Mr. See says that the present day system of education is a waste of the public's money. But it certainly turns out a lot of interesting little folks.

I had dinner with a small pupil of a modern school where children "are themselves" and are encouraged to express themselves freely and develop their personality. She gave me some details of her teacher's system in handling them.

"Then what?" I asked her, after hearing an astonishing story.

"Then—well we just wait and see how we turn out," said the very interesting child, and she chuckled.

A teacher at one of the most progressive of the New York schools took me to visit the school. The girls, most of them, were dressed like boys, and the teacher had to ask sometimes which they were. They are encouraged to wear what they please. They were a funny looking lot.

As I entered the school a child running hurriedly along the corridor bumped into the teacher and almost knocked her over.

"I beg your pardon," said the teacher.

"Oh, that's all right," said the modern child.

A Chicago girl has coined what she calls a suitable name for petting. It's "kotch pouffing."

Helen Morgan's club caught fire "from a discarded cigaret at a time when there was nobody in the club."

The ghost must be walking in night clubs once again.

Natacha Rambova says: "Emotion is such an uncertain thing. I certainly am not thinking of marriage."

The more she sees of men, the better she like Pekineses. She bought another one the other day.
